Miss Striptease On the beach

she shows you
her outfit piece
by piece...

HERE'S an all-in outfit for the beach—and you over a bathing dress. Instructions for knitting can make most of it yourself. First of all, the coat and shorts are so simple you can't go wrong. They go over a straight-cut navy blue swim suit of wool with a two-way stretch in it.

... with instructions for

You Need

1 lb. 13ozs. of Anny Blatt Verness wool in white. 1 pair of No. 8, 10 and 12 knitting needles. 4 buttons. Yard of white petersham ribbon 1 in. wide. 2 white zipp fasteners 8 ins. long. A ball of Virella Lacton yarn in white.

MEASUREMENTS.—Length from shoulder to lower edge 28 ins. To fit 34 to 36 inch bust. Length of sleeve seam 18 ins.

ABBREVIATIONS.—K. Knit. P. Purl. St. Stitch. Tog. Together. Inc. Increase. Ins. Inches. Rep. Repeat. Dec. Decrease. Beg. Beginning.

TENSION.—6½ sts. to 1 inch on No. 8 needles.

Right Front

ON No. 8 needles cast on 63 sts. and work 6 rows in (K1, P1) rib.

Next Row.—Rib 6. (for the front border), knit plain to the end of row.

Next Row.—St. P. to the last 6 sts. rib 6. Repeat these last 2 rows, dec. once at end of 13th. and every following 14th row until work measures 15 ins. from lower edge, ending with a P. row.

Next Row.—Work across 18 sts. cast off 20 sts. for pocket. Work to end. Leave these sts. until pocket lining has been worked.

Pocket Lining

Cast on 26 sts. and work 6 ins. in stocking st. ending with a knit row. Start again on the sts. that were left. Next Row.—Purl to the last 6 sts. rib 6, working across pocket lining sts. to replace the 20 sts. cast off. Continue dec. at the end of every 14th row until 54 sts. remain, then work without further shaping until work measures 19 ins. from start, ending with a P. row.

Back

CAST on 126 sts. with No. 8 needles and work 6 rows in (K1, P1) rib. Change to stocking st. dec. once at beg. and end of the 13th and every following 14th row until 108 sts. remain. Continue without shaping until work is same depth as front to underarm.

To shape the armholes K2 tog. at both ends of the next and every following 4th row until 70 sts. remain. Now shape for the shoulders and neck.

Cast off 20 sts. at beg. of each of next 2 rows for the shoulder, then work 1 inch in stocking st. on remaining sts. for the neck. Work across 5 sts., cast off 20 sts., work to the end. Work on last 5 sts., dec. once at neck edge on every row until 1 st. remains. Work on remaining 5 sts. in the same way.

Sleeves

WITH No. 8 needles cast on 60 sts. and work 6 rows in (K1, P1) rib. Change to stocking st. and inc. once at beg. and end of next and every following 10th row until there are 84 sts. on the needle. Continue without further shapings until work measures 18 ins. from beg.

To shape the top, K2 tog. at both ends of every knit row until 22 sts. remain. Continue in stocking st. on these sts. for 3 ins. Cast off. Work another sleeve same way.

Pocket Flaps

With No. 8 needles cast on 36 sts. and work 2 ins. in (K1, P1) rib. Make a buttonhole in the next 2 rows as follows:—

Next row. Rib 16, cast off 4 sts. rib to the end.

Following row. Work in the rib, casting on 4 sts. to replace those cast off. Now continue in rib, dec. one st. at both ends of every row until 2 sts. remain. Cast off. Work a second flap same way.

Half Hood

PRESS all pieces carefully, pressing out ribbing at the lower edge. Sew in sleeves, placing shaped edges to back and front armholes shapings. Sew in the shoulder panels. Sew each side of back neck shapings to side of shoulder panels at the back. Using No. 10 needles, with right side of work facing, beg. at neck edge of the right front, knit up 24 sts. along the front of the neck, 10 sts. up the side of the neck to shoulder, 6 sts. down the other side of the shoulder, and 13 sts. across the back of the neck to the centre (52 sts.).

Work 5 rows in (K1, P1) rib. Continue in rib, casting off 2 sts. at the front edge 12 times. Work back to the front edge. Change to No. 8 needles.

Next Row. (K1, P1) rib on 6 sts. K6 (inc. once in the next st. K1) 8 times (30 sts.). Continue in stocking st., keeping 6 sts. in rib at the front edge, ending with a purl row. Then inc. once at the centre back in the next and every following 4th row until there are 54 sts. on the needle. Cast off.

To complete second half:—Using No. 10 needles, with right side of work facing, beg. at the centre back. Knit up 13 sts. across the back of the neck, 5 sts. up the side of the neck to the shoulder, 10 sts. down the side of the front neck, and 24 sts. along the front of neck. Work 4 rows in (K1, P1) rib.

Continue in rib, casting off 2 sts. at front edge 12 times. Work back to front edge. Change to No. 8 needles and complete as for the first half.

Making Up

PRESS the hood carefully, tucking care not to press out ribbing at neck. Join top and back seams of the hood. Join the side and sleeve seams. Make a buttonhole loop at top of right front and sew on a button to correspond. Sew a button on right front to match one on left front.

Sew pocket linings in position on wrong side. Place pocket flaps above pockets, allowing them to extend ½ inch on each side of pocket opening, and sew in position. Sew on buttons to match buttonholes.

Fresh Air to Order

WHEN the negro "bell hop" showed me to my room on the fourteenth floor he gaped with surprise. For I rushed to the windows and flung them up.

I was English and new to the States.

I had not met air-conditioning before and did not realise that the air inside the room was controlled from inside the room.

And now, in London, "air-conditioning" is household news. Like bathrooms, electric light and refrigerators once were.

Exactly what does this mean? And, even then, how does it apply to the Ordinary Woman (you and, certainly, me)?

A certain professor illustrates the subject well. He tested his students with an atmosphere rather hot and damp; they were lethargic. Then, altering the composition of the air they were breathing he noticed that too little heat and moisture made them restless. By mixing his ingredients "just right" he had his class "attentive and cheerful."

But in this recipe for healthy air there is one ingredient that must be left out, or taken out; and that is, dirt.

You would not think you could wash air—but you can. That is one of the most useful things that real air-conditioning does.

NOW, the ordinary housewife, living in the ordinary small home cannot think—yet—in terms of "100 per cent. air management."

But, when the hot fumes from tarred roads begin to fret us it's reasonable to explore possibilities.

Well, you can change and clean the air and, at the same time, keep those windows shut. You can get an effective machine to expel the used air; you can get a machine that brings in some 450 cubic feet of air, filtered, and keeps out noise.

There is another that washes the air of your room for you all day (and if you had seen its stained filters after a short stay in a nice apparently "clean-aired" room, as I have, you would shudder!) and there is another that looks like a table lamp and emits good fresh air, too.

If you want to reside permanently in what is called the comfort zone of conditioning, then there is an apparatus that looks rather like a radiogram and controls temperature, moisture and cleansing of the air you breathe—full "air conditioning," in fact.

Why not start on the kitchen of your small flat—and eject the used air with an inexpensive fan. Or see that the air in your children's bedroom is clean throughout the summer.

Try Swimming For Health

SWIMMING is one of the most healthful of all recreations, but it can also be one of the most unhealthy, unless a few precautions are taken to ensure that no ill-effects result.

The fact that swimming is such an efficient aid in acquiring a beautiful figure is apt to induce women to overdo it.

Frequently after sitting at an office desk all day many of them rush to the seaside or bathing pool in the evenings and at week-ends. They go "all out" for beauty, with the result that on the following day they are tired and listless, having swum for too long a period and too strenuously. Swimming is a good way of exercising all the muscles, but if they are unused to this form of exercise stiffness will result.

It is a wise plan to prolong the bath gradually on each occasion, thus avoiding undue strain.

If you are thinking of spending a holiday by the sea, here are a few hints which should be borne in mind. Choose a moderately warm day for your swim instead of taking a plunge every day regardless of weather. Don't bathe on an excessively hot day, for the contrast between the heat and the cold water is too severe.

How to Avoid Colds

You may catch a chill if you stay in the water too long, and on no account remain in the water if you notice your skin is acquiring a bluish tinge. Do not keep on your wet bathing suit after the swim, in the hope that the sun will dry it—this procedure leads to colds.

Sunbathing is increasing in popularity year by year, but this beneficial accompaniment to the swim can be harmful unless you exercise care. Be as lazy as you like so that you can relax perfectly, but do not let yourself "roast" beneath the scorching rays of the sun.

A liberal rub down with oil will ensure that you won't blister, and remember that you have seen very

How Women Talk
ABOUT WHAT RUINS CLOTHES

MY CLOTHES WOULD LAST MUCH LONGER IF I USED A REALLY SAFE DEODORANT.

WHY MY DEAR—I THOUGHT EVERY SMART WOMAN KNEW NONSPI.

NONSPI OFFERS YOU THESE FOUR ESSENTIALS OF PERFECT PROTECTION AGAINST UNDER-ARM MOISTURE:

1. Nonspi has been pronounced entirely safe by highest medical authority.
2. Nonspi may be used all through by women whose delicate skin forces them to use deodorants with great caution, with only hair-way results.
3. Nonspi protection lasts from two to five days... and you can depend on it.
4. Nonspi's pHase-top-pool-it prevents contamination. And there's no dripping or waste with this patented Nonspi applicator.

Spare your clothes—and your nerves. Use Nonspi, the safe anti-perspirant and deodorant that is non-irritating to sensitive skin. No under-arm moisture to ruin fine fabrics. One application protects you from two to five days. Drug and department stores here carry NONSPI. $1.00 and $1.50. Try it in-day.

HAWKERS' LICENCES

Judging from the discussion on the subject by the Executive Committee of the Society for the Protection of Children, there would appear to be need for a definite statement of policy from the Government on the question of restriction of hawkers' licences. At the moment, the impression created is that the problem is one which is being dealt with piecemeal by various Departments, with no indication of a considered policy by the Government itself. On the matter of food hawkers, there must be general approval of the lines being followed by the Urban Council, if we except the sale of vegetables, which, admittedly grown under insanitary conditions, encounter no fresh danger by being hawked. Moreover, such commodities are invariably cooked before being consumed. The promiscuous hawking of uncooked food, and of drinks, is without question open to grave objections from the standpoint of public health. More often than not, unsold food is taken by the hawkers back to their home, to remain, maybe, all night under the bed or in some such unhygienic surroundings, and then brought out next day and offered for sale again. Obviously, danger lurks in such practices. But when we come to consider the question of other types of hawking, the objections do not seem so well founded. Nor is the precise authority of the departments pursuing a policy of restriction or abolition altogether clear. Whilst there may be good reason for controlling the number of hawkers, the fact should not be overlooked that this means of earning a livelihood is the only one open to a large section of the poorest classes of the community, notably widows, with families to support. To deprive them of this opportunity is only to encourage the begging nuisance, which has already assumed large proportions in the Colony and given it a bad name when compared with other parts of the Far East. The idea that the number of licences for cigarette hawkers, or for wine and tobacco shops, should be kept low because of the increased difficulty of detecting smugglers, is quite indefensible. It is somewhat akin to the reported advice of the police to goldsmiths' shops that they should shut down early in order to avoid the danger of being victimised by armed robbers. The business of the authorities is to keep track of smugglers in the one instance and to provide a reasonable measure of protection in the other. In the cases of cigarette hawking and wine and tobacco shop licences, supply and demand should be the ruling consideration when fixing the numbers. The whole hawking problem appears to need thorough investigation, followed by a clear statement of policy by the Government.

ALL the romantic associations connected with Midsummer's Eve cannot prevent us from experiencing a vague sense of depression over the fact that the sun has once again turned about upon his golden heel. It is true that the planet's circumambient atmosphere has accumulated so much warmth already that, despite the sun's recession, we still have before us the hottest months of the year; yet, even so, our bones harbour the knowledge that the flaunting days of June will soon begin to shorten towards the pinched winter hours of November and December!

Perhaps it was partly to put out of mind this abeyant trouble that men chose Midsummer for the occasion of such wild rejoicings, desperately attempting with song and dance to forget how transitory was the opulence of the new season. The summer solstice seems always to have been dedicated to pastoral celebrations. About the Mediterranean basin it was the custom of the people from every "little town by river or sea-shore" to go out to bathe at this time of the year.

The Church Fathers were not slow to appropriate these ablutional rites to their own ends, and possibly recalling a memorable verse in their sacred books, fixed upon June the 24th for the Nativity of St. John the Baptist, a saint whose baptismal associations might easily become identified with the older popular customs connected with the worship of fire and water!

"He must increase and I must decrease." To the minds of zealous Christians, absorbed in the mysteries of the new faith, it seemed reasonable to apply such prophetic sounding words to the triumph of the Church of Christ and the symbolical defeat of the sun, with his passage across the heavens becoming each day less wide.

THERE is no doubt that Midsummer's Night is the most psychic, the most haunted, night of the year. Shakespeare understood this. It is why he named his play "A Midsummer Night's Dream." It is a night renowned for supernatural occurrences.

For centuries it was considered imprudent to go to sleep on this evening, for it was during its bewitched hours that the souls of the living destined to die within the twelve months, left their dreaming bodies to glide away to the exact spot where they would endure their death agony, whether at home or in the fields.

And these rehearsal journeys by poor doomed ghosts could, so it was supposed, be observed by wary people who remained stubbornly awake on this treacherous evening.

But it is not for those of us who love earth-life to trouble our heads with occult rumours of this kind. Confucius, when questioned as to the attitude that his followers should adopt towards the superstitious beliefs of his age, answered: "A wise man should be careful to respect supernatural beings but at the same time he should be alert to keep out of their way."

Surely the peculiar properties of this most poetical of all days in the year should be put to a better use than for quinqueting and prying into forbidden secrets. As long as we know enough to carry bread to our mouths just so long can we be happy. Let us emulate the Athenian lovers and so wandering off into the green woods. There is grace to be had from such happy trances with our "sweet-hearts of St. John."

IN medieval times it was the custom for love-sick bachelors on Midsummer Eves to frequent some secret woodland recess, where in a silence delicate and profound the race of ferns dream away their unobtrusive existence.

It was the plan of these bachelors to hold their hands under the drooping fronds so that

If possible they might catch some of the brown seeds that freckle the undersides of these primitive growths.

"We have the receipt of fern-seed, we walk invisible," cried Falstaff and his crew at Gadshill, and there has been a persistent tradition that these seeds, if secured without shaking the fern, possess the power of making a human being invisible.

WITH these woodland "hundreds and thousands" fast enclosed within his fist a boy can safely visit his true love's bower and see her where she lies, as dainty as a fawn deer asleep in the moonlight.

But for a fortunate lad such saucy shifts are unrequited. He has won the heart of his true love and can continually be with her. He can watch the summer winds play through her hair, hair that smells as sweet as a sound of wings amongst summer leaves.

He can observe how the light of the stars edges her wrists and lips with a glint more pure than gold or silver; he can hear her whispers of love in the dim light, whisps softer than a sound of wings amongst summer leaves.

It will not matter where such children wander, on Midsummer's Eve they will be entranced. On this night the countryside has the appearance of a Garden of Adon's.

Titania, Queen of the Fairies, in Reinhardt's film of Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

In every shire hay-making is in progress, and the aroma of the sun-tanned grass is being liberated by the midnight dew. What a soft balm must rise to the mackerel clouds of Midsummer motionless for so long, over the island of England set in her silver seal! This year Midsummer's Eve is likely to be more than ever eerie. It falls three days after an eclipse of the sun, and upon a night when the moon is too young even to be seen so that lovers wise enough to turn out of the noisy roads must find their way over stile and along halter-path by star-shine.

How still the pastures can be in the sacred night! Patiently they lie waiting for the farm workers under the morrow's blaze of noon to complete their task of husbanding the rich animal fodder.

It was the extraordinary beauty of a freshly mowed hayfield abandoned at twilight that so stirred the imagination of Matthew Arnold. In one of his poems he describes the hush of such an English meadow being suddenly disturbed by Dionysos and his rout.

"The business of the day is done,
The last-left hay-maker is gone,
And from the thyme upon the height
And from the elder-blossom white
And pale dog-roses in the hedge
And from the mint-plant in the sedge,
In puffs of balm the night-air blows
The perfume which the day forgoes.

Gaily their pine-staff green
Tossing in air,
Loose o'er their shoulders white
Showering their hair—
See! the wild Maenads
Break from the wood,
Youth and Iacchus
Maddening their blood."

Perhaps it was the possibility of finding themselves surprised by just such an invasion which used to prompt young maids to carry with them a spray of St. John's Wort on this night, as a sure protection against any familiarities from fairy populations.

INDEED, one demon-lover, feeling the virtue of this blessed plant acting against his cherished intentions, is said to have exclaimed in his frustrated vexation,

"Gin ye wud be leman mine
Lay aside the St. John's wort and the vervaine."

But more efficacious even than St. John's wort—so beloved by Saint Columba—is the inconspicuous simple known as dill. If this herb be pinned to "freck" it will serve as an absolute talisman against all the pretty mischances incident to Midsummer's Eve.

"Whoever wearth vervaine or dill
May be bold to sleep on any hill."

To-day's Thought
It is impossible to enjoy idling thoroughly unless one has plenty of work to do.

A "Thriller" of Fifty Years
Ago

SOMETHING of the old "thrill" is experienced even now as I open the slim, paper-covered volume and allow myself to be caught and carried along by the impetuous style of the writer, although I first read it half a century ago!

Born and reared in a remote part of the country, where small opportunity for cultivating a taste for literature, for books were scarce, and the only available reading of the lighter sort was the slipshod fiction purveyed by the weekly newspaper intervals to our northern shores. Most of the great masters of fiction were only a name. Certain of the less interesting of the Waverley novels had been dipped into, but the lengthy introductions had proved a drawback, and the books had been wisely put aside in the hope that appreciation would come with the years—a hope, I may add, which has been fully realised.

Added to a craving for books was a vague yearning after the literary life itself. No other life seemed worth living! This craving had been stimulated by the acceptance by a boys' magazine of one or two little tales which had been submitted to the editor in fear and trembling; and the day I received a copy of the magazine containing my first effusion (together with a cheque) was a day long to be remembered.

It was about this time that there came into my hands, by the merest chance, a stray copy of the Bristol Times and Mirror, a paper I had never seen before and have not seen since. In scanning the pages of the "Journal," I was lighted upon the "Death of Hugh Conway." I had heard of a successful writer of that name, but had no opportunity of reading any of his books; consequently I perused the newspaper report of "Hugh Conway's" romantic career with the deepest interest.

A Happy Chance

Here was a man over whom literature had early cast its spell, a man who had served his apprenticeship to the dearly loved craft, experiencing the inevitable pang of disappointment that fell to the lot of the literary tyro, yet persevering until at length the coveted goal had been reached; when, just as fame and fortune were within his grasp, he was cut down in the prime of manhood. And what a success his was!

A tale entitled "Called Back," the longest he had as yet attempted, written for Mr. Arrowsmith, of Bristol, with a view to recouping that publisher for the loss sustained in connection with a Christmas annual to which Conway had contributed, was destined to raise the latter almost at a bound to the high peak of literary fame.

At first the book fell flat. Its "get up" was anything but attractive, and its author was as yet unknown. One day, some weeks after its publication, Mr. Labouchere, when setting out upon a railway journey, happened to pick up a copy of the book at the bookstall, and slipped it into his pocket to read in the train. Something, however, diverted his attention, and he forgot all about his purchase. On reaching home, late at night, he came upon the book, and, sitting down, he listlessly glanced at the opening page. His attention became riveted, and he read on—nor did he put the book aside until he had reached the end. The following issue of "Trails" contained a glowing notice of "Called Back," and the success of the book was assured. "Everybody," said the newspaper report, "read this thrilling and cleverly devised story. The sale of the book became immense, and for months several machines were kept going night and day printing copies; while from all parts there came requests for the successful author to contribute tales to journals and magazines."

A Career Cut Short

Encouraged by the phenomenal success of "Called Back," Hugh Conway quickly produced a second novel, entitled "Dark Days," which ran into almost as many editions as its predecessor. Feeling that his future as a writer was now fully assured, Conway (whose real name, by the way, was F. J. Fergus) retired from the business which he had been conducting in Bristol and removed to London with the intention of devoting himself entirely to literary work.

But, alas! the smile of fortune was soon to be withdrawn. While abroad in search of material for a new romance, he contracted a serious illness which terminated fatally, and his remains were interred in the English cemetery at Nice.

The reader will readily imagine how all this appeared to one like myself, and with what avidity I procured "Called Back," and the other works from Hugh Conway's pen. Thereafter I tried hard to obtain a portrait of the deceased author together with his autograph, or a scrap of something in his handwriting, but in this I was at first unsuccessful.

Some time later I gathered from a paragraph in a copy of The Scotsman which a friend had sent me that a tablet with portrait in bas-relief had been erected to his memory in Bristol Cathedral, and I immediately registered a vow that somehow, I knew not how, sometime, I knew not when, I would see that tablet for myself.

Years passed, and I became a unit in the swarming life of a great city. One day in the summer of 1900 I found myself in Bristol, having been called thither in an unexpected manner. Bristol! Hugh Conway!

Lions Go On The Dole

Berlin, June 15. Thirty lions, "orphans" by the arrest of Alfred Schneider, Germany's leading lion tamer and circus owner, are receiving "dole" from the Welfare Department of Bonn Council (Rhine-land). Schneider is accused of fraudulent bankruptcy. His circus has been closed. Bonn has also taken under its wing a troupe of negroes and 130 other employees.

New Cure For Dread Disease

Baltimore, June 12. PHYSICIANS at Johns Hopkins Hospital have revealed that they are exploring the possibilities of a new treatment for gonorrhea—a treatment simple in application and sensationally successful in some of its early experimental phases.

Until exhaustive research and experimentation has been completed, the physicians warned that their discovery cannot be considered a cure or even a safe treatment for the disease.

The new treatment entails the use of the drug sulfamylamide in tablet form taken internally. In the few and inconclusive tests made thus far patients have responded favourably to the treatment after only three or four days.

In some of the cases patients who were treated with 20-grain doses of the drug four times a day showed a complete absence of the gonococcus germ. While this seemingly would establish the efficacy of the drug, the experimenters warned that they have yet to establish what will be its effect on the blood and on the patient otherwise.

It was pointed out that the drug has a tendency to affect the hemoglobin of the blood and until now this effect is, and whether it is dangerous, no general use should be made of the discovery.

COST IS NEGLIGIBLE

Should success finally attend the experiments, physicians here said it will mark one of the most remarkable advances in medical science in recent years. The addition to the short treatment period and the painless nature of the application, its cost is negligible. By contrast with the long and expensive treatments now used, the sulfamylamide tablets cost only a few cents each.

Individual physicians working on the discovery asked that their identity be kept secret until the results of their findings are published in the Journal of the American Medical Association. It was learned that the use of sulfamylamide in treatment of various forms of streptococcus infections led to experimentation as to its effect on gonorrhea.

So far about forty cases have been treated with the drug and seeming success has been obtained in nearly 90 per cent, with acute cases responding better than chronic ones.

Other research in treatment of gonorrhea has included the induction of artificial fever which in some cases has provided cures in as short a period as two days but this method is regarded as not entirely perfected.

WHIST DRIVE IS GAMING JUDGE DISMISSES WOMAN'S ACTION

A prize won at whist drive was held to be a gaming transaction by Judge Watkins at Bournemouth County Court and he struck out an action saying, "I have no jurisdiction to try it."

Mrs. Louisa Catherine Price, of Old Christchurch-road, Bournemouth, claimed £7 10s, the value of the first prize, which she alleged had been wrongfully withheld from her by Major Thomas Wombwell, Secretary of the Club, Christchurch, the defendant.

She stated that she was handed the second prize, value £2, but returned it. Another woman player with a lower score was given the first prize. Judge Watkins said, "The only question is whether this action is tenable at law. I don't think there is any doubt about it. This is a gaming transaction and I have no jurisdiction to try it."

He added that in his opinion Mrs. Price should have been awarded first prize at the time.

BIG AIR PLAN FOR EMPIRE

AN air defence scheme for the protection of the British Empire has been planned by the Imperial Conference.

The strength of all existing overseas R.A.F. centres is to be greatly increased, and new bases are to be established.

North.—Suez Canal, Red Sea, India.

West.—Sudan, Kenya Colony, South Africa.

South.—Australia and New Zealand.

East.—Singapore, Hongkong, possessions in the Pacific.

Development of the plans has already begun.

Air Chief Marshal Sir Robert Brooke-Popham, governor of Kenya, is working out a scheme to establish in the colony a regular Air Force garrison and auxiliary air force with pilots and mechanics locally enrolled, and a flying-bomb squadron based at Mombasa.

The increase in strength will begin this year, and the scheme should be completed within two years.

The Dominions and Colonies involved will contribute towards the cost of the scheme.

Hollywood Non-Existent, Says Rival Movie City

Hollywood, June 10. Culver city, where part of the movies are made, launched a drive to steal the name of Hollywood away from the film capital, which isn't really Hollywood at all, but only the glamour section of Los Angeles.

Tantamount to telling a child there is no Santa Claus, Culver city's Chamber of Commerce informed the world's film fans that Hollywood is not an incorporated city, has no post office of its own, no city government—and 60 per cent of the movies are made in Culver city, any way.

Announcing that petitions are being circulated to change Culver city's name to Hollywood, Blaine Walker, president of the Chamber, asserted: "We feel that town is entitled to the credit that goes with these motion pictures."

"Films have always been branded as from Hollywood," he said. "It's about time we got into the driver's seat and took credit for the films produced in Culver city. We believe the city voters will back the name change 100 per cent."

Walker, formerly an ace cameraman and Pacific Coast head of the Newsreel organisation, was known as one of the great "gag" men of the early Newsreel industry. He insisted that the pass at Hollywood's name, however, is no gag. Hollywood, he pointed out, legally ceased to be a city in 1910 and became just another slice of Los Angeles.

Through incorporation, the sixth class city of Culver city, he asserted, perfectly free to take the name.

Hollywood, non-existent though it may be, promised a fight.

"If this is a publicity stunt, it's a good one," snorted Carl Bush, secretary of the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce, in the absence of President Otto K. Olsen, the man who rents out the searchlights for island super-colossal.

"But if it is a serious attempt to pirate our name, it will fail."

"It will fail even if it is successful, proclaimed Bush, warning up for the public reaction will be booming against Culver city. Hollywood will always be Hollywood."

He disputed Culver city's claim to 60 per cent of the movies. Culver city has only Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Selznick International, Hal Roach and several independent studios, he pointed out, whereas Hollywood has all but four of the other major studios and some 100 independent ones.

Meanwhile Culver city's Chamber of Commerce unanimously endorsed the name-change and made shift for the time being with the slogan:

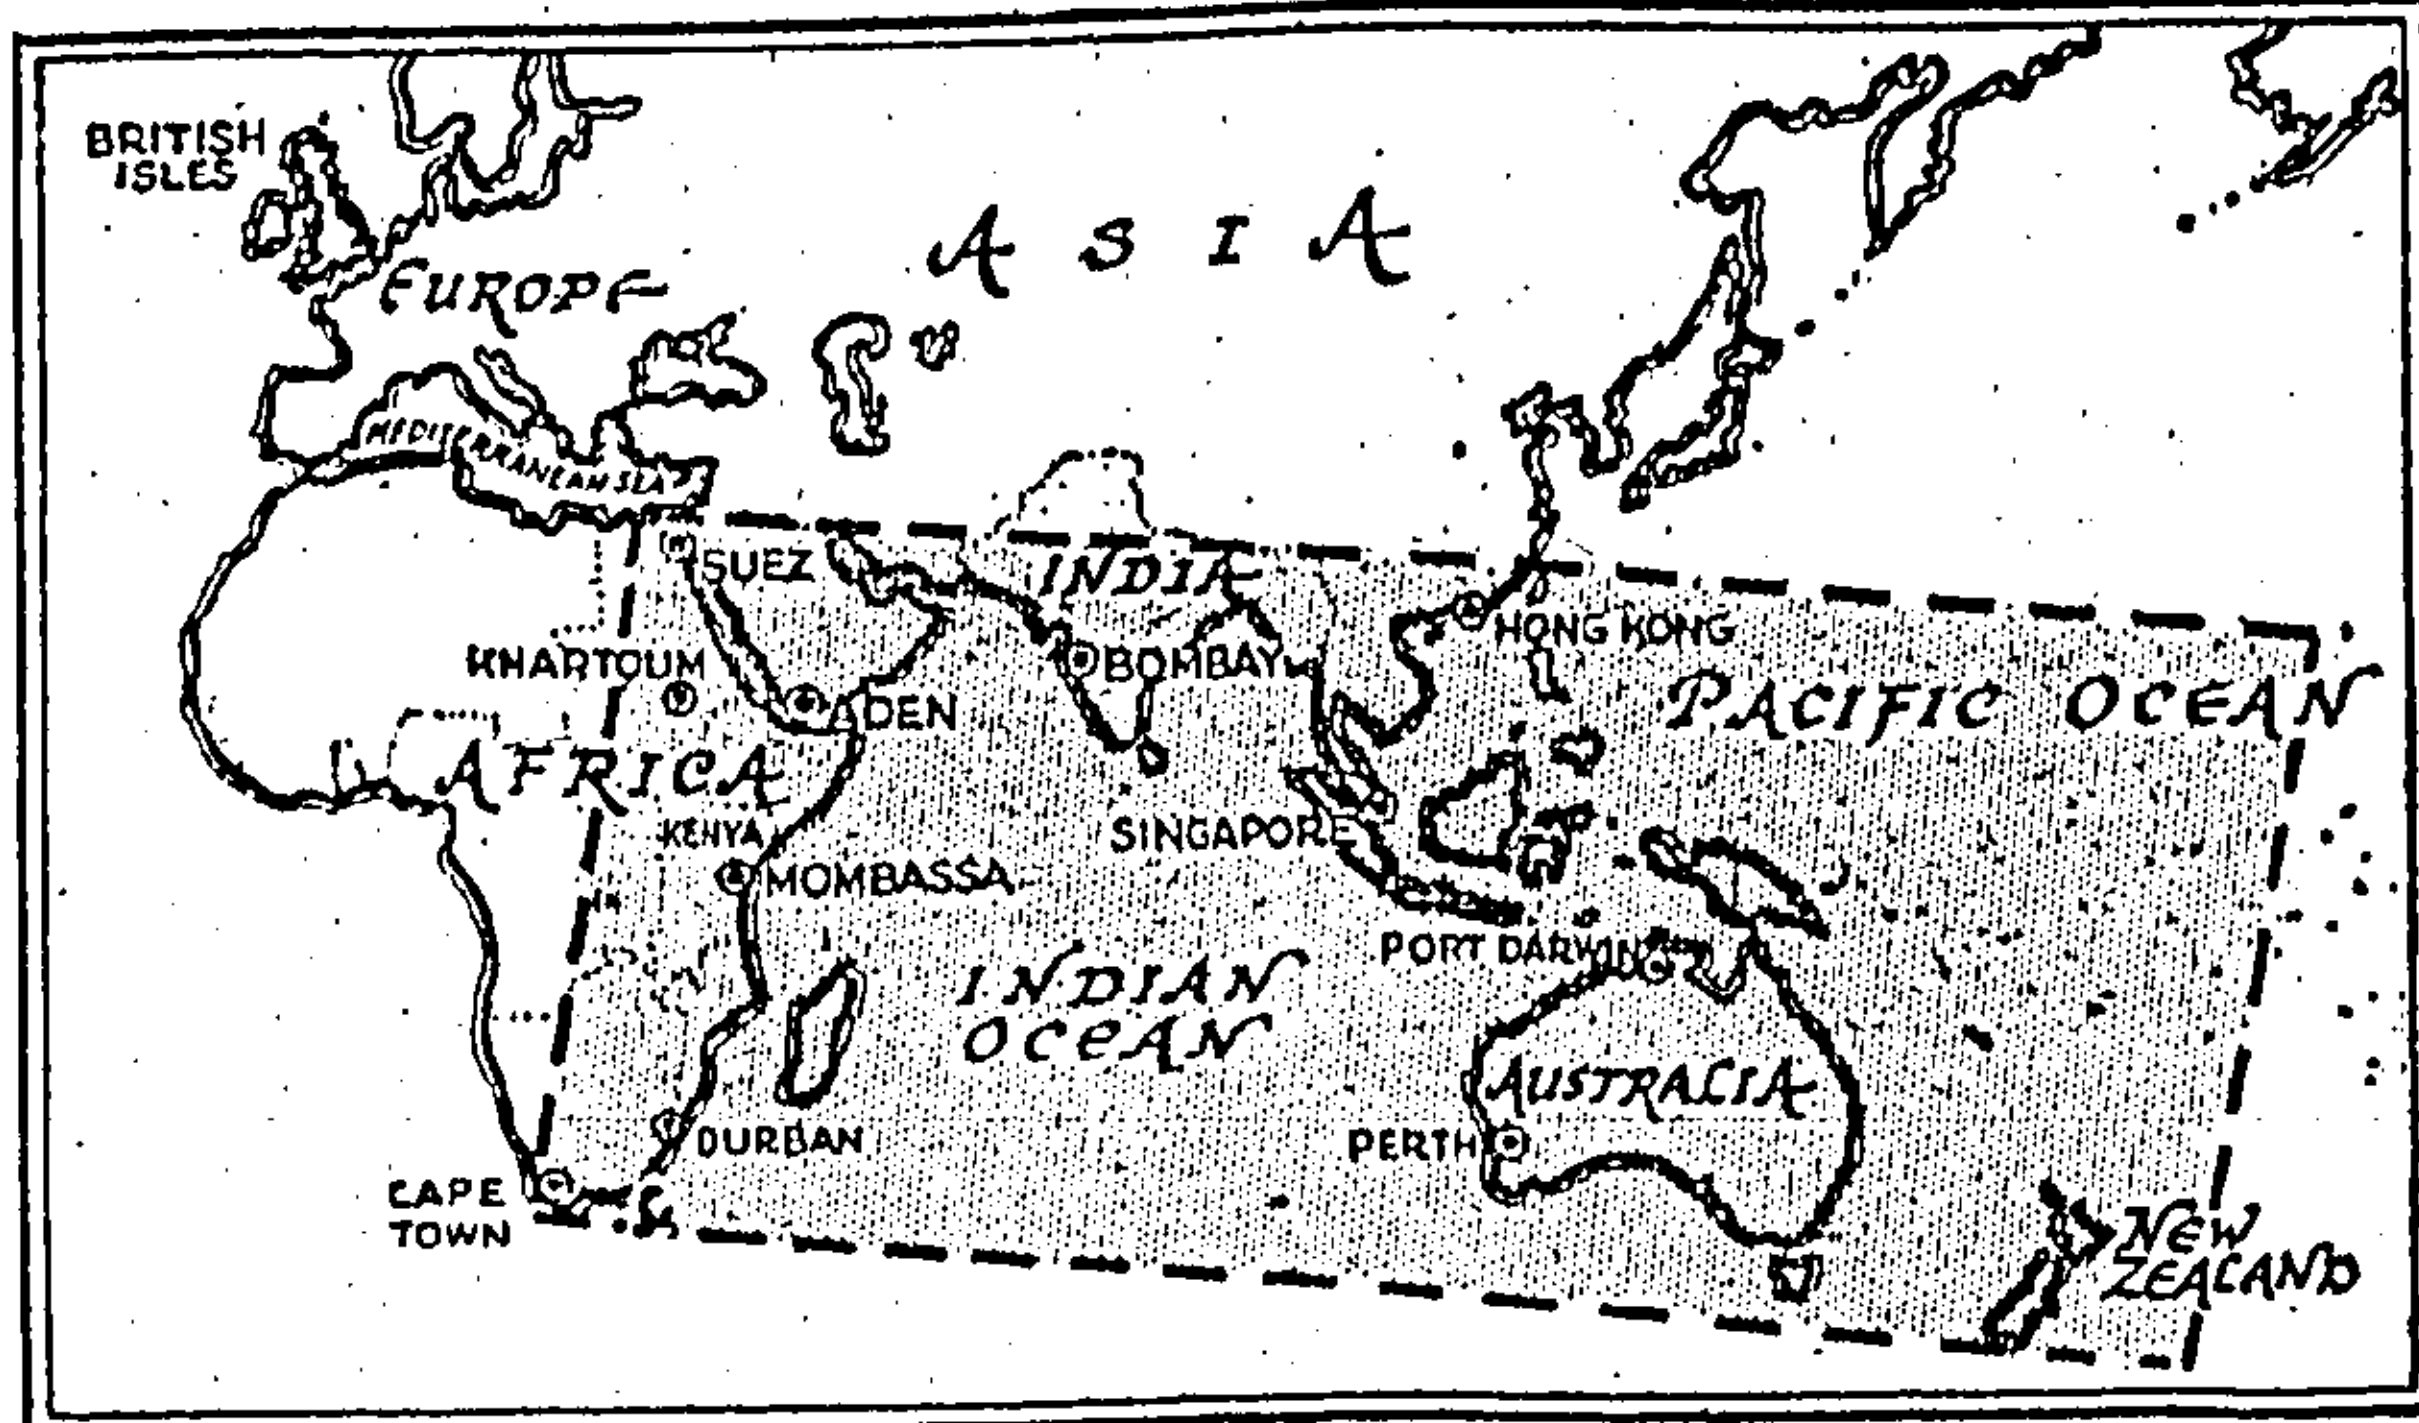

"Culver city, where Hollywood's movies are made."—United Press.

Astors Lose Claim To £4,000,000 Taxes

New York, June 15.

Viscount Astor and Major J. J. Astor have lost the suit in which for eleven years they have been trying to recover £4,000,000 paid to the U.S. Government in taxes after the death of their father in 1910.

The taxes were levied on two trust funds created for the two sons. An appeal is to be lodged.—Reuter.

Molly Castle's Hollywood Letter

4-Year-Old Host to Movie Stars

FAMOUS film star mothers were the guests of a four-year-old boy at a strange Hollywood party.

Ricky, little son of Richard Arlen and his wife, acted as "host" at the inauguration of a new custom, the celebration of "Mothers' Day" by the film colony.

It was an unusual gathering—for Hollywood—that met at the Arlens' lovely home at Toluca Lake.

Never before had so many children of famous stars been at a party together, with their parents.

The guests included Mary Astor and her daughter, Mrs. Bing Crosby with her twin sons and daughter, Mrs. Edward G. Robinson and son; Mrs. Robert Young and daughter, Virginia Bruce Gilbert and daughter, June Collyer and her son.

WORKED HARD

Joan Crawford, famous M.G.M. player, is often seen in rival studios these days.

But M.G.M. don't worry. They know that Joan is only on "foreign" sets to canvass members for the Screen Actors' Guild.

Joan is a good-hearted girl who has had a long, long climb. She doesn't mind anyone knowing that she worked as a servant girl in a convent, was an obscure line dancer in a Kansas City cafe, a small-part player in her early Hollywood days.

She's proud of it because she's gained in every way since then—except in weight; she's thirty-five pounds lighter. What she does mind is that people think she needs reminding. She minds that.

HER LITTLE THEATRE

Joan may be tops now, but she still works hard. She and Frankfort have an acting laboratory: lots of mirrors, and books on acting, and a little theatre in which she can try out her screen roles on her friends before she tries them out on her directors.

Another Lawsuit On Rasputin Film

"Rasputin the Mad Monk," the talkie film, is the subject of another lawsuit expected to come before the Courts shortly.

An action, in which damages are claimed by Prince Alexis Pavlovich Chagodoff and Princess Elena Chagodoff for alleged libel has been set down for hearing in the special jury list of the King's Bench Division.

The defendants are Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Pictures Ltd., by whom the film was produced four years ago.

"Prince Chagodoff" and "Princess Natasha" were characters portrayed by John Barrymore and Diana Wynyard.

The defence is a denial of the libel allegations.

£25,000 DAMAGES

The action recalls the libel suit brought before the late Mr. Justice Avory and a Jury in March 1934 in which Princess Irina Alexandrovna Youssouff of Russia was awarded £25,000 damages against Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in respect of the same film.

In that action her husband, Prince Youssouff, gave dramatic evidence of how he lured Rasputin to a cellar at his place at St. Petersburg and killed him in the interests of Russia.

An appeal by the film company against that award failed.

It was later announced that all libel litigation concerning the film had been disposed of, so far as Princess Youssouff was concerned, by an agreement between her and the company.

British "Pimpernel" Returns Again

WHO IS BRITISH SECRET AGENT, "D.N.-27"?

His espionage activities have thrown the Soviet Government into sudden panic.

Will he prove to be Sidney George Reilly, M.C., master spy who acted as the "Scarlet Pimpernel" of the Russian Revolution?

Alarmed by the growth of espionage and sabotage in their midst, the Soviet Government recently issued details concerning "D.N.-27," whom they are out to capture.

DEATH A "BLIND"

Now the belief has arisen that "D.N.-27" may be the mysterious Captain Reilly.

Although his death was officially announced in 1925, Reilly is reported to have been seen at intervals since in a Russian prison, in a Paris cafe, and in Odessa.

Many of his friends are certain that the official report of his death was merely a "blind" in keeping with the whole fantastic career of "Reckless Reilly."

The description given by the Soviet Government concerning operator "D.N.-27" tallies in many respects with that of Reilly.

In 1910 he established the first Russian aerodrome. Although considerably over military age, he took a commission in the R.A.F. in 1917. He subsequently performed hazardous intelligence work on behalf of the British Secret Service.

During the Revolution he assisted hundreds of Russian aristocrats and former officers in the Tsarist armies, together with their families, to escape the Red persecution by smuggling them across the Finnish frontier.

Then his identity was discovered, and he had a hairbreadth escape from death. Later he returned to Russia and carried on espionage work.

Fez Dancer On Murder Charges

An amazing story of how a Moroccan dancing woman is alleged to have murdered a woman living in her house, and locked four young girls in a tiny room, subjecting them to torture, will be told shortly in a murder trial at Fez, in French Morocco.

The dancer, Moulay Hassan, who rose from poverty to wealth, will appear on charges of ordering her servant to beat to death a woman named Cherian, one of a group whom she held as prisoners at her home.

Further evidence will be called to show that Moulay Hassan was responsible for the deaths of some four or five young girls, who at different times lived in her house.

HUTTON'S MAGNIFICENT INNINGS OF 271 NOT OUT

On The Eve Of His Test Cricket Debut YORKSHIRE AND SUSSEX WIN EASILY MANY CENTURIES AND SOME FINE BOWLING

London, June 22.
Hutton, the young Yorkshire batsman, who has been scoring runs with marked consistency this season, indulged in a brilliant innings at the expense of the Derbyshire bowlers when Yorkshire beat the champions by an innings and 99.

Hutton compiled a faultless 271 not out and was chiefly instrumental in Yorkshire being able to declare at 325 for 4.

Derbyshire made but a half-hearted response to this imposing score. Turner (5 for 45) dismissed the side for 145 in their first innings, and although Smith scored 153 in the second knock, the champions were again all out for 281.

Sussex maintained pace with the Tykes by beating Hampshire by 153 runs.

Hampshire led by 19 runs on the first innings, but Sussex scored freely in their second attempt declaring at 308 for 7. John Langridge contributed 117. Then James Langridge produced his finest bowling form and by taking 7 for 29 helped to dismiss Hampshire for 136.

Fine batting by Iddon (149) and Paynter (95) allowed Lancashire to score 469 in reply to Leicester's 411 for 8 declared. Berry (120) and Dempster (92) played havoc with the Lancashire attack.

Best bowling performances came from Clay of Glamorgan, who in the course of the match against Warwickshire, took 11 for 152 runs, and Sims, the Middlesex bowler, playing for M.C.C. against Cambridge University, who captured 11 for 137.

Andrews also bowled effectively for Somerset against Kent, taking in all 10 for 93. Kent were hopelessly outplayed, being beaten by 419 runs after dismissal for the paltry totals of 110 for 73.

Eastman was another bowler to earn distinction, capturing ten wickets for Essex against Northants for 77 runs in the course of two innings. Essex won a low-scoring match by 34 runs.

The detailed scores and individual performances, as culled by Reuters, follow:

COUNTY CHAMPIONSHIP
Lancashire (469) beat Leicestershire (411/8 dec. and 64/1) on first innings
Glamorgan (421 and 92/1 dec.) beat Warwickshire (313 and 144/7) on first innings
Yorkshire (525/4 dec.) beat Derbyshire (145 and 281) by an innings and 99 runs
Sussex (288 and 308/7 dec.) beat

Hampshire (307 and 136) by 153 runs

Somerset (344 and 246/6 dec.) beat Kent (116 and 73) by 419 runs

GOLF COSTS COTTON £800 A YEAR

(By F. J. C. Pignon)

Southend, May 27.
It may surprise the ordinary club golfer to know that there are professionals who estimate that expenses in playing in all the big tournaments amount to between £700 and £1,000 a year.

I discovered this when talking to Henry Cotton in his suite in one of the leading hotels here to-day.

Cotton had declared his intention of withdrawing from the Southend professional tournament because the prize he could win after two bad rounds was not worth while.

"My opinion," he said, "is that I should be allowed to cut my losses just as anyone else in business. Golf is my business."

"I like to live nicely and treat my caddy well, and I find I must win a £50 prize to meet my expenses at a tournament that lasts about a week. I am not taking into consideration my

WHAT OTHERS SPEND

Other professionals with whom I talked did not estimate their expenses quite so high as Cotton.

P. J. Mahon, the young Irishman who was leading the field when the Southend tournament was abandoned yesterday, said he thought he spent about £2 10s. a day during a tournament.

J. J. Bussan, a Ryder Cup player, estimated the cost at about £3.

Even at a modest estimate it seems that a professional who regularly competes in tournament play must win between £200 and £300 a year to show a profit on his golfing skill.

The wealth of Campbell rose up before him at Harringay, as all along he feared it would do some day. It changed him from the grinner and the snarler and the showman into a very ordinary human being whose thoughts were all for the opponent he had struck down.

Max Baer is not one of the killers of the ring. I happen to know that when he has a man on the verge of crushing defeat he loathes delivering further blows.

That explains why, after the second round against Foord, when the South African had been down for two counts, he developed a casual mood that proved exasperating to some of the spectators.

He realised that his snappy punches, made more cruel by a flick of the wrist that only the very few are able to cultivate, were rocking Foord to his heels. He paid no attention to go in and finish it, although it must be added that when he had Foord in a helpless condition he threw in all the punches in his repertoire.

Cotton considers that in big-money prize tournaments only the first 10 or 30 should receive prizes instead of 60 or more as is the case at present. They would then be worth winning.

PROPOSAL FOR HEAVIER BALL LIKELY TO BE POPULAR

London, June 12.
A heavier football was proposed by the Football Association when the International F. A. Board held its annual meeting at Llandudno to-day.

The proposal seeks to alter the weight of the ball from the prescribed limits of 13 to 15 ounces to 14 to 16 ounces.

Manufacturers of balls will be pleased by the move to increase the weight. An official of a prominent firm of makers said: "Light balls are in disavowal. They go out of shape quickly and are difficult to manipulate in a high wind. Clubs are always asking us for heavier balls. I am sure that they will give more satisfaction all round." At the moment many minor clubs are playing with a heavier ball.

MAX BAER SAW GHOST AS HE WON

(By Trevor Wignall)

Three was a scene at Harringay last month the like of which has never before been witnessed in a British ring.

It came in the ninth round of the heavyweight fight between Max Baer and Ben Foord.

The South African, beaten into a state of semi-sensibility, was down on the canvas for his fifth count. What consciousness was in him automatically prompted him to make an effort to rise.

He was helplessly in the act of striving to do this when one of his seconds, waving a towel, attempted to clamber into the ring to give the usual signal of surrender—a humane effort for it was clear to all present that further punishment might have had serious results.

Near to his own corner stood Baer, the wide smile washed from his face, his gloves down to his sides, his expression extremely serious—for about the first time during the contest—and his eyes wearing a look of pained apprehension.

With a supreme effort Foord managed to erect himself. But only for an instant; he had not properly reached his full height when stamina left him for good.

Staggering drunkenly, he contrived to roll a few yards, and then pitched over in the manner of a swimmer diving into a pool.

With an extraordinary gurgle that few could have heard owing to the noise, Baer bounded into action. He was over with Foord in quicker time than it takes to tell. Swiftly he raised the fallen fighter's head until it was pillowed on his arm, and with almost the same motion he bent down so that he appeared to be kissing and murmuring to the man he had knocked out.

Only Baer, his brother "Buddy," his manager Anell Hoffman, and perhaps myself knew what was behind this astonishing spectacle. Max Baer, the Playboy of Pugilism—never has he been more than he did last night—was seeing a ghost. The ghost of Frankie Campbell, the heavy-weight who died after a California fight with Baer nearly seven years ago.

The death of Campbell nearly stopped the career of Baer. He was so affected by the happening and by the subsequent court proceedings that for months he swore he would never again pull on a glove.

The wealth of Campbell rose up before him at Harringay, as all along he feared it would do some day. It changed him from the grinner and the snarler and the showman into a very ordinary human being whose thoughts were all for the opponent he had struck down.

Max Baer is not one of the killers of the ring. I happen to know that when he has a man on the verge of crushing defeat he loathes delivering further blows.

'Varsity Player Hits Record 212

Brighter cricketer G. R. Langdale, Nottingham University, hit 212 (not out) in 120 minutes—a record—against Nottingham Forest last month at Trent Bridge. Four 6s, thirty-five 4s.
Previous Nottingham club cricket best was 205 not out, made two seasons ago by Payton, now playing for Cambridge University. Langdale had three games with Derbyshire last season. He is also a first-rate bowler.

Amazing Long Jumping Reading Man Leaps To Fame

(By Fred Dartnell)

London, May 28.
To me nothing is more remarkable in connection with athletics than the cheery way in which the Oxford athletes year after year take their gruel in the annual meet at Hilly Road with the A.A.A. team. Yesterday they were beaten by 83 points to 43 points, and they only won three and drew another of the 14 events on the card. Four years ago the Dark Blues finished fifty-fifty in a match of 12 events, but to go back no further than 1933 the A.A.A. have actually gained 68 firsts to 20.

One-sided it may be, but the Oxford meeting always provides some story or other out of the ordinary. Yesterday it was the long jumpers who were in the limelight. The sudden heat and glorious sunshine may have had something to do with it, but it was simply amazing that between them W. E. N. Breach, the Reading man, and K. S. Duncan, the old Oxonian, should inside an hour have contributed seven jumps of over 23ft.

Both men beat C. B. Fry's ground record and one time world record of 23ft. 6½in., made over forty years ago, while Breach, who won with 23ft. 11in., actually cleared 24ft. 2½in., equal to Harold Abrahams' British record. This jump, however, was disallowed like that of 24ft. made by Duncan, because the competitors had gone a little beyond the taking-off board.

Breach and Duncan will renew rivalry at the White City on Saturday, when they represent their respective clubs in the "Kinnaird" Trophy tournament.

Pennington, with dual wins in the sprints over C. A. Ward, caused a small crowd to cheer times that equalled the Oxford track record. He did 21.8sec. for the furlong and for the first time in his career got inside even for the 100yds. by doing 9.8sec. Jack London, the coloured Poly sprinter, did this for the A.A.A. nine years ago.

FINLAY'S DOUBLE
Another track record, that in the 120yds. hurdles of 14.8sec., made by C. F. Stanwood for Oxford, was equalled by Don Finlay, who was absent from last year's corresponding meet. He also won the 220yds. low hurdles in 24.6sec., and was not pressed in either case.

We saw a fine half-mile by B. F. McCabe (1min. 50.2sec.), very good time for a first time out, but McNair, the Oxford first string, finished a small crowd to cheer times that equalled last year's corresponding meet. He also won the 220yds. low hurdles in 24.6sec., and was not pressed in either case.

J. G. Barnes ran a beautiful quarter for the visitors in 48.7sec., only a tenth of a second short of the track record made by Bevil Rudd in 1920 and W. Roberts two years ago. Weir was second, beaten by 8 yards, and is a little worried, I hear, by his old thigh trouble.

Howland just missed equalling his weight record, 40ft. 0½in., by the odd half-inch, but E. M. Blakeaway put up fresh javelin figures, with 170ft. 10in. Record was also broken in the high jump by J. L. Newman, who cleared 6ft. 3in.

AMERICA'S CUP RACE PROSPECTS ENDEAVOUR IS DANGEROUS

By Henry Super
United Press Staff Correspondent

New York.
A potential defender of the America's Cup, Harold S. Vanderbilt's Ranger was launched a few weeks ago and yachtsmen anticipate that this will be the boat which will be called upon to make one of the sternest defences of the historic yachting trophy in the 85 years it has been in the possession of the United States.

The outlook for the races to be run off Newport, R.I., in July, according to yachting experts, is the most serious in years because T. O. M. Sopwith, British challenger, is determined to win the trophy back for England.

In 1934 Sopwith, with his speedy Endeavour, gave America a scare in losing Vanderbilt's Rainbow. Endeavour's failure to win was due to the fact that Sopwith was a beginner at the high-powered game of America's Cup racing, and his mistakes gave Vanderbilt a chance to snatch victory from what seemed inevitable defeat.

SOPWITH MORE EXPERIENCED

This year, Sopwith's challenge is a much more thorough and methodical business. He is doing everything to win. Charles E. Nicholson, who designed Sopwith's first challenger, has built a new boat—Endeavour II—which is believed even faster than her predecessor.

CREW TO BE PROFESSIONAL

Sopwith also is more experienced at the game and he is unlikely to repeat the mistakes that made it possible for Vanderbilt to win in 1934. With him as relief helmsman this year will be Sir Ralph Gore, one of England's best racing helmsmen. Before the mast, too, Sopwith will probably be in better shape than before, as he will carry a professional crew.

Instead of amateurs who, in 1934, weren't up to Vanderbilt's professionals. Ranger, of course, will have to prove her right to defend the trophy. Rainbow, now owned by Chandler Hovey, has been in the trials and so will Gerard B. Lambert's Yankee, survivor of the 1930 fleet of cup yachts.

F.A.'s £19,491 Deficit THREE BIG GRANTS

A deficiency of £19,491 was shown on the general account of the Football Association presented at the 34th annual general meeting of the Association in London on June 7.

An official of the F.A. said that the large deficiency was due chiefly to the fact that during the year £5,000 had been given to the King George Memorial Fund. £5,000 to the Football League Mutual Insurance Federation, and £4,000 to the British Sports and Games Association. The deficiency last year was £8,000.

On the investment revenue account the figure is lower than last year by £2,464, but a profit of £1,461 resulted from international matches.

England v. Ireland at Stoke brought in £2,761; England v. Hungary at Highbury, £2,858.

The F.A. received £1,181 in percentages of "gates" from replays in the Challenge Cup; £6,872 from the Cup semi-finals, and £15,511 (nett) from the final. The finalists each took £5,038, and the semi-finalists £1,304 each.

The Amateur Cup Final realised £1,712, the finalists taking £570 each.

FOOTBALL LEAGUE MAKE £16 PROFIT

The Football League made a profit of £16 odd last year.

Among proposals by the League Management Committee are that talent money for wins in F.A. Cup matches be increased to £4, £6 and £8 in the fourth, fifth and sixth rounds respectively, and suggests the "bonus" be raised from £4 to £10 in the semi-finals and from £8 to £12 in the final.

F.A. XI'S "PERFECT" TOUR MR. S. F. ROUS ON SCANDINAVIAN SUCCESS

Mr. S. F. Rous, Secretary of the F.A., returning to London after the F.A. team's tour in Scandinavia, said that the tour had been perfect from every point of view. The players blended on the field and the whole party fraternised perfectly throughout the trip.

"Everywhere the hospitality was magnificent," said Mr. Rous. "The heavy defeats were accepted by our opponents in the best possible spirit, and not one action by players on or off the field did anything but redound great credit to them all."

Mr. Rous added that Norway was the best of the three teams England beat, but that Finland came nearest to scoring.

The four Arsenal players, Male, Haggood, Copping, and Kirchen, remained in Sweden to join their club, which is also touring.

GERMANY SAYS BRADDOCK IS AFRAID OF SCHMELING

SEVERE CRITICISM OF BREACH OF CONTRACT

"Greatest Swindle in the Annals of Sports"

Berlin, June 5. The report from New York that the American world heavyweight title holder, Jim Braddock, refused to fulfil his contract to meet the German ex-world champion, Max Schmeling, in a bout for the title in New York on June 3, has been received with the greatest indignation here. The Zweifelhafte Mitteilungsblatt, which is one of the leading German sporting papers, calls the incident the greatest swindle in the annals of sport.

The paper points out that Braddock's argument, that the bout with Schmeling would be a relatively unremunerative affair, is absurd, since German promoters had offered a purse of $350,000 for the fight at the Berlin Olympic Stadium, and declares that it would obviously be impossible to make more money by a single bout elsewhere.

"There can be but a single reason for Braddock's refusal, therefore, namely, that Braddock is afraid to meet Schmeling."

Other German papers likewise severely criticise Braddock's attitude and express the hope that the American boxing authorities will punish the titleholder for his unsportsmanlike behaviour.

Hammond Scatters The Scribes

BALL SAILS INTO PRESS BOX

Misses an Editor and Smashes Window

(By Frank Thorogood)

Lord's: South beat North by 6 wickets. London, May 28. Making his second century of the year in two hours and repeating his brilliant form of Monday, Walter Hammond was the leading figure here in the closing stages of the Test trial. His most spectacular hit was a drive by which he sent the ball through a window of the lofty Press box at the expense of Holmes. One of my fellow scribes had a narrow escape and this was the editor of Wisden's Almanack. When the ball landed on the ledge in front of the window at which he was sitting it suddenly turned aside to enter the far end casement, and in this way he still lives and reigns to preach the gospel of Brighton Cricket.

Travelling at great speed the ball went on to smash a pane of the entrance door, so that it must have carried at least 100 yards in its flight.

It was a big hit, but others have excelled it by sending the ball over the pavilion, and these include Albert Trotter (the Anglo-Australian who used to play for Middlesex), W. G. Grace, C. I. Thornton and W. H. Fowler. When Trotter made his straight drive in 1899 off Noble he was playing for M.C.C. against the Australians.

THE WORTH OF FARNES
When the North resumed with 15 for no wicket Farnes again confounded the earlier batsmen. Hut-son's off-stump was knocked aside-ways, and soon after Hardstaff had made his only stroke—a nice hook to the boundary—he fell to a grand gully catch by Robins.

Leyland was another victim of the Essex amateur (caught off his glove), and the only real challenge was the Wyatt and Paynter partnership, which added 83 for the fourth wicket.

THE ENERGY OF GOVER
Maxwell lent to the latter part of the innings an aggressive flavour and he was taking his life in both hands when Gover knocked down his middle stump. Gover has bowled with unceasing energy in this match, although for sheer beauty of action Farnes will be chiefly remembered and the Surrey dismissed the last two men with consecutive balls.

When the South entered upon their final task we had a splendid illustration of the art of wicketkeeping at the expense of Clibb.

Darting over to the off side Maxwell made a great catch and he followed it up with another clever catch on the leg side. For these two efforts alone the Notts amateur has amply justified his choice for the two anniversary games.

Barnett stayed with Hammond until 48 had been added for the second wicket, but the top scorers lost Ames and Todd for a mere song and from that point he carried the South on his shoulders. In addition to his Press Box six Hammond hit 11 fours.

Cochet And Perry Might Be Matched In Paris

FRENCH "PRO" EAGER TO MEET BRITAIN'S EX-TENNIS CHAMPION

London, June 11. Henri Cochet, former Wimbledon champion and Davis Cup ace, wants a crack at Fred Perry now that they are both professionals. But he will have to wait.

When he was invited to play in the professional shows in this country, Cochet eagerly discussed the matter. He thought that it was to be a knockout tournament, and that there would thus be a chance for him to meet Fred.

When he was told that Perry would only be meeting Vines in the singles, Cochet, deeply disappointed, said that he was not interested. But wires are being pulled to fix up a Perry-Cochet match, probably in Paris.

Fred Perry has driven the Lawn Tennis Association to purify in spite of themselves.

While he was winning the Davis Cup and the Wimbledon championships officialdom had a way of looking at things with a blind eye; now that Perry has come back a professional with a formidable circus, they are regarding amateurism with an all-seeing optic.

Players who have been interpreting the amateur rules loosely are being cautioned. The voucher racket is being broken up.

TWO STARS WARNED
Two well-known players had been invited to play exhibition matches in Belfast with all expenses paid. The L.T.A. got to hear about it, and the players were warned that if they went to Belfast on the expenses paid ticket they would be suspended.

It is strange that the L.T.A. have not taken this action before. They must have known that abuses of the amateur rule have been rampant, and the worst offenders have been the tournament committees on which councillors of the L.T.A. are active members.

Anita Lizana Must Have Chili's Consent

To Marry Scotsman

Senorita Anita Lizana, five-foot Chilean tennis star, is waiting for her Government's permission before announcing her engagement to Scotsman Ronald T. Ellis, twenty-four-year-old son of a Dundee coal merchant.

The dark little senorita dropped a set, lost her usual smile, before struggling through to the final of the Middlesex championships at Chiswick. The worry of waiting for the official consent was the cause.

First she refused to deny or confirm her engagement. Later she said, "I must get my Government's permission before I take such a step. It is true that I spent the weekend in Dundee recently with the parents of Mr. Ellis."

"I am longing to go home to Chili, and the fact that I may marry a Scotsman will not interfere with my love for my country. I hope to visit there often even if I make a home in Britain."

Mr. Ellis said he had given Senorita Lizana a ring, but they had not yet made any plans.

Romance began last year when the senorita won the Scottish championship.

Mr. Ellis is a keen player, a past winner of the Scottish boys' championship.

GEM HOAHING IS DEFEATED AT WIMBLEDON

IN STRAIGHT SETS

London, June 22. Miss Gem Hoahing, Chinese girl tennis player, was in action in the Wimbledon tournament to-day, and after a plucky show was beaten by Miss O'Connell, 8-6, 6-4.

The weather was hot and sunny. Miss Hoahing lacked sufficient experience to beat her more crafty opponent. Her service was erratic and she served several double faults at critical points, but occasionally she pulled off an ace.

Miss O'Connell's short drop-shots puzzled the Chinese girl and she was not tall enough to deal with the overhead volleys from the half-court where Miss O'Connell repeatedly lured her.

In the second set Miss Hoahing was one-five down but pulled up to four-five. The effort was too much for her, however, and Miss O'Connell chased her from side-to-side unmercifully.

Miss Helen Jacobs showed no trace of her recent shoulder injury in her match against Miss Harvey, the Wightman Cup player, whom she beat 6-2, 6-1.

Another Wightman Cup player, Miss Mary Hardwick, put up a good fight against the American champion, Miss Alice Marble, but lost, the American winning 9-11, 6-4, 6-3. Miss Marble led 4-0 and 5-2 in the first set but Miss Hardwick rallied and led 7-6 and 6-7.

Franz Sperling, M. Jędrzejowska, Miss Kay Stammers, and the Americans Miss Winthrop and Miss Andrews, all had comfortable wins.

JAPANESE WIN

Nakano and Yamagishi, the Japanese pair, entered the second round of the men's doubles by defeating Eedes and Fannin of South Africa, 6-3, 6-1, 6-1. The South Africans were completely outclassed by the superior team work of the Japanese, whose accurate lobbing and amazing volleying gave their opponents no chance.

Nakano's service was brilliant; he aces frequently. Yamagishi's overhead work was excellent and he smashed confidently across the court, chasing the South Africans off the court.

In the last games of the final set the South Africans scored only four points.

In the men's doubles Farquharson and Kirby, South Africa, beat G. Ho and E. Mulliken, 8-6, 6-1, 6-2. Ho, who wore shorts, put in some neat touches at the net, but he and his partner were outclassed.

The George Vanderbilt Racing Cup

ITALIAN HOLDER TO DEFEND

By Joseph J. McGuinness
United Press Staff Correspondent

New York, June 23. Tazio Nuvolari of Italy, winner of the George Vanderbilt Cup last October, will defend his title in the 200 mile race at the Roosevelt Speedway here, July 3, against some of the leading automobile drivers in the world.

Seventy-five entries are expected by the Speedway officials but only thirty-six cars will face the starter. The actual participants will be decided on the fastest qualifying times, as well as the ability of their cars to stand up under the gruelling strain of road racing.

Numerous improvements have been completed at the Speedway, including the lengthening of the straightaways and the banking of turns. Experts believe that these improvements will materially aid the American participants, since drivers here are in the habit of taking turns at high speeds and accelerating as they come off the turns so as to hit the straightaways at the greatest speed possible.

Invitations have been extended to Pat Fairfield, English speed demon, and to Bjornstad, the Norwegian champion. As yet officials have not received official confirmation from these men.

Enzo Fiermonte, former prize fighter, and George Rand, amateur sportsman and New York socialite, have announced their intentions of entering a 400 horsepower Maserati, which they ordered direct from Italy. The two men will alternate at the wheel. Fiermonte, who was born in Italy, did considerable road racing when younger but gave up automobiles for professional boxing.

The American entries will probably include: Lou Meyers, who was unfortunately injured when his car crashed during the trials before last year's race; Bill Cummings; Wilbur Shaw and several others.

It is believed that a number of Germans will enter although the Speedway officials refuse to divulge their names at the present time. There will be no French drivers entered.

Experts predict that it will be possible to maintain an average speed of 100 miles per hour on the new track and that a top speed of 170 M.P.H. can be gained on the straightaways.

Besides the beautiful trophy, the winner of the race will receive $20,000, plus lap and accessory prizes.

RE-HEARING OF CASE INDIAN POLICE SERGEANT ON ASSAULT SUMMONS

The re-hearing of a cross-summons taken out by a Chinese junk master, Li To-kee, against Lance-Sergeant Lall Khan, B145, who was convicted of assault on June 2, and fined $20, was commenced before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy yesterday afternoon.

Khan, who was defended by Mr. D. McCallum, originally charged Li with resisting arrest on May 7. Li was represented by Mr. M. A. du Silva.

At the original hearing, it was stated that the Indian sergeant had arrested one of a number of coolies who were loading sacks of peas on to a junk, accusing him of causing an alleged obstruction of the road-way along the Praya in Kennedy Town. Li had remonstrated with him for arresting the coolie, and according to the sergeant, had also struck him. He continued striking the sergeant, and finally pushed him off the Praya into the harbour, but the Indian managed to catch hold of Li, and both fell in. Li, it was further alleged, later attempted to get away on his junk, but the vessel was ordered back by a European police officer.

Yesterday, Mr. McCallum said he was calling fresh evidence. "Muhammed Yusoff, constable B3, said that about 5.30 p.m. on May 7, he received instructions to go to the Kennedy Town Praya. On arrival there, he found a large crowd of coolies, and Sergeant Lall Khan standing on a wharf. Witness noticed a junk by a Praya wall, and saw a Chinese man step off it. This man, Li, was taken into custody by B145, who together with witness, then boarded a tramcar. They took seats in the front part of the third class section. Two Chinese men and an old woman were in the rear of the tram protesting against the arrest of Li.

When the tramcar reached Hill Road, Li attempted to get up but was pulled back to his seat by the Indian sergeant. Witness then heard the short blast of a police whistle from the rear of the tram. Traffic-Sergeant Bethel then boarded the tram and ordered the old woman off. On reaching Western Street, Li, B145 and witness alighted and went into No. 7 Police Station. In the charge-room, B145 requested witness to apply some iodine to his leg, where there was a slight scratch. Witness did so, and left the sergeant, and Li.

Did Not See Assault

Cross-examined by Mr. McCallum, witness said he did not see B145 kick the woman in the tram. He did not see the sergeant assault Li either before or after leaving the tramcar. Just before entering the charge-room, Li fell back, and was pushed in by B145. Witness did not think it was possible for the sergeant to strike Li without him seeing it.

Replying to Mr. Silva, witness said he knew nothing of the evidence given by B145 at the original hearing. The short blast of the police whistle on the tram was quite clear. Witness heard it, and thought B145 could also hear it. It was possible for him to do so. Witness said it was correct that the sergeant had pulled Li back to his seat, and that protests had been made by the two men and the woman. He disagreed that the blowing of the whistle was because B145 was striking Li.

Yu Kai-sheung, a police interpreter, said he saw B145 bring Li into the charge-room where Sergeant Jessop was on duty. During the taking of a statement from Li in the detective office, Li did mention that he had been struck on the chest with a truncheon. Detective-Sergeant Mottram was present. After Li had been charged with resisting arrest, Sgt. Jessop asked if he wished to go

CREW IN CONTROL SEIZE VESSEL FROM THE JAPANESE SKIPPER

Chefoo, June 22.
The Chinese steamer Tungping, 300 tons, registered at Taingtao, had her course forcibly diverted to-day by her Chinese crew which seized control of the vessel from the Japanese captain.

The ship was on its way from Dairen to Peltalho. In resisting the crew the skipper received head injuries.

The alleged reason for the mutiny is that the ship was engaged in smuggling. It has been turned over to the Chinese Maritime Customs which have confiscated the cargo of sundry goods, including 4,000 bags of sugar.

A Japanese destroyer has arrived at Chefoo to protest against the seizure of the vessel and confiscation of the cargo, but Chinese clerics contend that there is no ground for complaint as the vessel and crew are both Chinese.

They admit, however, that charges of assault can be brought against the crew, which, in the meantime, has disappeared.—Reuter.

to hospital, but Li replied that he was all right. So far as witness could remember, Li made no effort to show the marks of the alleged assault on his body.

Questioned by Mr. Silva, witness said he did not see another police interpreter, David Wong, questioning Li.

Both Were Soaked

After evidence by Sgt. Jessop, Sergeant Mottram said he found both the Indian sergeant and Li soaking wet, when he was called into the case. The sergeant was minus his turban. After the Indian had changed his clothes, witness drove him and B3 in his motor car to the spot where the alleged assault had taken place. On returning to the Station, witness questioned Li, and was informed by the man that he had been assaulted. Witness had a look at Li's chest, but noticed nothing out of the ordinary. His own impression at the time was that he might have received rough handling during his arrest, as frequently happened when Indians resist Chinese who resist arrest.

Mr. Silva objected to the statement, and said it was not relevant. It was purely conjecture on the part of the witness.

Traffic-Sergeant A. Bethel said he called back a junk which had gone out about 50 or 60 yards from the Praya. It had its sail hoisted. Witness saw B145 take Li into custody when the junk returned. Witness heard no protests against the arrests by anyone, with the exception of the old woman, who had a lot to say, both before and after the arrest.

Li then gave evidence, and said he was assaulted by the Indian sergeant, who accused him of being insolent when he remonstrated against the arrest of one of the coolies who were loading peas on to his junk. The Indian also pushed him off the Praya, and in attempting to save himself from falling, witness grabbed the sergeant, and they both fell into the water.

Leung Sam, mother of Li, maintained that the sergeant had struck her son both on the Praya and on the tram, and had also hit and kicked her.

Before the case was adjourned, Mr. Silva pointed out that the summons against the Indian did not concern any assault on the tramcar, but was only in connection with the incidents on the Praya.

The case was then adjourned to 2.30 p.m. on Thursday, June 24.

ACROSS ATLANTIC FIRST FLYING BOAT TO START NEXT WEEK

London, June 22. Plans for the first British survey flight across the Atlantic in connection with the proposed regular air services between Europe and North America are complete and on July 6 Imperial Airways Empire flyingboat Caledonia will take off from Rynanna base, established by the Irish Free State, on the Shannon for Botwood, Newfoundland. On arrival there she will fly to Montreal and then to New York a total distance of 3,223 miles.

The trans-Atlantic scheme provides first for a series of survey flights, then for an experimental air mail service and finally for a mail and passenger service on a minimum schedule of two flights weekly in each direction.

The Caledonia has a medium speed of 100 m.p.h. and a cruising speed of 104. It is, however, difficult to forecast the precise time of the flight on the westward journey, but when allowance is made for the prevailing westerly wind it is estimated that the flyingboat will reach Newfoundland in about 16 hours.

On her departure her pilot will have all available weather reports and further details will be transmitted to him during the flight. He will be able to plot his position and keep continuously in touch with a number of ships. Throughout the journey the Caledonia will be in close touch with Botwood and Shannon wireless stations.—British Wireless.

R. M. A. Delphinus

The Imperial Airways R.M.A. Delphinus arrived here at 10.30 a.m. yesterday bringing 284.097 kilos of mail and six kilos of freight. The freight consisted of surgical instruments and perfumes for Hongkong. There were no passengers.

Connections Made

The Imperial Airways service from Hongkong on May 21 reached London on May 30 on schedule. Connection was made with C.N.A.C. service from Shanghai and from Canton.

The Imperial Airways service from London on June 6 arrived in Hongkong on June 17, 50 hours behind schedule, and connection was made with the C.N.A.C. service due in Shanghai on June 19 and with the train service due in Canton on June 17.

Peiping-Hongkong

It is believed probable by the China Travel Service, local agents for the Eurasia Aviation Corporation, that June 29 will be the date of the first arrival here of a Eurasia plane on a regular service between Peiping and Kai Tak Airport. So far the China Travel Service have not been officially notified of this date, however, and cannot as yet book passengers by their planes.

A message from Shanghai also gives this date as the day when the inaugural flight will be made by the tri-motored Junker planes which will be used on this route, and which will take eleven hours for the journey between the two cities. It is expected that flights will be made twice a week.

At Chengchow a connection will be made with the Shanghai-Shan route so that Nanking will have for the first time a daily service to the South and Shanghai a second one.

A "THRILLER" OF FIFTY YEARS AGO

soon as my business had been completed, I made my way to the old Cathedral, and there in its "dim, religious light" I looked upon the marble profile of the man whose personality and work had so fascinated me in those ardent years which now seemed so far away. Underneath the portrait were some lines written by Conway's close friend, Mr. Comyns Carr, which engraved themselves upon my mind:—

"Headless of fame that was, or was to be,
No word of ours may reach him where he lies Beneath the glittering vault of southern skies,
In dreamless sleep beside a tide-less sea."

Still to the Fore

Of the book which made Hugh Conway famous I do not propose to say much, as it must be familiar to many who read these lines. Mr. Labouchere declared that "Wilkie Collins never penned a more enthralling story," while a leading newspaper described it as "an exceedingly interesting, touching, tender, thrilling, enthralling, tragic, ghostly, exceptionally well-told tale." I know of no work of its class that so arrests the reader's attention at the very outset and carries him breathlessly along until the last page is reached.

As literature, the book does not, perhaps, rank high; but that it has merit of no ordinary kind is proved by the fact that although half a century has elapsed since it first appeared, it is still being sold; which the dramatized version of the story (which had an enormously successful run at the time) has been "billed" at more than one theatre within recent years. The story has also been filmed, which is another evidence of its lasting popularity.

It may be of interest to add that shortly after viewing the portrait of Hugh Conway I discovered on a second-hand bookstall a little volume containing a short story he had written in aid of the funds of a London hospital. The manuscript had been reproduced in facsimile with the signature of the writer appended; so I eventually succeeded in securing his autograph, and "something in his handwriting" as well.

W. Fordyce Clark.

BOTTLE BARRAGE

STRIKERS FELT POLICE WITH EMPRIES

Shanghai, June 22. Beer bottles were used as ammunition by hundreds of Chinese workers who suddenly declared a stay-in strike to-day at the five-storied Union Brewery plant in the International Settlement.

They defied an attempt by the police and Russian volunteers to eject them and even when machine guns were trained on the building they did not capitulate until 3 p.m. when the management agreed to their demands for higher wages.

Before this, however, the police threw two tear gas bombs into the building but it resulted only in the strikers going to higher floors from which they kept up their beer bottle barrage.—Reuter.

CRAFTSMEN

Countryman's Log

of Old England

THE village craftsman is flourishing. At least, one is not as sure that he or she is making a lot of money at the game as that the work is being turned out. Personally, I think they are doing better than they were.

Discerning people are seeking them out for cloth, furniture, door knockers and fire irons, hand-made pottery and the like. The pity of it is that many more people would prefer to see the craftsman's products in their home rather than the machine's, if it were not for $ a d.

Perhaps the most striking instance which has come to light lately of the tenuous hold that the tradition of rural craftsmanship still has, was the news that a woman weaver in Essex is weaving the Coronation Robe. Three yards a week is said to be her output, so that the job has had to be put in hand well before the Coronation.

Round the district where this woman works has grown up a colony of weavers. There are churches in their neighbourhood where the hand-made banners and vestments hang, shot through and through with most glorious colouring. At the festivals these are carried, shimmering, in the processions.

Seek out one of these craftsmen in his own village and all one has to ask is to be shown the house where "the weaver" lives. How satisfying it must be to any man to be known to your neighbours by the name of your craft. It used to be so, the potter, the tanner, the weaver, the wheelwright, the carpenter, the only one of his kind in the place. It must have made a man take pride in his work to be known so.

There is another house, only a few miles from the place where the woman weaves the Coronation Robe, where a family have a room in their house fitted up with several looms. Its windows overlook an old garden at the foot of which is an ever-rippling stream, with hills beyond. The stream has trout in it and the house where the workrooms are is called "Trout Hall," an appropriate and fortunate setting for such domestic industry.

There is another man I call on always whenever in the neighbourhood of Cheltenham. A few miles out from that sophisticated scene of respectabilities, there's a tumble-down looking brick kiln with a tall chimney.

For years the yard and buildings lay deserted, tiles slipping, ridges blown away and puddles in the grassy yard. Perhaps ten years ago, a young fellow with ideas and hands fell upon the place with ecstasy. With no money to spend on the building, he started shaping the clay. To-day his products have such a character about them that connoisseurs wait on his output, far and wide. He still carries on with a labouring man and a boy only.

Orders may press on his heels but with only one pair of hands to shape the jugs and tenpots at the potter's wheel, many go unheeded. He is the only potter in the place. No work is handed out nor can any machine replace his genius. Farther west still, almost within sight of the Atlantic Ocean, as deep set down a farm road as the finicky would care to tackle in the

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed Feeling You Could Push a Bus Over
The liver should pour out two pints of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sluggish and the world looks grim.
Bile, liver drinks, palatable laxatives and harsh purgatives are makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes the famous, sure acting Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pints of bile flowing freely and make you feel fit and spry. Harmless, gentle, effective. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's on the red jacket.

depths of winter, there is another man working. This man is a woodworker. Living in a dairying district, he first tried his hand at milking-stools.

Just imagine a common milking-stool made out of sycamore from the hedges nearby with a set of three legs to every one of them turned by a woodworker artist, for everyday use in a typical Welsh cow-stall. It would glorify the dingy place.

He made brooms for sweeping rough yards that no manufacturer has been able to better. At times he fetches out the old patterns, handed down from father to son, of wooden bowls and ladles for the farmhouse kitchen.

Some of the skimmers he has made for the dairymaids' butter-making are as shapely as porcelain.

This man lacks a sense of business. Spent with him and he can never put a price to anything. He takes what the honourable visitor thinks is fit and proper. He is obliged to sell the bulk of his output to close-fisted market-day farmers.

"Doing better to-day than ever"

Some more woodworkers I have come across lately take the plainest of cupboards, and so decorate them with fantastic patterns and rich colours that the rooms they stand in transport one to the Orient.

Have you ever come across a piece of furniture, so exquisite to look at, yet with such a robust look of usefulness about it, and carved and mounted with such rare judgment and finish, that your hand just wanders over it in envy of the possessor?

One of these craftsmen has turned out a chest like that, a chest for blankets and house linen. It is of such a size that the ordinary house could not find a place for it. Some people might consign it to a museum. That would be a pity, though it would puzzle an expert to decide just by looking at it whether it had been made away back in the Middle Ages or only the other week. And when you talk to the fellow who made it, he is just the village turner, standing in an overall.

How placid these men and women are, how certain of their work, how indifferent to the fuss and fume of the factory and the industrial area. No man grows rich from the work of his own hands. These craftsmen can never hope to make a mint of money from the lovely things they keep on making, maybe have no other reason than just that they must. There are men who work alone round the edges of the moorlands in Yorkshire from life and will leave behind them great riches that folk in the ages to come will stand back and admire.

There are women in Somerset making more transient things like willow baskets. Their skill is traditional, it came to them by the patterns put in front of them by fathers and mothers. There are true makers in Sussex who hand out their wares for the passing gipsy to sell, whilst they go on making the baskets for the berry harvest, the farm egg collector.

Lots of you must have come across these craftsmen in the villages. One tumbles across them in most out-of-the-way places. They cling to their job, many of them, by the skin of their teeth, as it were. They go on hand-making the things that they were brought up to make.

Others round them make more money handling merchandise, even hiring out their labour. Some even call them fools for clinging to crafts that a machine age can do better. And by better is usually meant cheaper.

So many of the things turned out by our English heritage of craftsmen have an ethereal quality of loveliness about them, even when the thread is broken in the spinning, or where the tool has left its mark.

Finish is not everything, nor, before we have done, will cheapness be either.

The day that William Morris purpled his horizons for, with colourful words and hues, is in the keeping of these humble village craftsmen and craftsmen still.

How Long Will It Take?

If each cut takes 3 minutes, how long will it take a man to cut a 10-foot bar of steel into 10 equal pieces?
(Answers Appear On This Page)

Would You Marry Him Again

1. Do you go through your husband's pockets?
2. Do you read his letters?
3. Are you suspicious when he tells you that he was detained at his office, shop, or warehouse?
4. Do you admire his friends and wish he were like them?
5. Are you irritated by a personal habit such as snoring, coughing, interrupting, or stammering?
6. Do you have to ask him for money?
7. Does he make fun of you in public?
8. Does he neglect to admire your dress?
9. Does he criticise your methods of housekeeping?
10. Is he mean over trifling expenses?
11. Does he refuse to take you to a show, a cinema, or away for a week-end without the children?
12. Does he fail to interest himself in the children's education?
13. Does he blame you for all the family's shortcomings?
14. Is he a bad father and unwilling to enjoy the children's company?
15. Is he reluctant to give a hand when there is sickness in the house?
16. Do you belong to different golf, tennis, or social clubs?
17. Do you criticise him with your friends?
18. Do you resent his meeting other women?

HERE'S a new game to find out whether you are happily or unhappily married. For every "yes" that you answer to these questions count a score of 5, except question 29. A "yes" to that counts 50.
If your score is 100 or over you'd never marry him again. If under 100, you would.

19. Do you sigh with relief when he goes to his work each day?

20. Are you incapable of meeting an economic crisis without complaint?

21. Do you think he drinks, smokes, and grumbles too much?

22. Do you hanker after the friends and hobbies you had before you married him.

23. Do you think you are hard done by?

24. Do you quarrel over things that don't really matter?

25. Is he discontented at home?

26. Are you ashamed of his personal appearance?

27. Are you expected to wait on him hand and foot?

28. Do you dread your old age in his company?

29. And now the last and truest test of your love for him —
If it came to a test would you refuse to use his tooth brush?

Things men don't believe

OF course, I should have known better, and said: "Darling, I adore oysters—but, alas, they react on me like a Channel crossing." Then he would have gone all protective, and let me have some melon.

Instead, I said honestly: "I simply loathe oysters." At which he clasped my hand, looked at me woefully, and said: "My sweetest, you're just trying to save me money. Of course you like oysters," and immediately ordered them. I forced down two, the rest were wasted, he got peevish, and I felt sick.

It's the same with caviare and champagne. I just don't like either of them. But can I get a man to believe it? I certainly can't. They always think you don't mean what you say.

Have you ever met a man who didn't believe himself to be an authority on women's clothes? Or who didn't believe that women dress to attract men, and not to please themselves?

Is there any argument so profitless as trying to convince a man that no matter how long or how often he explains to you the principles of radio, electricity, world economics, or the insides of the car, you will never really understand?

On the subject of love they are even more hidebound. They will never believe that you act the way you do because you happen to feel like it; they insist that it's because you're in love with them. And they will never, never believe that you will never, never learn to love them.

In fact, they will never believe that a woman is capable of knowing her own mind, or of expressing it if she did.

Good heavens! It has suddenly occurred to me they may be right!

TOURNAMENT THRILLS FOR CHILDREN

10,000 of them watch dress rehearsal scenes in Olympia arena. The scene in the arena at Olympia recently as a toy soldier display was given by boys of the Duke of York's Royal Military School before 10,000 London schoolchildren. It was part of the Royal Tournament, which will be opened to-day in the presence of the King and Queen.

TAKING THINGS IN THEIR STRIDE
G. H. Dyson and J. L. Thornton, found the weather too warm for snuggles and were only shorts for athletic training at the White City. Peter Kane, the fly-weight knock-out specialist from Golbourne, was out sight-seeing in London (right). His work (he's a blacksmith) keeps him in training, so he was taking things easily before to-night's fight with Ernst Welts, of Austria, at Harringay Arena.

OUT TO BEAT THE BAND

While the band of the Grenadier Guards, led by the drum-major, was leaving Buckingham Palace after the Changing of the Guard ceremony, flamingoes at the London Zoo (left) were doing their best to outstep the Army. The birds were on their morning parade around the enclosure—but what would the sergeant-major say about this sort of "drill"?

MACHINE AGE STRIKES AT INNER ASIA

Flying Gold Dust Out Of Remote Tibet

YOUNG AIRMAN BECOMES A CABINET MINISTER

CARRYING millions of dollars worth of gold out of Tibet by aeroplane is the job of a young American who has become a cabinet minister in the Government of the Panchen Lama, says Modern Mechanics.

Up to now Tibet, remote and inaccessible, has resisted all encroachments of the Machine Age. But Panchen Lama, back on the throne after a 12-year exile in China, has decided to modernise the country with radios, automobiles, hydro-electric plants.

The gold which has lain idle in the country's 3,000 monasteries will be used to purchase the necessary equipment.

Gordon B. Enders, the only foreigner ever appointed to a high position in the Tibetan Government, has been commissioned to perform the extraordinary task.

Unknown to most of the world the monasteries of Tibet have been collecting gold dust for at least six or seven centuries. This gold, which belongs to the ruling power because the Church and the Government are the same in Tibet—is estimated to total about $100,000,000. Much of it will find its way to the United States.

Enders' first task on reaching Tibet will be to survey all the possible air-line landing sites. He must also prepare maps of various regions which are still practically unknown. For transportation, Enders has two low-wing cabin monoplanes for the first year's operations. Each ship can carry a 1,500-pound payload.

While one of Enders' planes is transporting gasoline from the nearest outside supply depot, the other plane, commanded by Enders himself, is flying from monastery to monastery and picking up bags of gold for export to the outside world.

TAX ON PHOTOS OF FILM STARS?

Washington, June 12.

FILM enthusiasts who write to Hollywood stars for their photographs may have to pay for them in future.

A suggestion has been put to the Senate Finance Committee of the United States Congress that every picture sent out by a film, stage, radio or sports celebrity should bear a tax stamp of value equivalent to $5.

The "fan" would pay for the tax stamp when sending for the photograph.

The Finance Committee is considering the suggestion.—Reuter.

Cats Kill Australian Postman

The only pigeon post in Australia, and one of the few in the Empire has been destroyed by native cats which killed a whole cage of homers belonging to a firm at Lowanna, northern New South Wales.

The post was famous in the district. The birds flew regularly over the mountainous hawk-infested country, and during many years only one bird had failed to "check-in."

The firm spent years in breeding and training the birds to fly their sixty miles along which there is no other communication. They carried their "mails" in aluminium containers in an average of 45 minutes.—Austral News.

GODDESS OF MERCY EARTH

Like manna in the Hebrew stories of the Old Testament, the Chinese famine sufferers have a special nourishment which they regard as a gift from the gods; it is called "Goddess of Mercy earth."

White in colour, generally, and of fine texture like chalk, it crumbles readily in the hand, though resembling a rock until handled. It is generally mined in the hillsides.

One such mine near Wanhsien has resembled an ant hill for six months, a steady stream of farmers, entering and leaving 24 hours a day. Refugees have travelled upward of 200 li (70 miles) to reach this mine.

At the mine near Chienhsien the cave of this "mercy earth" have developed a superstition that the brown earth is corn, and the white earth is rice. If a man once begins to eat corn, he must never change over to rice. Investigators were unable to discover whether there is any scientific grounds for this belief.

GHOST OF THE FAMINE

A ghost of the famine, quite similar to the American Indian superstition described in Longfellow's "Hawthorne," has caused quite a commotion in Kiangchingsien. A crowd worshipping the god of rain was worked up to fever pitch by an oratorical fanatic. More than half the city population then rushed to the east city gate, seized the imaginary ghost, said to be short like a pygmy, and every man present was given a chance to beat the unseen spirit before it was thrown into the moat. The city fathers were confident that this would move the heart of heaven.

Another interesting religious rite was staged by a group of Buddhist priests at Kaohsien. Imitating the ancient priests of Baal, they forbade the slaughter of animals, ordered every townsman to take a bath (a social revolution in itself), and all people over three years of age were ordered to fast until rain came. The magistrates did not interfere. The experiment failed, and all of the population, including the priests, took up their rice bowls again.

A party of rogues at Nantung, 100 miles north of Chungking demonstrated the old proverb that dishonesty is the mother of initiative. One day they entered the town clad in rags, carrying baskets, and stripped the bark from all the trees in front of the Bank of China branch, meanwhile noting all possible details about the bank. Next day they returned again as refugees, but discarded their baskets, broke into the godown of the bank, and found it empty. The officials had anticipated such a move.

Dickens Tale

Ends a Marriage

New York, June 12. "The Madman's Manuscript," from Charles Dickens's "Pickwick Papers," to-day provided grounds for annulment of the marriage of an oil magnate's daughter and Californian beauty prize-winner, to an undergraduate of Princeton University.

Mrs. Laura Hampton Loomis complained to the Los Angeles Court that during their two-days honeymoon, after which her husband returned to his parents' palatial home on Park-avenue, he took her into a dark hotel room and forced her to read aloud Dickens's famous study of abnormality.

"It is about a man who married a woman and then talked of different ways of murdering her, until she went insane," she said.

"When I finished reading, I said it was awfully gruesome and impossible, and he replied: 'I don't think it is impossible, I've often thought about it.'"

'THE LEAGUE IS A FLOP'

Says Field-Marshal

FIELD-MARSHAL SIR PHILIP CHEWODE, former Commander-in-Chief in India, speaking at the Calcutta Dinner, in London, declared that we won the Empire by the sword, and that we would keep it by the sword.

"Since the war the statesman has failed completely," he said. "The Treaty of Versailles was a flop, the League of Nations is another flop, open diplomacy and the method of conferences is a flop. Collective security just means that we have done all the security and the other people all the collecting."

FAMINE TALES FROM SZECHUAN

HORRORS OF CANNIBALISM

UNUSUAL sidelights on the Szechuan famine conditions are contained in the latest issue of the Peipei Monthly, a Chinese reconstruction periodical published by the Sanchia Experimental District in Szechuan. This experiment centre has sent out several hundred investigators into the famine district, and reports some of the first reliable information.

Cannibalism frequently reported by Chinese newspapers has been verified by several investigators, writes Haldore Hansen in the North-China Daily News. Many cases of cannibalism have been referred to Governor Liu Hsiang by district magistrates.

Hunger pills for preserving life with the smallest possible expense have been distributed to the Sanchia experiment headquarters. These pills are made in 10-pint batches, of which seven parts are soya beans, and three parts sesame.

First the beans are steamed and the skins plucked off. Then they are steamed three times more, and dried slowly in the sunshine after each heating. Finally they are mashed into a pulp, pressed into balls about the size of walnuts, and allowed to harden. One batch will provide 600-700 people, and each pill will last several days.

(This highly concentrated food is similar to the nourishment for Arctic dogs, which is likewise eaten very sparingly. Peter Freuchen in his recent book "Arctic Adventure" says that dogs eating seal fat and working all day will be hungry only twice a week; dogs out of harness eat but once a week.)

Another kind of famine pill is designed as a laxative for the thousands of farmers who are eating tree bark and roots, green grass or white earth. With such a high roughage content, the stomach often becomes bloated, causing death. The special pills distributed by the reconstruction leaders are based upon beans.

A half pint of sesame seeds and a half pint of brown beans are boiled together and the skins plucked. To this foundation one pound of Chinese medicines is added, including equal parts of dried ginger, pachyma cocos, glycyrrhiza, and aspidium foliatum. The mixture is held together by a little honey. Each pill is about the size of a corn, and one a day is sufficient to counteract the dangers of grass and earth.

GERMANY MAINTAINS RIGHT TO ACT IN LEIPZIG INCIDENT

Four-Power Conversations Break Down in London

ITALY NOW CONTEMPLATING OPEN INTERVENTION IN SPAIN

London, June 22.

The gravest split since the outbreak of the Spanish war has occurred among the neutral powers, according to the information contained in a joint four-power communique issued to-day.

It is "unfortunately impossible" to agree to Germany's demands for a four-power naval demonstration off Valencia in protest against the alleged submarine attacks on the German cruiser Leipzig, the communique states.

However, the June 12 agreement for discussion of joint action in the event of attacks on neutral warships still holds, in the event of future incidents.

Apparently the four-power conference gives Germany complete freedom of action in the present case, since no joint action is contemplated.—United Press.

CLAIMS FREE HAND

Berlin, June 22.

A German spokesman to-day stated that "under the four-power agreement Germany now is free to hand down decision independently, since negotiations for joint procedure have broken down."

It was added that Herr Adolf Hitler would consult his advisers Wednesday.—United Press.

Paris Contradiction

Paris, June 22.

Official circles here refuse to consider Germany's claim to a free hand in the Leipzig incident.—United Press.

More Aid For Franco

Rome, June 22.

Developments here indicate that Signor Benito Mussolini is seriously considering important new assistance for General Francisco Franco, the Spanish insurgent leader. It is possible he may send regular army divisions to Spain.

It is not learned definitely whether he has yet decided upon open intervention. It is learned in reliable circles that at least one general, and possibly others, has been ordered to keep his men in constant readiness "for service abroad."—United Press.

Hitler Calls Advisers

Berlin, June 22.

Herr Adolf Hitler called a conference of his principal advisers to-day at which will be discussed Germany's future attitude towards the non-intervention agreement with respect to Spain.

Failure of the four-power conference in London is regarded as having produced a new but none-the-less serious situation.

It is denied in official quarters that Germany intends to withdraw from the Non-Intervention Committee, but it is pointed out that she regains freedom of action if no understanding is reached under the terms of the four-power agreement.—Reuter Special.

Rome Backs Berlin

Rome, June 22.

News of the breakdown of the four-power negotiations in London has caused no surprise in Italy.

It is authoritatively stated that Italy stands solidly with Germany in demanding a naval demonstration before a Spanish Government port.—Reuter Special.

Proof Of Guilt?

Berlin, June 22.

An official statement says the presence of two Spanish submarines in the neighbourhood of the Leipzig on the day the attack against the German warship was carried out has been proved.

It adds that the Spanish assertion that there were no Government submarines at sea at the time of the attack has been disproved by the fact that two such craft on June 10 boarded the Spanish insurgent post-ship.—(Continued on Page 5.)

SMUGGLERS BOYCOTTED

Japanese Fear For Legitimate Trade

Shanghai, June 23.

The rapid growth of the movement to boycott smuggled goods is causing concern in Japanese circles, where it is feared that the flow of Japanese products legitimately imported into China may be affected.

Charges that the movement is a camouflage for the revival of the anti-Japanese boycott have appeared in a section of the Japanese press in Shanghai.

Ignoring the Japanese resentment, Chinese public bodies in Shanghai and other cities are proceeding with their plans to push their drive against contraband goods, most of which are alleged to be of Japanese origin.

Preparations have been completed for a mammoth meeting in Shanghai, at which the participants will swear not to buy, sell or otherwise deal in contraband goods.—Reuter.

EXTRALITY PRESERVED

London, June 22.

Replying to a question by Mr. Geoffrey Mander in the House of Commons to-day, Viscount Cranborne, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, denied that negotiations were contemplated or proceeding for the abandonment of British extrajurisdiction in China.

RECORD POSTAL REVENUE

Hongkong Profits Continue To Gain

The Annual Report of the Postmaster General for 1936 discloses that a record revenue of $1,380,823 was received last year. This compares with $1,197,365 for the previous year.

For over half a century, the postal department has proved a gold mine to the Hongkong Treasury, revenue generally exceeding expenditure by 300 per cent.

In the past ten years, for the expenditure of only $4,101,559, the post office has paid into Hongkong revenue the staggering total of $10,925,122, all, as it were, from the sale of a humble stamp.

A total of 14,702,495 stamps, denominations of which ranged from one cent to $10, were sold during the year. Most popular stamp was the 5-cent, 5,825,516 of which were sold, compared with 4,900,013 last year.

Despite the 1935 influence of special Silver Jubilee stamp sales, stamp revenue last year was $1,336,749, compared with $1,105,436 in 1935.

Stamps to the value of $102,207 were sold in May, 1935 (Silver Jubilee month), but this figure was exceeded on no less than eight months last year.

FOSTERING FRIENDLY RELATIONS

Canton, June 23.

Mr. Edward Carter, Secretary-General of the Institute of Pacific Relations, and his wife, are arriving in Canton from Manila this afternoon.

Mr. Carter will be entertained at luncheon by Mr. Wu Teh-chen, Kwangtung Governor, at Reception House to-morrow.

During his visit Mr. Carter will meet local educationists with a view to furthering the work of the Institute in China.—Reuter.

COLONY ESCAPES HEAVY DEFICIT INCREASE IN REVENUE SAVES SITUATION

Large increases in practically every Head of Revenue saved the Hongkong Government from a heavy deficit last year. An estimated deficit of over four millions became a surplus of $529,464.

That the Colony ended the year with a surplus was due not only to buoyant revenue, but also to heavy slashes in civil service salaries, which saved the Colony $1,168,100.

This information is contained in the Colonial Treasurer's Report on the Finances of the Colony, tabled in Legislative Council this afternoon.

Revenue from duties was $6,928,672, compared with the estimate of $5,335,000 and 1935 actual revenue of $5,173,837.

Increased tariff on Imported Liquors netted $340,500 above the estimates, while the Hongkong public paid $4,006,519 instead of the estimate of $2,800,000 for Tobacco.

Port and Harbour Dues increased from $485,007 in 1935 to $638,284, the increase being due to the lower exchange rate, increased sales of opium, increased Assessed Rates, higher stamp duties and higher revenue from Water Excess Supply.

TWO BIG ESTATES

Two large estates totalling $590,510 were chiefly responsible for the estimate of $1,000,000 revenue from death duties being exceeded by $352,000.

Revenue from the post office leapt from $1,769,669 in 1935 to $2,098,995, the increase being attributed to increased rates and air mail expansion.

Land Sales showed an increase over the estimates for the first time in many years, the total receipts being $170,824. This however, is well below the average for the past decade.

LOSS IN TRAFFIC

The closure of the gambling establishment at Shum Chun deprived the Kowloon Canton Railway of $87,557 of its estimated passenger revenue of $500,000, and was one of the reasons why total 1936 revenue was nearly two lakhs short of the 1935 total of $1,411,074.

There were many drastic increases in taxation during the year. Import duties on liquors, champagnes and sparkling wines was increased from $10 to $13 per gallon; Empire brandy from $3 to $5; Foreign Brandy from

Louis Whips Champion In Wild Finish

Pounded Braddock's Face To Bloody Mask

Chicago, June 22.

Rising from the canvas after he was knocked down in the first round, like a jungle man, Joe Louis, Detroit negro, ripped through the defences of the erstwhile champion of the world, Jim Braddock, and knocked the lion-hearted Irishman unconscious after eight rounds of furious fighting. A crowd estimated at 67,000 saw the fight here to-night.

Braddock fell backwards when Louis' explosive right caught him on the chin, dropped as though he had been shot, and did not move until his seconds had dragged him to his corner. It was the first time in twelve years that Braddock had been knocked out. It took some time to revive him.

Louis is hailed as the second negro champion in history. And it is the first time in history that a negro has defeated a white champion since Jack Johnson beat Tommy Burns.

The late rush in betting hammered Louis' odds down to eight-to-five, since Braddock was the first heavyweight champion to enter the ring as under-dog.

Louis did not really start his assault on the champion until the sixth round.

The fighters weighed in this afternoon, says Reuter. Braddock was 14 stone 1 lb. (197 lb.) and Louis 14 stone 1 1/4 lb. (197 1/4 lb.).

Braddock gets 50 per cent. of the $750,000 gate, Louis 17 1/2 per cent.

Given Wild Reception

Braddock climbed into the ring at 10 p.m. and was given a wild reception. He was swathed in a green robe.

Mike Jacobs estimated that there were 67,000 in the seats by this time. A minute after Braddock, Louis came into the ring. He was loudly cheered.

In Braddock's corner were Joe Gould, Doc Robb, Whitey Blinston, all veteran ring handlers. Black Blackburn and Harry Linney were Louis' handlers.

Louis in purple and Braddock in black trunks, they were introduced by Referee Tommy Thomas, of Chicago. The judges were Ed Hinz, Ed Klein, time-keepers, Joe Lipp and Charles Sidebottom.

Fight By Rounds

ROUND ONE.—Both fighters came out cautiously, met and exchanged blows in the centre of the ring, clinched, broke and sparred. Louis landed a hard right to the jaw and a series of body punches. Louis drove Braddock to the ropes. Louis landed a terrific left and right to Braddock's chin. Braddock landed a ring to the chin and knocked the negro off his feet, but for no count.

He drove Louis to the ropes and was boxing him furiously at the bell. Braddock's round.

ROUND TWO.—Louis landed a stiff right to the chin. Braddock jabbed effectively but missed a hay-maker. He pushed Louis to the ropes. They exchanged easy blows. Louis landed three terrific rights and a left to the chin. Braddock wobbled. It was Louis' round.

ROUND THREE.—Louis came out fast and traded slugs with the champion. Braddock was bleeding from a cut over his left eye. Louis landed lefts frequently. Braddock scored a hard uppercut. Louis' round.

Both Cautious

ROUND FOUR.—They were both fighting cautiously in the early seconds. Braddock drove a solid right to the face. Louis opposed feaster. Both concentrated on head and face punches. Louis delivered a right. Braddock replied with three uppercuts. Louis' round.

ROUND FIVE.—Braddock gave Louis three good rights to the head. Louis drove right and left to Jim's face. Braddock's long right started Louis' nose bleeding profusely. Braddock commenced to press the challenger, but Louis fought clear with two lefts to Braddock's face. The champion's left cheek was

WELSHMAN TO FIGHT SCHMELING

Winner Will Claim World Title

White City To Stage Bout

London, June 22.

The White City authorities have announced that Tommy Farr, the Welsh heavyweight, will fight Max Schmeling, the German, ex-champion of the world, in August or September.

Farr recently knocked out Germany's second best fighter, Walter Neusel, in the third round of a fight in Harringay Arena.

The Farr-Schmeling bout will be for the world's championship, it is stated. The Louis-Braddock bout is not recognised as a title fight by the White City.

The announcement of the Farr-Schmeling fight contradicts the previous report from New York that the winner of the Braddock-Louis engagement to-night would meet Farr in London in July.

The White City promoters contend that a clash between Farr and Schmeling, logical world champion, should be recognised as a title bout. They are requesting the American authorities to recognise this fact, especially in view of the doubt whether the Louis-Braddock fight will get such recognition by New York.—Reuter.

Other curtailments, totalling over $15,000, have been made on appropriations for maintenance of public buildings, maintenance of public recreation grounds, dredging and survey.

Maintenance of Public Buildings in Kowloon will cost only $24,000, instead of the usual recurrent cost of $57,000. Maintenance of Kowloon

Los Angeles, June 22.

John Barrymore will marry his wife. That is a fact.

Mrs. Elaine Barrie Barrymore arrived here this afternoon and John met her at the train and kissed her fondly, shortly afterwards announcing that they were re-marrying, in spite of the fact that it is technically unnecessary since Mrs. Barrymore's decree was only interlocutory.

"We both think it best," Barrymore explained. "We are still in love." No date has been set for the wedding.—United Press.

WOMEN POLICE FOR CANTON

Canton, June 23.

Canton will shortly have women police for the protection of the fair sex, according to the Canton Gazette. Investigations as to the actual number of women required for this work are proceeding, and recruiting is starting almost immediately.—Reuter.

PUBLIC WORKS SLASHED

Pensions, Wages Necessitate Sharp Economy

Government's urgent need to raise $318,627 over the estimates for Civil Service salaries, and $477,745 over the estimates for Pensions, has caused one of the most drastic slashings of needed Public Works expenditure in the history of the Colony.

Early this year it became evident that at least $500,000 extra would be needed for 1936 salaries, owing to the dollar rate.

By pruning the staffs of almost every Department, Government has succeeded in reducing this to $318,627 above the estimated expenditure for personal emoluments.

In order to find this extra $318,627 an unprecedented slashing of Public Works expenditure has been undertaken.

The Draft Appropriation Account, for 1936, tabled at the Legislative Council meeting this afternoon, discloses that almost every vote for Public Works and Public Works Recurrent has been slashed.

In ordinary expenditure, slashes have been made in original appropriations for lifts maintenance, surveying instruments, technical library, uniforms, upkeep of plant, upkeep and running expenses of motor cars, upkeep of quarry plant, and upkeep of triangulation monuments.

Original appropriations for a light Diesel roller and two 2 1/2 ton lorries have not been expended.

The only increase in Public Works ordinary expenditure has been $9,369 for a short wave wireless transmitter, $1,704 for conveyance allowances and $81,000 for salaries.

Even More Drastic

Even more drastic curtailments have been made in Public Works Recurrent expenditure.

The ordinary annual expenditure of $220,000 for maintenance of buildings has been slashed by over 50 per cent. to $102,224, while the vote of $20,000 for improvements to buildings has been cut to $11,044.

Roads and communications are likewise suffering, in order that Government can find the money for extra salaries and pensions.

Appropriation of $70,000 for maintenance of roads in the city has been cut to $30,000, while the $90,000 originally appropriated for maintenance of roads and bridges outside the city area has been reduced to $34,141.

The appropriation for maintenance of sewers and nullahs has been curtailed by $2,000, and for street lighting by $7,400.

Other Curtailments

Other curtailments, totalling over $15,000, have been made on appropriations for maintenance of public buildings, maintenance of public recreation grounds, dredging and survey.

Maintenance of Public Buildings in Kowloon will cost only $24,000, instead of the usual recurrent cost of $57,000. Maintenance of Kowloon

STOP PRESS

Government has referred the question of pasteurisation of milk to the Secretary of State for the Colonies. Until London opinion is obtained the by-law making pasteurisation compulsory in Hongkong will not be enforced. This information was made public in "Legislative Council" this afternoon in response to questions by the Hon. Mr. M. K. Lo.

The Hongkong Government is considering suggestions for dealing with the alarming increase of armed robberies. It was disclosed in Legislative Council this afternoon. Extra police have been posted in the more important localities. It was stated that since June 1 last year there have been 8 armed robberies on the island and 44 in the remainder of the Colony.

by piece....

HERE'S an all-in outfit for the beach—and you over a bathing dress. Instructions for knitting can make most of it yourself. First of all, the coat and shorts are so simple you can't go wrong. They go over a straight-cut navy blue swim pair of shorts, white wool to match, zip-fastening suit of wool with a two-way stretch in it.

... with instructions for

You Need

1lb. 13ozs. of Anny Blatt Verness wool in white. 1 pair of No. 8, 10 and 12 knitting needles. 4 buttons. 1/4 yard of white petersham ribbon 1 1/2 in. wide. 2 white zipp fasteners 8 ins. long. A ball of Vinyella Lactron yarn in white.

MEASUREMENTS—Length from shoulder to lower edge 28 ins. To fit 34 to 36 inch bust. Length of sleeve scum 18 ins.

ABBREVIATIONS—K. Knit. P. Purl. St. Stitch. Tog. Together. Inc. Increase. Ins. Inches. Rep. Repeat. Dec. Decrease. Beg. Beginning.

TENSION—0 1/2 sts. to 1 inch on No. 8 needles.

On No. 8 needles cast on 63 sts. and work 6 rows in (K1, P1) rib.

Next Row—Rib 6 (for the front border), knit plain to the end of row.

Next Row—S1, P. to the last 6 sts. rib 6. Repeat these last 2 rows, dec. once at end of 13th and every following 14th row until work measures 9 ins. from lower edge, ending with a P. row.

Next Row—Work across 16 sts. cast off 20 sts. for pocket. Work to end. Leave these sts. until pocket lining has been worked.

Pocket Lining

Cast on 20 sts. and work 6 ins. in stocking st. ending with a knit row. Start again on the sts. that were left. Next Row—Purl to the last 6 sts. rib 6, working across pocket lining sts. to replace the 20 sts. cast off. Continue dec. at the end of every 14th row until 54 sts. remain, then work without further shaping until work measures 10 ins. from start, ending with a P. row.

Back

CAST on 120 sts. with No. 8 needles and work 6 rows in (K1, P1) rib. Change to stocking st. dec. once at beg. and end of the 13th and every following 14th row until 108 sts. remain. Continue without shaping until work is same depth as front to underarm.

To shape the armholes K2 tog. at both ends of the next and every following 4th row until 70 sts. remain. Now shape for the shoulders and neck.

Cast off 20 sts. at beg. of each of next 2 rows for the shoulder, then work 1 inch in stocking st. on remaining sts. for the neck. Work across 5 sts. cast off 20 sts. work to the end. Work on last 5 sts. dec. once at neck edge on every row until 1 st. remains. Work on remaining 5 sts. in the same way.

Sleeves

WITH No. 8 needles cast on 60 sts. and work 6 rows in (K1, P1) rib. Change to stocking st. and inc. once at beg. and end of next and every following 10th row until there are 84 sts. on the needle. Continue without further shapings until work measures 18 ins. from beg.

To shape the top: K2 tog. at both ends of every knit row until 22 sts. remain. Continue in stocking st. on these sts. for 3 ins. Cast off. Work another sleeve same way.

Pocket Flaps

With No. 8 needles cast on 36 sts. and work 2 ins. in (K1, P1) rib. Make a buttonhole in the next 2 rows as follows:—

Next row. Rib 16, cast off 4 sts. rib to the end.

Following row. Work in the rib, casting on 4 sts. to replace those cast off. Now continue in rib, dec. one st. at both ends of every row until 2 sts. remain. Cast off. Work a second flap same way.

Half Hood

PRESS all pieces carefully, pressing out ribbing at the lower edge. Sew in sleeves, placing shaped edges to back and front armholes shapings. Sew in the shoulder panels. Sew each side of back neck shapings to side of shoulder panels at the back. Using No. 10 needles, with right side of work facing, beg. at neck edge of the right front, knit up 24 sts. along the front of the neck, 10 sts. up the side of the neck to shoulder, 5 sts. down the other side of the shoulder, and 13 sts. across the back of the neck to the centre (52 sts.).

Work 5 rows in (K1, P1) rib. Continue in rib, casting off 2 sts. at the front edge 12 times. Work back to the front edge. Change to No. 8 needles.

Next Row: (K1, P1) rib on 6 sts. K6 (inc. once in the next st. K1) 8 times (36 sts.). Continue in stocking st., keeping 6 sts. in rib at the front edge, ending with a purl row. Then inc. once at the centre back in the next and every following 4th row until there are 54 sts. on the needle. Cast off.

To complete second half.—Using No. 10 needles, with right side of work facing, beg. at the centre back. Knit up 13 sts. across the back of the neck, 5 sts. up the side of the neck to the shoulder, 10 sts. down the side of the front neck, and 24 sts. along the front of neck. Work 4 rows in (K1, P1) rib.

Continue in rib, casting off 2 sts. at front edge 12 times, work back to front edge. Change to No. 8 needles and complete as for the first half.

Making Up

PRESS the hood carefully, taking care not to press out ribbing at neck. Join top and back seams of the hood. Join the side and sleeve seams. Make a buttonhole loop at top of right front and sew on a button to correspond. Sew a button on right front to match one on left front.

Sew pocket linings in position on wrong side. Place pocket flaps above pockets, allowing them to extend 1/2 inch on each side of pocket opening, and sew in position. Sew on buttons to match buttonholes.

Fresh Air to Order

WHEN the negro "bell hop" showed me to my room on the fourteenth floor he gaped with surprise. For I rushed to the windows and flung them up.

I was English and new to the States.

I had not met air-conditioning before and did not realise that the air inside the room was controlled from inside the room.

And now, in London, "air-conditioning" is household news. Like bathrooms, electric light and refrigerators once were.

Exactly what does this mean? And, even then, how does it apply to the Ordinary Woman (you and, certainly, me)?

A certain professor illustrates the subject well. He tested his students with an atmosphere rather hot and damp; they were lethargic. Then, altering the composition of the air they were breathing he noticed that too little heat and moisture made them restless. By mixing his ingredients "just right" he had his class "attentive and cheerful."

But in this recipe for healthy air there is one ingredient that must be left out, or taken out; and that is, dirt.

You would not think you could wash air—but you can. That is one of the most useful things that real air-conditioning does.

NOW, the ordinary housewife, living in the ordinary small home cannot think—yet—in terms of "100 per cent. air management."

But, when the hot fumes from tarred roads begin to fret us it's reasonable to explore possibilities.

Well, you can change and clean the air and, at the same time, keep these windows shut. You can get an effective machine to expel the used air; you can get a machine that brings in some 450 cubic feet of air, filtered, and keeps out noise.

There is another that washes the air of your room for you all day (and if you had seen its stained filters after a short stay in a nice apparently "clean-air" room, as I have, you would shudder!) and there is another that looks like a table lamp and emits good fresh air, too.

If you want to reside permanently in what is called the comfort zone of conditioning, then there is an apparatus that looks rather like a radiogram and controls temperature, moisture and cleansing of the air you breathe—full "air conditioning," in fact.

Why not start on the kitchen of your small flat—and eject the used air with an inexpensive fan. Or see that the air in your child's bedroom is clean throughout the summer.

Try Swimming For Health

SWIMMING is one of the most healthful of all recreations, but it can also be one of the most unhealthy, unless a few precautions are taken to ensure that no ill-effects result.

The fact that swimming is such an efficient aid in acquiring a beautiful figure is apt to induce women to over-do it.

Frequently after sitting at an office desk all day many of them rush to the seaside or bathing pool in the evenings and at week-ends. They go "all out" for beauty, with the result that on the following day they are tired and listless, having swum for too long a period and too strenuously. Swimming is a good way of exercising all the muscles, but if they are unused to this form of exercise stiffness will result.

It is a wise plan to prolong the bath gradually on each occasion, thus avoiding undue strain.

If you are thinking of spending a holiday by the sea, here are a few hints which should be borne in mind. Choose a moderately warm day for your swim instead of taking a plunge every day regardless of weather. Don't bathe on an excessively hot day, for the contrast between the heat and the cold water is too severe.

How to Avoid Colds

You may catch a chill if you stay in the water too long, and on no account remain in the water if you notice your skin is acquiring a bluish tinge.

Do not keep on your wet bathing suit after the swim, in the hope that the sun will dry it—this procedure leads to colds.

Sunbathing is increasing in popularity year by year, but this beneficial accompaniment to the swim can be harmful unless you exercise care. Be as lazy as you like so that you can relax perfectly, but do not let yourself "roast" beneath the scorching rays of the sun.

A liberal rub down with oil will ensure that you won't blister, and remember that you have seen very

PUPPY LOVERS' TRIAL

"KISS ME AND TAKE THE BLAME" Boy Says He Was Lured Into Confession

New Jersey, June 1.

"AS we drove away from the house in the car, Gladys said to me: 'Take the blame and show your love for me, Donald.'"

This statement made during his evidence at the "puppy lovers' trial" here, today by Donald Wightman set the court astir with anticipation.

"When did you agree?" asked Colonel Vickars, his counsel.

"When we turned the car round to return to Bayonne I said, 'I can't go through with it.' Gladys nestled close to me, put her arms round me, and sobbed a little.

"She said that she thought it would be nice and would prove my love for her if I took the blame. I said: 'If you will let me kiss you once more I'll go through with it and take the blame.'"

Common Tongue Way To Peace

"NOTHING will make more for world peace than a common language—a tongue that will enable ordinary folk of all nations to fraternise with one another."

This claim is made by Sir Benjamin Drax, business chief and technical adviser, who has launched a campaign calling on the League of Nations to sponsor a universal language.

"Daily we are physically brought nearer our fellow-men," he said, "but the mental distance continues. A common language will bring the world closer, mentally and morally."

"I am appealing to the statesmen of the League to give this proposal their grave consideration."

IN 52 COUNTRIES

Sir Benjamin said that the medium for a universal language was a matter of indifference to him. It might be Esperanto, Ido, Basic English, or an entirely new language created by experts appointed by the League.

Whatever medium was chosen the universal language would have to be taught compulsorily in all schools of the 52 League countries. Newspapers would be asked to print columns or sections in the universal language. Soon all countries, whether in the League or not, would be bound, from commercial interests alone, to adopt it.

"At present language is a bar to mutual understanding," said Sir Benjamin. "The curse of Babel is upon us yet. The solution lies in a common tongue."

Sir Benjamin outlines his case for a universal language in "Looking Forward," a pamphlet just published.

"You have every right to be, Mrs. Evans. I can see a wonderful improvement since you took my advice about 'California Syrup of Figs.'"

"I could tell from what you said that there must be toxin in their systems. When children are cross and peevish and lose interest in their food and games, you can be practically sure it's an accumulation of poisonous matter upsetting their insides. I've seen it so often! Just cleanse the system in a safe, natural way, children go ahead like wildfire."

"But do be sure always to give them 'California Syrup of Figs.' It's a natural fruit laxative which safely cleanses and purifies the bloodstream and creates a fine healthy appetite."

"Keep on with the weekly dose of 'California Syrup of Figs,' Mrs. Evans. It's a fine laxative for young and old. As a matter of fact I use it myself and advise you to adopt it for the whole family."

Be sure to get the genuine "California Syrup of Figs."

Desperate Need for Coast Road

MUSSOLINI, anxious to secure sea outlets for Abyssinia, has made an offer to Britain which the Foreign Office has received "with little enthusiasm."

The Duce offers Britain certain territories in Western Abyssinia, including Lake Tsana, in exchange for British Somaliland.

Behind this offer is Mussolini's almost desperate need for a new road connecting Harar, second alley in Abyssinia, with the coast.

The shortest and most suitable road would be from Harar to Berbera on the British Somaliland coast, passing through almost 100 miles of the British Protectorate.

Mussolini's greatest difficulty in Abyssinia to-day is the lack of communication with the sea.

A road from Harar to the Italian Somaliland coast would have to pass through hundreds of miles of mountainous and desert territory. A road from Harar to the coast of Eritrea, which is north of French Somaliland, would also lie through territory which presents great obstacles to the engineers.

OFFERS REJECTED

So Mussolini considers that the most strategic move would be the acquisition of British Somaliland in exchange for territory in Western Abyssinia, including Tsana.

Britain will point out that British Somaliland is not a Crown colony, but a protectorate.

Though the Foreign Office will instruct Sir Eric Drummond, British Ambassador in Rome, to reject these offers, it is understood that the British Government is ready to negotiate along other lines.

Britain is willing, against definite assurances from the Italians to sponsor the building of a road from Berbera to Harar, provided that this road is constructed by British engineers and British Somaliland native labour.

"REMOVE BANNER FOR DUKE" ORDER DEFIED

"Over My Dead Body," U.S. Visitor Tells London

London, June 8.

CAPTAIN REGINALD JAFFRAY, wealthy United States citizen, caused passers-by to stop and stare, defied fellow-tenants, estate agents, and solicitors when he filled the balcony of his Piccadilly flat with £25 worth of flowers and hung out a banner emblazoned with the words:—

"LONG LIFE AND HAPPINESS TO THE DUKE AND DUCHESS."

"Take down that banner," was the order given to Captain Jaffray, summer-time visitor to England for fifty years, who now seeks British naturalisation papers.

UNBORN CHILD MAY SAVE EARLDOM

By CYNTHIA TUDOR

THERE may, after all, be an heir to the Earldom of Lonsborough.

When Lord Lonsborough died from pneumonia in April, aged 42, he left no son and the earldom has ever since been presumed extinct.

But it may still pass to a son, for his 32-year-old widow is anticipating the birth of a child in a few months' time.

The title of Baron Lonsborough—which, with the earldom and that of Viscount Rainsdale, was held by the late peer—was regarded as having passed to a cousin Captain E. W. Denison.

In the event of Lady Lonsborough's baby being a son all the titles will be assumed by him. If, however, the child is a girl she will have the status of an earl's daughter, with the prefix "Lady" to her name. The title Baron Lonsborough would then go to Captain Denison.

An official of the Royal College of Heraldry points out that "such titles in any case are not officially presumed to have passed to an heir until six months have elapsed. Birth of an heir months after the death of the holder of a title or titles is not uncommon, and right of succession is undisputed."

Lady Lonsborough had been married to Lord Lonsborough for 18 months. The ceremony took place at Blankney Church, near Blankney Hall, the earl's Lincolnshire seat. A younger daughter of Lady Kesteven, Lady Lonsborough was Miss Marigold Lubbock, and for two years had shared with Lord Lonsborough the joint-mastership of the Blankney Hounds.

"Go to hell," replied Captain Jaffray. "You take it down over my dead body."

On Coronation Day people stopped and stared at the 2100 decorations hung by Captain Jaffray from his balcony as a gesture of loyalty to the King and Queen.

"No one complained then," he said. "I met the Duke of Windsor on his last visit to Bermuda, where I made my winter home. I admire him greatly, and no one will stop me from wishing him the things that he deserves."

I was told by the estate agents I must take it down. I replied: 'Go to hell!'

TENANTS COMPLAINED

"I pay ten guineas a week rent for the flat, which I have largely furnished with Louis Quinze furniture from the Rothschild sale. I was told that other tenants had complained, and was told to remove the banner."

"I said: 'Look here, I don't intend to take it down.' I was told it was a violation of the lease. I said: 'If it is a violation go ahead and begin a lawsuit. I shall defend it. I object to being forbidden to wish well to the Duke of Windsor, the former King of England.'

OUR GUIDE TO THE CINEMAS

"Dangerous Numbers" (King's Theatre, to-day)—Marital comedy is the theme of this jolly picture which brings Ann Southern back to the screen in an important feature role. The situations are hilarious and perfectly treated by players and director. Robert Young is the leading male and excellent performances come from Reginald Owen, Dean Jagger and Maria Shelton.

"Crown and Glory" (Queen's Theatre, to-day)—Absorbing documentary film depicting the rise of the British Empire during the reigns of Queen Victoria, Edward VII and George V. It gives a new insight into the history of the world's greatest empire, and it is a film which enjoys authenticity and authority.

"Shadow Ranch" (Alhambra Theatre, to-day)—Hard riding, thrilling rescues and slick gun-play make this a typical "Western" which everybody used to enjoy so much before sound and dialogue came to make boudoir scenes the more popular vehicle for pictures. Buck Jones, rugged, whole-hearted and quite obviously enjoying himself, does a nice boisterous piece of work as the hero.

"Satan Met A Lady" (Majestic Theatre, to-day)—Petit but glamorous Bette Davis in a role which eminently suits her. Cleverly supported by Warren William, Arthur Treacher and Allison Skipworth. Entertainment of the 100 per cent. guaranteed stuff.

"Breeding Home" (Oriental Theatre, to-day)—An exciting film centring round the sport of horse racing. An abundance of thrills and dramatic episodes. William Gargan and Blinnie Barnes have the leading roles.

"Crack Up" (Star Theatre, to-day)—Peter Lorre in a rather different type of film to that which he is usually associated. But Lorre's remarkable skill of adaptability permits him to give an ace performance, and the picture adds Brian Donlevy in his quest for stardom.

Tell me, doctor... What is a mother to do!

Why, the scratch was so small you could hardly see it: blood-poisoning never entered my mind. After all, children can't sit still all day—though I have asked Freddie not to play in that shed. But, I mean, it might happen to any of us—a cut, a little scratch! Tell me, what is one to do?

The smallest cut or scratch is enough for the germs of blood-poisoning to enter. To the germs that cause the havoc, a tiny break in the skin is a wide-open door. There is only one way to prevent their invasion; they must be killed—at once. 'Dettol', the Modern Antiseptic, can be applied immediately; there are directions on every bottle. This thorough killer of germs is gentle and tender on human tissues. Non-poisonous and non-staining to the skin, yet death to germs. 'Dettol' promptly used may save you untold pain and danger.

The following day he informed defendant and his son about damage but they did not come the house. On August 1, spoke to defendant personally and told him that he and his family were being living like rats in the house at the same time saying he was not going to stay there. He then went to the office he wrote a letter in effect to defendant, and two or three days later he left the house.

Cross-examined by Mr. Lo, testified that apart from the telephone conversation October 2, 1934, there was no other request for payment of damages, either written or verbal. He admitted he was confused with the dates on which he requested defendant to affect repairs.

The case was adjourned until 7, at 2:30 p.m.

A counter-claim was brought by defendant for being wrongfully evicted from the house and for the rent, including one month's notice.

The equipment for the Smith and drill-sharpening shop, as well as all pneumatic drill, and the best type obtainable. The mill building is completely milled machinery is now erected. One staff house has been completed and two will be finished by the end of June, the report of the health officer will be completed about the middle of July. A large bodega, machine shop, office building and hospital building has been completed and are now in use. Development work is shown continuously and new veins are being discovered and more are being added to the original record. Mr. B. B. Bassett, general superintendent of the property, was recently transferred from Tlingit. W. Fowler has been appointed superintendent and Mr. Sam C. Brown is superintendent. Mr. Brown is in charge of mechanical work.

SIR ERIC GEDDES MOURNED

Served As Admiral And General During War

The death has occurred of Sir Eric Geddes, former General and Admiral, and Chairman of the Dunlop Rubber Co., and of Imperial Airways—Reuter.

Sir Eric Geddes, who had the unique experience of serving as both a General and an Admiral, was primarily a railway expert. Born in 1875, the son of a U.K. landowner of Edinburgh, he was educated at the Oxford Military College and the Royal Naval College, Greenwich. He then went to the Southern States and later got a post on the Baltimore and Ohio Railway from which he went to the Röhrlund and Kumaon Railway in India. Returning to England, he became assistant to Sir G. Gibb on the N.E. Railway and succeeded him as General Manager in 1900.

WAR SERVICE
When Lloyd George became Munitions Minister during the war, he appointed Geddes deputy-director of munitions supplies. In 1916, he showed his skillful administration and when in 1916 he was asked for a railway expert to be sent to France to organize the army communications, Geddes was given the rank of Hon. Major-General and made Director General of Military Railways and the Director General of Transport. With the aid of other railway experts he greatly increased the efficiency of the lines which served the British forces.

Knighted in 1916 and made K.C.B. in 1917, he was then transferred to the Admiralty in connection with the rank of Hon. Vice-Admiral, his task being to utilize all the shipbuilding resources of the country and bring them under one authority. Two months later he succeeded Carson as First Lord, although he had no Parliamentary experience. In Oct. 1918, he went to the United States as head of a naval mission.

"GEDDES AXE"
After the armistice Lloyd George gave him the task of devising plans for the reduction of the enormous Government Departments which had been built up during the war—a process that became famous as the "Geddes axe", although all the cuts he recommended were not made. In 1921-2 he was chairman of the Economy Committee which dealt with this question. Meanwhile in view of Lloyd George's scheme for development and control of the railways and other communications Geddes left the Admiralty in Jan. 1919, to become the first Minister of Transport, but the Geddes scheme originally proposed at a time when drastic economies were essential aroused strong opposition in the Commons. A bill for the re-grouping of the railways was introduced by Geddes in the spring of 1921 and after they had been handed back to the company he resigned his seat in Parliament in Feb. 1922.

In 1920 he brought in the horsepower tax on motors which superseded the petrol duty and in Apr. 1920, he protested against Churchill's proposed railway bill. He thus created as a breach of the pledges given six years before.

Chairman of the Dunlop Rubber Co. from 1923, he was elected to a similar position in connection with Imperial Airways, Ltd., on its formation in 1924. In Sept. 1928, with a party of eight he made a cruise from Southampton to Oban and Liverpool in a flying boat which was the first big passenger machine to alight on a British lake, Loch Lomond. In the same month he resigned the chairmanship of the concern in order to give undivided attention to the Dunlop Co. The Airways, which had made a loss of £16,000 in their first year, secured a profit of £72,000 in the fourth and he felt that fair weather was ahead of the undertaking. In 1929 he made a long tour in the interests of the Dunlop Co. Most of the time was spent in Australia where the firm had big developments in hand, but he also visited the rubber plantations in Malaya. On his return he had to announce a reduction of profits by about £1,700,000, thanks largely to the abolition of the rubber restrictions. He declared that, if the Government had given adequate notice of this, the greater part of the firm's loss need not have been incurred.

FAULTY SCALES FINES IMPOSED IN TWO CASES

Summoned before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy this morning with having possession of faulty scales, the Sincere Company, were fined $20.

Inspector A. L. Hopkins stated that the scales were out two drams at normal; 1 1/2 drams at 4 ounces; 3 1/2 drams at one pound and 4 drams at 4 pounds.

Mr. D. B. Evans, appearing for the defendants, said the scales were ten years old and the rust and decomposition might account for the discrepancy. The scales were used for the selling of sweets and, as was generally known, sweet vendors invariably give one or two sweets overweighed to customers. Experiments had been made and those one or two sweets weighed approximately two drams.

ANOTHER CASE
A fine of $10 was imposed on the On Lok Yuen company, when they were summoned before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy this morning charged with the possession of two faulty scales on June 11.

Mr. W. A. Brown appearing for the defence, pleaded guilty, and pointed out that the scales were used only up to four pounds. They were used in the biscuit department and it was impossible to get more than four pounds of biscuits on the scales. Between four and seven pounds the scales were faulty. The defendants were getting new scales.

The scales were confiscated. Inspector A. L. Hopkins prosecuted.

COLONY ESCAPES HEAVY DEFICIT

$6 to $10; Beer from 60 cents to 80 cents.

Duty on motor spirits was increased from 25 to 30 cents a gallon, and duties on tobacco were made to import duties on tobacco.

Even the dogs were given a dog's life. Licences for male dogs were increased 100 per cent. from $5, while a female dog cost even more; the increase being from $6 to $10.

RADIOS COST MORE

Radio listeners were forced to pay an extra $2 per annum for their licences, and even the rates for passports were increased.

Even the cost of dying became prohibitive, with new Death Duties ranging from 2 per cent. for estates of $10,000 to 13 per cent. for the millionaires.

License rates were substantially increased, and it cost more to send letters to any part of the world, the Colony included.

Most of these increases went to pay the higher pensions and civil service salaries rendered necessary by the fall in the dollar. Pensions payable last year amounted to $2,207,745.

The Colony's Excess of Assets over Liabilities at the end of the year was $12,387,608. Almost $10,000,000 of these Assets, however, had been advanced for the Public Works (Shing Mun, etc.), pending the issue of the remainder of the Dollar Loan.

PASSENGER LISTS INCOMPLETE SHIPPING COMPANIES FINED

Messrs. Butterfield and Swire, summoned before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy this morning with having failed to supply to the police a correct list of passengers sailing on the s.s. Hupeh on May 14, were fined $10.

Mr. D. H. White, representing the defendant company, said the company had failed to recognize the Japanese passengers, as they were dressed in ordinary clothes.

Sub-Inspector Edwards stated that two letters were received by the police from Japanese residents stating that they were departing the Colony on board the s.s. Hupeh. When the passenger list was received from the Company these Japanese were not included.

A fine of $10 was also imposed on the O.S.K. on a similar charge of failing to supply to police with a correct list of passengers sailing on board the Fukuen Maru from Hongkong on June 2.

Inspector Edwards pointed out that the Company should have known these passengers, as they had been seen to Hongkong specially for the Dojima Maru inquiry.

LOUIS WHIPS CHAMPION IN WILD FINISH

already crimson. They clinched over the ropes. Braddock's round.

Champion Groggy

ROUND SIX.—Both came out fresh and dancing. Braddock scored with a jabbing right. Louis replied with a left jab. Louis hammered with his left persistently. Braddock dived in and they commenced a furious exchange. The champion's eye was bloody and swollen and Louis concentrated upon it. The terrible Joe, showing no sign of emotion, staggered Braddock with three rights and then proceeded to beat him unmercifully. Braddock was groggy at the bell.

SEVENTH ROUND.—Louis appeared strong as ever. However, Braddock pinned him to the ropes, but swung wildly when he had an opening. Louis lifted two lefts and followed with a right across which staggered Braddock. The champion was bleeding profusely from several cuts about the face. Louis, the marksman, speared his battered face further with his left. A right jab shook Braddock. Louis came in closer and hooked. Braddock was taking terrible punishment and showing terrific punishment and showing terrific. His face was badly swollen.

Picked Him To Pieces

With an effort Braddock sailed into the negro and landed one stinging uppercut. Louis calmly stepped away, and then returned to pick his opponent to pieces with short rights and lefts. Braddock continued to throw blows which never connected.

LOUIS ROUND.—Louis pounded Braddock's face and immediately had blood flowing. His jabs were effective. Both missed in a series of weaving exchanges. Louis drove a left hook to the stomach. They sparred in mid-ring, but Louis was watching for a chance. He smashed a right to Braddock's chin with all his weight behind it. The champion toppled backwards and did not move during the count. He was carried to his corner 1 minute and 10 seconds after the opening bell of the round.—United Press.

Spanish Assurances

London, June 22. The authorities at Salamanca, in response to a communication from the British Government on behalf of the four powers engaged in patrolling the Spanish coasts to prevent intervention, indicated they would give the completest guarantee of safety to neutral warships of the four-powers patrolling on the high seas and close to indicate safety zones in Government ports where warships will be free from accidental attacks, according to a Foreign Office communiqué.

Hitherto no reply has been received from the Spanish Government to a similar request.—Reuter.

Suggested Penalties

Berlin, June 22. The confiscation of merchantmen, the blockade of harbours and naval demonstrations are suggested in authoritative quarters here as penalties for Spanish attempts to damage patrol vessels, a Government spokesman told Reuter to-day.

He added that the attack on the Deutschland has made us sensitive. We regret that our indignation about the Leipzig was not taken as seriously as it ought to be. Fragile Twins Win Through To Health With The Aid of BABY'S OWN TABLETS.

Practical proof such as is afforded by the evidence of Mrs. J. Henry, a Canadian mother residing at 340 Sumach Street, Toronto, is much more convincing than any amount of theoretical talk.

"My first children were twins," writes this lady. "They were born prematurely and weighing only 2 1/2 lbs each. When they were six months old I read of Baby's Own Tablets and decided to give them a trial. The results were very gratifying.

"These children are now 6 1/2 years old and I can truthfully say they have never had a serious sickness. My third child has been given these tablets since he was one month old, has now 12 teeth and never had any trouble or sickness during teething.

Just this simple treatment with Baby's Own Tablets is generally all that is needed to correct the general run of childhood ailments such as constipation, indigestion, wind, diarrhoea, simple fever, colds. The tablets expel worms and are invaluable at teething time, settling the stomach and soothing the pain, thus quickly inducing restful sleep in a perfectly natural way. Absolutely safe for the youngest baby in arms, Baby's Own Tablets are equally good for children of all ages. From chemists everywhere.

FALSE ADDRESS GIVEN FRENCHMAN FINED ON TWO COUNTS

Oscar Paul Gendre, aged 40, an unemployed Frenchman, was charged before Mr. K. Keen at the Central Magistracy this morning on two counts of giving false information when registering as an alien at the Registration Office on June 17, and failing to notify his change of address to the Harbour View Hotel on June 18.

Defendant pleaded guilty to both charges and said he did not know the police were so strict.

Acting Sub-Inspector J. H. E. Edwards, who prosecuted, said that Gendre arrived in the Colony from Mueno on June 15, and gave his address to the shipping company as being at No. 134 Kennedy Road, but defendant could not be found at this address.

On June 17, he went to the Registration Office to register himself, and stated that he resided at No. 218 Prince Edward Road, but on the police going there, defendant could not be traced.

Washington, June 22. Bids by private shipyards having been far in excess of Government yards' estimates, the U.S. Navy Department announces that it will construct its two new battleships in Government shipyards at New York and Philadelphia.—Reuter.

On June 21, the police received information that defendant was staying at the Harbour View Hotel, so he was sent for and subsequently charged.

A fine of $15 was imposed in each charge.

SILVER CYPRESS SOLD TO JAPAN FOR SCRAP IRON, SAYS REPORT

The fire-scarred freighter Silver Cypress for more than four months a familiar sight in Manila Bay, has been sold to Japanese interests for scrap steel, according to reports circulating in Manila shipping circles.

Reliable information stated that she was bought for about 270,000 pesos delivery to be in Manila.

The sale has been consummated, yet affected by the fire, once operated on the round-the-world service by the Prince Line-Silver Line, will leave soon for Japan where she is to be dismantled. All negotiations with shippers who lost cargo in the fire which destroyed the Silver Cypress averages and insurance adjustment transactions had previously been concluded.

The motorship Silver Cypress returned to Manila about the middle of February, her aft mast askew, her docks twisted, her superstructures badly burned, and practically the whole ship showing the effects of the fire which raged in her holds in the fire docks for several days in Manila. Fire docks started on January 13, while the ship was anchored about half a mile from Guimaras Island, caused a total loss of all cargo carried aft of midships.

For days Captain James Smith, commander of the British freighter, fought the flames and directed work of unloading cargo from holds not yet affected by the fire. Eight passengers, including three from Hongkong were landed without mishap as soon as the fire began to assume serious proportions. The Silver Cypress left Manila on January 11 for Manila and was to have proceeded to Shanghai and Hongkong from the southern port.

The Silver Cypress was of 6,770 tons gross and 3,693 net tons. One of the newest ships of the Silver Line, Ltd., the vessel was classified as 100 A-1 by Lloyd's. She was built in 1930 by Harland and Wolff, Ltd., Belfast. She was 456.3 feet long, 62 feet wide and 25.6 feet deep. She had three decks and a cruiser stern.

Like her sisterships, the Silver Walnut, the Silver Sandal and the Silver Teak, all of which were also built in 1930, the Silver Cypress was equipped with refrigerating machinery and was an oil burner. She had twin screws, and her speed was 14 1/2 knots.

The name of one of the defendants in summonses for exceeding the time-limit on car parks yesterday was given as Dr. H. Balcen. It should have been Dr. G. T. Balcen.

While driving a motor cycle along Leichikok Road yesterday, Sig. E. Granger, of the Royal Corps of Signals, Whitfield Barracks, knocked down Chan Chuen, aged 20, who was taken to the Kowloon Hospital with injuries to the head and legs.

A serious loss was suffered by a villager at Ma Tin village, in the Pingshan district, on Monday, when someone broke into his house and decamped with a large quantity of jewellery, consisting of gold bangles and finger rings, to the total value of $200.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

He who has a thousand friends has not a friend to spare, and he who has one enemy shall meet him everywhere.

—Ali Ben Abu Taleb.

Suffering from a fractured right leg when he tripped over some rope at Taihook Dockyard yesterday, Cheung Chow, aged 55, a watchman, was admitted to the Queen Mary Hospital.

A report was made to the police yesterday by Mr. J. H. Verwey, Second Officer of the J.C.J.L. steamer Tjalsvoen, that some person had entered his cabin during his absence, and stole a fountain pen and money to the total value of $25.

Running across Queen's Road West last evening, Lau King-hung, an eight-year-old boy, was knocked down by a motor car driven by Chiu Man. He was taken to the Queen Mary Hospital with fractured leg and head injuries, and his condition is stated to be serious.

HAWKERS' LICENCES

Judging from the discussion on the subject by the Executive Committee of the Society for the Protection of Children, there would appear to be need for a definite statement of policy from the Government on the question of restriction of hawkers' licences. At the moment, the impression created is that the problem is one which is being dealt with piecemeal by various Departments, with no indication of a considered policy by the Government itself. On the matter of food hawkers, there must be general approval of the lines being followed by the Urban Council, if we except the sale of vegetables, which, admittedly grown under insanitary conditions, encounter no fresh danger by being hawked. Moreover, such comestibles are invariably cooked before being consumed. The promiscuous hawking of uncooked food, and of drinks, is without question open to grave objections from the standpoint of public health. More often than not, unsold food is taken by the hawker back to his home, to remain, maybe, all night under the bed or in some such unhygienic surroundings, and then brought out next day and offered for sale again. Obviously, danger lurks in such practices. But when we come to consider the question of other types of hawking, the objections do not seem so well founded. Nor is the precise authority of the departments pursuing a policy of restriction or abolition altogether clear. Whilst there may be good reason for controlling the number of hawkers and newspaper sellers, the fact should not be overlooked that this means of earning a livelihood is the only one open to a large section of the poorest classes of the community, notably widows with families to support. To deprive them of this opportunity is only to encourage the begging nuisance, which has already assumed large proportions in the Colony and given it a bad name when compared with other parts of the Far East. The idea that the number of licences for cigarette hawkers, or for wine and tobacco shops, should be kept low because of the increased difficulty of detecting smugglers, is quite indefensible. It is somewhat akin to the reported advice of the police to goldsmiths' shops that they should shut down early in order to avoid the danger of being victimised by armed robbers. The business of the authorities is to keep track of smugglers in the one instance and to provide a reasonable measure of protection in the other. In the cases of cigarette hawking and wine and tobacco shop licences, supply and demand should be the ruling consideration when fixing the numbers. The whole hawking prob-

Llewelyn
Powys

If possible they might catch some of the brown seeds that freckle the undersides of these primitive growths.

"We have the receipt of fern-seed, we walk invisible," cried Falstaff and his crew at Gadshill, and there has been a persistent tradition that these seeds, if secured without shaking the fern, possess the power of making a human being invisible.

WITH these woodland "hundreds and thousands" fast enclosed within his flat a boy can safely visit his true love's bower and see her where she lies, as dainty as a fallow deer asleep in the moonlight.

But for a fortunate lad such saucy shifts are unrequited. He has won the heart of his true love and can continually be with her. He can watch the summer winds play through her hair, hair that smells as sweet as the old-fashioned pinks called "sops-in-wine."

He can observe how the light of the stars edges her wrists and lips with a glint more pure than gold or silver; he can hear her whispers of love in the dim light, whispers softer than a sound of wings amongst summer leaves.

It will not matter where such children wander, on Midsummer's Eve they will be entranced. On this night the country has the appearance of a Garden of Adonis.

Titania, Queen of the Fairies, in Reinhardt's film of Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream."

In every shire hay-making is in progress, and the aroma of the sun-tanned grass is being liberated by the midnight dews. What a soft balm must rise to the mackerel clouds of Midsummer motionless for so long, over the island of England set in her silver seal!

This year Midsummer's Eve is likely to be more than ever eerie. It falls three days after an eclipse of the sun, and upon a night when the moon is too young even to be seen so that lovers wise enough to turn out of the noisy roads must find their way over stile and along halter-path by star-shine.

How still the pastures can be in the sacred night! Patiently they lie waiting for the farm workers under the morrow's blaze of noon to complete their task of husbanding the rich animal fodder.

It was the extraordinary beauty of a freshly mowed hayfield abandoned at twilight that so stirred the imagination of Matthew Arnold. In one of his poems he describes the hush of such an English meadow being suddenly disturbed by Dionysos and his rout.

"The business of the day is done,
The last-left hay-maker is gone,
And from the thyme upon the height
And from the elder-blossom white
And pale dog-roses in the hedge
And from the mint-plant in the sedge,
In puffs of balm the night-air blows
The perfume which the day forgot."
Gaily their pine-staff green
Tossing in air
Loose o'er their shoulders white
Showering their hair—
See! the wild Maenads
Break from the wood,
Youth and lechus
Maddening their blood."

Perhaps it was the possibility of finding themselves surprised by just such an invasion which used to prompt young maids to carry with them a spray of St. John's Wort on this night, as a sure protection against any familiarities from fairy populations.

INDEED, one demon-lover, feeling the virtue of this blessed plant acting against his cherished intentions, is said to have exclaimed in his frustrated vexation,
"Gin ye wud be lcan mino Lay aside the St. John's wort and the vervaine!"

But more efficacious even than St. John's wort—so beloved by Saint Columba—is the inconspicuous simple known as ditt. If this herb be pinned to frock it will serve as an absolute talisman against all the pretty mischances incident to Midsummer's Eve.

"Whoever wearath vervaine or ditt

ALL the romantic associations connected with Midsummer's Eve cannot prevent us from experiencing a vague sense of depression over the fact that the sun has once again turned about upon his golden heel. It is true that the planet's circumambient atmosphere has accumulated so much warmth already that, despite the sun's recession, we still have before us the hottest months of the year, yet, even so, our bones harbour the knowledge that the haunting days of June will soon begin to shorten towards the pinched winter hours of November and December!

Perhaps it was partly to put out of mind this abeyant trouble that men chose Midsummer for the occasion of such wild rejoicings, desperately attempting with song and dance to forget how transitory was the opulence of the new season. The summer solstice seems always to have been dedicated to pastoral celebrations. About the Mediterranean basin it was the custom of the people from every "little town by river or sea-shore" to go out to bathe at this time of the year.

The Church Fathers were not slow to appropriate these aboriginal rites to their own ends, and possibly recalling a memorable verse in their sacred books, fixed upon June the 24th for the Nativity of St. John the Baptist, a saint whose baptismal associations might easily become identified with the older popular customs connected with the worship of fire and water!

"He must increase and I must decrease." To the minds of zealous Christians, absorbed in the mysteries of the new faith, it seemed reasonable to apply such prophetic sounding words to the triumph of the Church of Christ and the symbolical defeat of the sun, with his passage across the heavens becoming each day less wide.

THERE is no doubt that Midsummer's Night is the most psychic, the most haunted, night of the year. Shakespeare understood this. It is why he named his fairy play "Midsummer Night's Dream." It is a night renowned for supernatural occurrences.

For centuries it was considered imprudent to go to sleep on this evening, for it was during its bewitched hours that the souls of the living destined to die within the next two months, left their dreaming bodies to glide away to the exact spot where they would endure their death agony, whether at home or in the fields.

And these rehearsal journeys by poor doomed ghosts could, so it was supposed, be observed by wary people who remained stubbornly awake on this treacherous evening. But it is not for those of us who love earth-life to trouble our heads with occult rumours of this kind. Confucius, when questioned as to the attitude that his followers should adopt towards the superstitious beliefs of his age, answered: "A wise man should be careful to respect supernatural beings but at the same time he should be alert to keep out of their way."

Surely the peculiar properties of this most poetic of all days in the year should be put to a better use than for squinting and prying into forbidden secrets. As long as we know enough to carry bread to our mouths just so long can we be happy. Let us emulate the Athenian lovers and go wandering off into the green woods. There is grace to be had from such happy trances with our "sweet-hearts of St. John."

IN medieval times it was the custom for love-sick bachelors on Midsummer's Eve to frequent some secret woodland recess, where in a silence delicate and profound the "woo" of ferns dream-away their unobtrusive existence.

It was the plan of these bachelors to hold their hands under the drooping fronds so that

A "Thriller" of Fifty Years
Ago

SOMETHING of the old "thrill" is experienced even now as I open the slim, paper-covered volume and allow myself to be caught and carried along by the impetuous style of the writer, although I first read it half a century ago!

Born and reared in a remote part of the country, one had small opportunity for cultivating a taste for literature, for books were scarce, and the only available reading of the lighter sort was the slaphash fiction purveyed by the weekly newspaper which found its way at irregular intervals to our northern shores. Most of the great masters of fiction were only a name. Certain of the less interesting of the Waverley novels had been dipped into, but the lengthy introductions had proved a draw-back, and the books had been wisely put aside, in the hope that appreciation would come with the years—a hope, I may add, which has been fully realised.

Added to a craving for books was a vague yearning after the literary life itself. No other life seemed worth living! This craving had been stimulated by the acceptance by a boys' magazine of one or two little tales which had been submitted to the editor in fear and trembling, and the day I received my first effusion (together with a cheque) was a day long to be remembered.

It was about this time that there came into my hands, by the merest chance, a stray copy of the Bristol Times and Mirror, a paper I had never seen before and have not seen since. Scanning the pages of the journal my eyes lighted upon the headline, "Death of Hugh Conway." I had heard of a successful writer of that name, but had no opportunity of reading any of his books; consequently I perused the newspaper item appears to need thorough investigation, followed by a clear statement of policy by the Government.

report of "Hugh Conway's" romantic career with the deepest interest.

A Happy Chance

Here was a man over whom literature had early cast its spell, a man who had served his apprenticeship to the dearly loved craft, experiencing the inevitable pangs of disappointment that fall to the lot of the literary tyro, yet persevering until at length the coveted goal had been reached; when, just as fame and fortune were within his grasp, he was cut down in the prime of manhood. And what a success his was!

A tale entitled "Called Back," the longest he had as yet attempted, written for Mr. Arrowood, of Bristol, with a view to recouping that publisher for the loss sustained in connection with a Christmas annual to which Conway had contributed, was destined to raise the latter almost at a bound to the high peak of literary fame.

At first the book fell flat. Its "get up" was anything but attractive, and its author was as yet unknown. One day, some weeks after its publication, Mr. Henry Labouchere, when settling out upon a railway journey, happened to pick up a copy of the book, and, pocketing it, slipped it into his bag. However, diverted his attention, and he forgot all about his purchase. On reaching home, late at night, he came upon the book, and, sitting down, he listlessly glanced at the opening page. His attention became riveted, and he read on—nor did he put the book aside until he had reached the end. The following issue of Truth contained a glowing notice of "Called Back," and the success of the book was assured. "Everybody" said the newspaper report, "read this thrilling and cleverly devised story. The sale of the book became immense, and for months several machines were kept going night and day printing copies; while from all parts there came requests for the successful author to contribute tales to journals and magazines."

A Career Cut Short.

Encouraged by the phenomenal success of "Called Back," Hugh Conway quickly produced a second novel, entitled "Dark Days," which ran like almost as many editions as its predecessor. Feeling that his future as a writer was now fully assured, Conway (whose real name, by the way, was F. J. Fergus) retired from the business which he had been conducting in Bristol and removed to London with the intention of devoting himself entirely to literary work.

But, alas! the smile of fortune was soon to be withdrawn. While abroad in search of material for a new romance, he contracted a serious illness which terminated fatally, and his remains were interred in the English cemetery at Nice.

The reader will readily imagine how all this appealed to one like myself, and with what avidity I procured "Called Back," and the other works from Hugh Conway, and the portrait of the deceased author together with his autograph, or a scrap of something in his handwriting, but in this I was at first unsuccessful.

Some time later I gathered from a paragraph in a copy of The Scotsman which a friend had sent me that a tablet with portrait in bas-relief had been erected to his memory in Bristol Cathedral, and I immediately registered a vow that somehow, I knew not how, sometime, I knew not when, I would see that tablet for myself.

Years passed, and I became a unit in the war-time life of a great city.

One day in the summer of 1900 I found myself in Bristol, having been called thither in an unexpected manner. Bristol Hugh Conway!

Low Dollar Costs Colony Thousands

Heavy Expenditure On Government Pensions

Increase Likely To Continue

More than 60 per cent. of the total Supplementary Expenditure passed by Legislative Council this afternoon was for pensions.

As a result the total expenditure on pensions this year will be $2,287,745, an all time record for the Colony. The original estimate was for an expenditure of $1,810,000.

Civil Servants Retiring Allowances and Gratuities will cost $1,026,545 compared with the estimate of $1,205,000; Police Pensions will cost $376,029, compared with the estimate of $320,000; and Widows and Orphans' pensions will cost $285,170, compared with the estimate of $240,000.

All these increases are attributed, in the Draft Appropriation Account, laid on the Table at Legislative Council this afternoon, to the lower exchange rate prevailing this year. It seems likely that pensions next year will be even higher, because, during the past twelve months, several civil service heads who will draw at least $1,000 per annum have gone on the pension list.

The remarkable fashion in which pensions have grown in Hongkong during the past two decades is shown in the following table, compiled from official records:

	Civil Servants	Police	Widows & Orphans	Total
1920	190,820	45,000	30,500	266,320
1921	216,000	50,000	40,000	316,000
1922	228,800	52,500	41,500	322,800
1923	232,000	55,700	40,800	328,500
1924	233,800	55,000	40,000	328,800
1925	250,000	55,000	41,000	346,000
1926	277,600	57,000	40,000	374,600
1927	313,310	61,200	40,000	414,510
1928	315,400	61,200	40,000	416,600
1929	423,000	63,000	40,000	526,000
1930	515,000	63,000	40,000	618,000
1931	593,000	63,000	40,000	696,000
1932	1,048,000	70,000	40,000	1,158,000
1933	1,306,000	70,000	40,000	1,416,000
1934	1,530,000	70,000	40,000	1,640,000
1935	1,430,000	70,000	40,000	1,540,000
1936	1,250,000	70,000	40,000	1,360,000
1937	1,287,745	376,029	285,170	1,948,944

Each year, more names are added to the rapidly expanding list of pensioners. Hongkong, in fact, is becoming a Colony of pensioners. Last year there were 1,050 people drawing Civil Service pensions. Thirty-four persons are drawing pensions ranging from a minimum of £400 per annum up to £1,250 per annum.

The Government was, last year, still paying a pension of £78 per annum to Kail Singh, an Indian Assistant Warden who retired owing to ill-health on October 14, 1892. Pensions payable by the Police Department date even further back, for it is recorded that one Jumal Khan has been drawing a pension of $46.50 per annum since January 4, 1877. He is now 96 years of age.

POLICE SERGEANT ROBBED

RESERVIST CATCHES PICKPOCKET

An Indian police sergeant, B307, was the unconscious victim of a pickpocket on board a tramcar yesterday, but a Police Reservist, walking along the road, saw the attention being paid to sergeant by the thief, and arrested him.

Before Mr. K. Keen at the Central Magistracy this morning, Lam Yau-chung, aged 23, unemployed, was charged with the larceny of $10 from Sergeant B307, which he admitted. Acting Inspector E. G. Post said that the sergeant was in plain clothes on a tramcar, and defendant was also on board. When passing the Royal Naval Dockyard, Police Reservist R253, Mahomed Ahsan, of the Post Office, who was walking in Queen's Road, saw Lam put his hand into the sergeant's pocket and take out the money. He gave chase to the tramcar, and arrested defendant, who produced the $10. It was only then that the sergeant discovered his loss.

Defendant was fined $150, or three months' hard labour.

Labour Aim Is Uniform Protection

China's Problem Before I.L.O.

Geneva, June 22.

A joint resolution submitted by the Belgian, Indian, Chinese and Japanese workers' delegates, in favour of application of a uniform system of protection for the workers of China, whether their undertakings were situated in foreign concessions or not, gave rise to an animated discussion at the International Labour Office to-day before it was carried unanimously.

The Japanese employers' adviser, Mr. Kawaguchi, read a telegram from the Japanese Mill Owners' Association in China claiming that employment conditions were better in the concessions than in the rest of China. He contended that Chinese factory law was not really observed in Chinese factories because it was too idealistic.

The representative of the Chinese workers, Mr. Yao, said that if the intensive industrialisation of China proceeded and unfair conditions were allowed to persist, full competition would be greatly impaired and serious economic repercussions would ensue.

China's Government spokesman refuted some of the contentions of Mr. Kawaguchi. The Japanese adviser had said that it was notable that wages in the concessions were 10 per cent. higher. On the contrary, the Chinese spokesman said, Chinese workers averaged 30 per cent. more outside the concessions.

The French spokesman said his Government was ready to apply any progressive legislation if it were applied equally throughout China. The suggestion that a 40-hour week for all industry be made general was placed on the agenda for the next Labour Conference, the delegates voting 66 to 39 in favour of the move.—Reuter.

Year's Civil Claims

Less Litigation Last Year

Fewer people went to law last year in civil claims, it is revealed in the report of the Registrar of the Supreme Court, which has just been released.

The number of actions heard in Original and Summary Jurisdiction were 236 and 1,753 respectively, as compared with 353 and 2,126 for 1935.

The monetary claims represented, however, showed an increase in the case of those heard in Original Jurisdiction, the amounts for 1936 and 1935 being respectively $3,115,002.05 and $2,549,454.40. Claims in the lower Court amounted to $460,474.71, as compared with $803,250.81 for the preceding year. Distraints for rent, which were such a distressing feature of the depression period, also showed a marked decrease, the number and unpaid rents which these distraints represented, being 1,023 and $325,095.64 respectively, as against figures of 2,350 and $422,557.18 for 1935.

Cool Weather Continues

Rain Forecasted By Observatory

Yesterday's weather was substantially cooler than the day before, according to the Royal Observatory report. A maximum temperature of 81 was recorded, which was five degrees lower than on Monday. The minimum night temperature was 70, the same as for Monday.

To-day's 10 a.m. temperature, 77, was the same as yesterday's, but humidity at 93 was lower. The barometer reading was 29.82. Rainfall for the 24 hours ended at 10 a.m. to-day was 0.85-inch, bringing the year's total to 37.94 inches, against an average of 34.03.

This morning's weather report reads: Pressure continues highest over the Pacific to the east of Japan, and the trough extends from India China across Formosa and Luzon to the Loochoos. Local forecast: East winds, moderate; cloudy, rain.

YEAR'S SESSION CASES

The annual report of the Registrar of the Supreme Court states that 203 persons stood their trial at the Criminal Sessions during last year, of whom 196 were convicted.

Three appeals were made in Appellate Jurisdiction against conviction on indictment, and nine appeals against conviction by Magistrates. There were six appeals in the civil divisions, and one action in Admiralty Jurisdiction.

Puts End To "Dumping" Of Sugar Here

P. I. High Commissioner Bans Exports

London Agreement Violated?

Sensational disclosures that Hongkong has been used as a "dumping ground" for Philippine sugar, in contravention of the spirit of the recent London Sugar Agreement, have followed swift action by the United States High Commissioner to the Philippines, Mr. P. V. McNutt.

As a result of this action, an embargo was placed on the export of sugar to Hongkong, as from last Saturday.

The embargo is stated to have affected the export of at least 2,000 tons of sugar waiting shipment. One hundred thousand pounds of sugar which have been shipped by the Dollar Line to Hongkong, and are on the wharves at Manila, would be greatly impaired and serious economic repercussions would ensue.

Prevention of sugar exports to Hongkong followed disclosures that Philippine interests were systematically violating the London Sugar Agreement, which restricts exports from various sugar producing countries.

In response to a report by the Philippine Sugar Association that their had been several shipments of Philippine sugar to Hongkong since the date of the signing of the London Pact, which came almost simultaneously with Associated Press reports of a protest by Japanese sugar interests against such shipments, the High Commissioner, Mr. McNutt, acted immediately to prevent further shipments to this Colony.

The first shipment affected was a large consignment booked to go out by the Dollar Line to Hongkong, which arrived in Hongkong to-day. It has been revealed, however, that over 4,000 tons of sugar has been exported to Hongkong, in contravention of the Agreement, before the Philippines embargo became effective.

SOLD CHEAP It is learned in Philippine sugar circles that among those who have shipped sugar to Hongkong recently are a Spanish and an English firm. It is further stated that these shipments were disposed of in Hongkong at $1 per picul, which is thirty-three per cent. below current wholesale rates.

The following official statement was released in Manila on Saturday: The High Commissioner acted yesterday to prevent further dumping of Philippine sugar to Hongkong. The High Commissioner received a report from the Philippine Sugar Association to the effect that there had been several shipments to that port since the date of signing the International Sugar Agreement in London. Unofficial copies of the Agreement and the Protocol annexed thereto apparently brand such shipments as a violation of the Agreement. The pertinent section of the Agreement follows:

Article 10 (a). The government of the Commonwealth of the Philippines undertakes, so long as the United States maintains a quota for Philippine sugar of not less than an amount equal to 800,000 long tons of unrefined sugar plus 50,000 long tons of refined sugar per calendar year, not to export sugar to countries other than the United States, its territories and possessions, until additional export quotas are allotted under Article 20 of the present agreement.

While the Agreement does not go into effect until September 1, 1937, Paragraph 5 of the Protocol, which is the basis of the signature government, maintain the spirit of the agreement until that date. It reads as follows:

"5. Each signatory Government undertakes to issue to so far as its territories are concerned the sanction as regards production, export and import of sugar shall not be modified in a manner contrary to the aims of the Agreement during the period between the date of its signature and the date of entry into force of the Agreement. Any infringement of this undertaking shall be equivalent to a violation of the Agreement."

The High Commissioner states that he is particularly anxious that the Philippine Commonwealth should avoid any possible charge of violation and that he would request the Commonwealth Government to do all in its power to prevent the shipment of sugar to countries other than the United States, at least until official copies of the Agreement and its Protocol and State Department interpretation are received in Manila. The circumstances of these shipments have been reported to the State Department.

LOCAL COMPANY REGISTRATIONS

OVER FIFTY LAST YEAR

The report of the Registrar of Companies states that during last year 55 new companies were registered, bringing the total number of companies on the Registers of the Companies Office to 909.

Of these 909 were locally incorporated. The remaining 212 were incorporated outside the Colony but carry on business within the Colony. Thirty-two companies were removed from the Register by reason of the cessation of their business.

Flies East Just To See S'hai Play

Produtor On Board Hongkong Clipper

Mr. Frederick Schang, Jr., vice-President of Columbia Concerts Corporation of New York, which is owned by the Columbia Broadcasting System, arrives in Hongkong this afternoon by the Hongkong Clipper. He is on his way to Shanghai to see a stage play.

Mr. Schang has travelled over 11,000 miles and his trip to Shanghai will add about 800 more. After completing the return trip he will have travelled 24,000 miles, which is about 3,000 miles more than once around the world. This is believed to be the farthest that any man ever travelled just to see a stage production.

This play is unique in that it is the work of a Russian composer, Aaron Ausholmoff, and an American woman, Vanya Oakes. It consists of four ballets in which Chinese women are the performers. It is an attempt to translate Chinese music into the instrumentality of a modern symphony orchestra.

The play will be staged in Shanghai on Friday in order that Schang, who is travelling from here by C.N.A. C. plane, may determine whether it is suitable for the American market. Ausholmoff's compositions have been played by the Philadelphia symphony orchestra and they have been well received by American audiences, Schang said.

The Columbia Broadcasting System has turned its attention to the Far East in search of something new to offer to the American public.

Mr. Schang was largely responsible for introducing Mei Lan Fang to the American public some seven years ago, and the success of that venture led many to believe in the great possibilities of Oriental music in to-day's theatre.

Disowned By Father

Youth With Craving For Gambling

Disowned by his father two years ago because of his craving for gambling, Shek Shing, aged 29, unemployed, was brought before Mr. K. Keen at the Central Magistracy this morning, charged with the theft of a bottle of Vopex from the Grand Dispensary yesterday.

Shek said he was taught to steal by his friend. Detective-Sergeant J. Bentley, said defendant and another man entered the Grand Dispensary in the evening and while his friend was being served, he took the opportunity of taking the bottle of Vopex from a showcase, being partly shielded by his friend. He was seen by a salesman, however, and arrested.

When defendant was questioned at the Central Police Station, he said he was a student in Canton, and had come to get school fees from his father, but on subsequent investigations, this was found to be untrue. Shek had a police record against him.

Defendant's father, who was in Court, said he had disowned his son in 1935, as he habitually went out gambling every night. He had tried to correct the boy, but could not do so. He had not seen his son since he left the house.

Sergeant Bentley added that the father had spent over $1,000 on the boy's education. Defendant had admitted to him later that he carried his living by smuggling in Canton. His Worship, Justice Shuk, said he must have been very hard indeed for his father to drive him away.

Defendant, who was smartly dressed in European style, broke into tears, and asked that he be pardoned. He said he had been misled by friends.

A fine of $50, with the alternative of six weeks' hard labour, was imposed.

Sucked Oil From Vat

Novel Theft Method Alleged

With his mouth and hands covered in oil, Lam Shing, 26, unemployed, was arrested in Centre Street yesterday. He was brought before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy this morning charged with the larceny of a quantity of peanut oil from No. 31 Centre Street, ground floor.

With the aid of a hollow bamboo defendant was alleged to have sucked the oil from complainant's vat and thus transferred it to a tin of his own. The bamboo was inserted through a hole in the partition separating the shop from the staircase where defendant sat.

Inspector W. Muir stated that the shop had been losing oil steadily and a watch was set. A feld from the shop saw defendant insert the bamboo through a hole in the partition and suck the oil from complainant's vat. When defendant was brought to the Police Station his hands and mouth were smeared with oil. His coat sleeve was also covered in oil when he had apparently wiped his mouth.

The hearing of the case was fixed for July 3.

NAVY PLANES ON MASS FLIGHT

U.S. MACHINES MAKING RECORD VOYAGE

San Diego, June 22. Twelve giant Navy bombers are to-day darning over the Pacific Ocean, 10,000 feet high, in the longest non-stop mass flight ever attempted. They are flying 3,087 miles to the Panama Canal Zone.

The flight of planes carries 72 officers and men and one civilian observer and is expected to be completed in about 14 hours.

Last reports stated the flying boats were passing over Acapulco, averaging 120 miles per hour, in good weather.—United Press.

It is now learned that the twelve Navy bombers have completed their mass non-stop flight and have arrived without incident.

TRANS-CANADA AIRLINE

Los Angeles, June 22. The new Trans-Canada Airlines, Ltd., has ordered seven big Lockheed transport planes to cover its route from Vancouver to Halifax and eventually link up with Imperial Airways' line across the Atlantic and Pacific.

The service between Vancouver and Winnipeg commences in September and the full service to Montreal and Halifax will start before the end of the year.—United Press.

DOGS WITHOUT MUZZLES

TWO EUROPEANS FINED

F. M. Ellis, of No. 455 the Peak, was summoned for allowing his Alsatian dog to be abroad in Barker Road without a muzzle on June 6 before Mr. K. Keen at the Central Magistracy this morning. A fine of $10 was imposed.

R. R. Hammond-Chambers, of the 1st Bn. Seaforth Highlanders, Mount Austin Barracks, was also fined $10 for allowing his dog to be in Stubbs Road unmuzzled on June 11.

Acting Sub-Inspector F. J. Clarke prosecuted in both cases.

A dog owned by Fui Tat-shi, proprietor of the Oriental Poultry Farm, New Territories, bit a feld on the leg when the man was entering a barn yesterday. The man was treated at the Lady Ho Tung Welfare Centre, while the dog was removed to Mataukok for observation.

NAVY PLANES ON MASS FLIGHT

U.S. MACHINES MAKING RECORD VOYAGE

San Diego, June 22. Twelve giant Navy bombers are to-day darning over the Pacific Ocean, 10,000 feet high, in the longest non-stop mass flight ever attempted. They are flying 3,087 miles to the Panama Canal Zone.

The flight of planes carries 72 officers and men and one civilian observer and is expected to be completed in about 14 hours.

Last reports stated the flying boats were passing over Acapulco, averaging 120 miles per hour, in good weather.—United Press.

It is now learned that the twelve Navy bombers have completed their mass non-stop flight and have arrived without incident.

TRANS-CANADA AIRLINE

Los Angeles, June 22. The new Trans-Canada Airlines, Ltd., has ordered seven big Lockheed transport planes to cover its route from Vancouver to Halifax and eventually link up with Imperial Airways' line across the Atlantic and Pacific.

The service between Vancouver and Winnipeg commences in September and the full service to Montreal and Halifax will start before the end of the year.—United Press.

DOGS WITHOUT MUZZLES

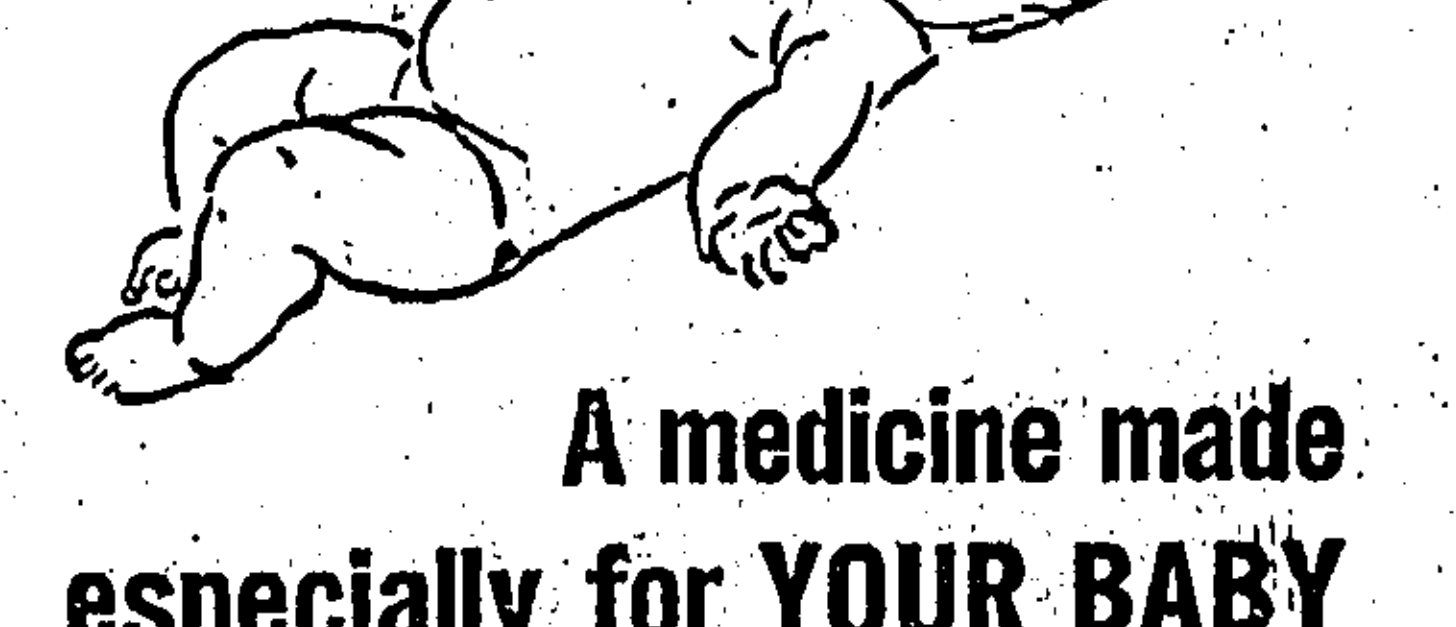

TWO EUROPEANS FINED

F. M. Ellis, of No. 455 the Peak, was summoned for allowing his Alsatian dog to be abroad in Barker Road without a muzzle on June 6 before Mr. K. Keen at the Central Magistracy this morning. A fine of $10 was imposed.

HUTTON'S MAGNIFICENT INNINGS OF 271 NOT OUT

On The Eve Of His Test Cricket Debut

YORKSHIRE AND SUSSEX WIN EASILY

MANY CENTURIES AND SOME FINE BOWLING

London, June 22. Hutton, the young Yorkshire batsman, who has been scoring runs with marked consistency this season, indulged in a brilliant innings at the expense of the Derbyshire bowlers when Yorkshire beat the champions by an innings and 99.

Hutton compiled a faultless 271 not out and was chiefly instrumental in Yorkshire being able to declare at 525 for 4.

Derbyshire made but a half-hearted response to this imposing score. Turner (5 for 45) dismissed the side for 145 in their first innings, and although Smith scored 150 in the second knock, the champions were again all out for 281.

Sussex maintained pace with the Tykes by beating Hampshire by 153 runs.

Hampshire led by 10 runs on the first innings, but Sussex scored freely in their second attempt declaring at 308 for 7. John Langridge contributed 117. Then James Langridge produced his finest bowling form and by taking 7 for 29 helped to dismiss Hampshire for 136.

Fine batting by Iddon (149) and Paynter (95) allowed Lancashire to score 460 in reply to Leicester's 411 for 6 declared. Berry (120) and Dempster (92) played havoc with the Lancashire attack.

Best bowling performances came from Clay of Glamorgan, who in the course of the match against Warwickshire, took 11 for 152 runs, and Sims, the Middlesex bowler, playing for M.C.C. against Cambridge University, who captured 11 for 137.

Andrews also bowled effectively for Somerset against Kent, taking in all 10 for 83. Kent were hopelessly outplayed, being beaten by 419 runs after dismissals for the paltry totals of 116 for 73.

Eastman was another bowler to earn distinction, capturing ten wickets for Essex against Northants for 77 runs in the course of two innings. Essex won a low-scoring match by 34 runs.

The detailed scores and individual performances, as cabled by Reuters, follow.

COUNTY CHAMPIONSHIP

Lancashire (469) beat Leicestershire (411/8 dec. and 64/1) on first innings

Glamorgan (321 and 92/1 dec.) beat Warwickshire (313 and 144/7) on first innings

GOLF COSTS COTTON £800 A YEAR

(By F. J. C. Pignon)

Southend, May 27. It may surprise the ordinary club golfer to know that there are professionals who estimate that expenses in playing in all the big tournaments amount to between £700 and £1,000 a year.

I discovered this when talking to Henry Cotton in his suite in one of the leading hotels here to-day.

Cotton had declared his intention of withdrawing from the Southend professional tournament because the prize he could win after two bad rounds was not worth while.

"My opinion," he said, "is that I should be allowed to cut my losses just as anyone else in business. Golf is my business."

"I like to live nicely and treat my caddy well, and I find I must win a £50 prize to meet my expenses at a tournament that lasts about a week. I am not taking into consideration my

WHAT OTHERS SPEND

Other professionals with whom I talked did not estimate their expenses quite so high as Cotton.

P. J. Mahon, the young Irishman who was leading the field when the Southend tournament was abandoned yesterday, said he thought he spent about £2 10s. a day during a tournament.

J. J. Bussan, a Ryder Cup player, estimated the cost at about £3.

Even at a modest estimate it seems that a professional who regularly competes in tournament play must win between £200 and £300 a year to show a profit on his golfing skill.

The worth of Campbell rose up before him at Harringay, as all along he feared it would do some day. It changed him from the grinner and the snarler and the showman into a very ordinary human being whose thoughts were all for the opponent he had struck down.

£50 A WEEK EXPENSES

"The championship is always a loss, except for the winner, who gets £100—the fortnight's expenses."

"Last year I won about £800 in prize money, and I estimate that I broke even; I certainly did not make anything out of it."

"Look at this tournament, for example. Apart from travelling expenses (Cotton uses a powerful car) and the caddy there are my living costs and entertaining. I expect my expenses here amount to £50. Since I could not expect to win much more than £10 after my bad start, I felt that I ought to be allowed to cut my losses; that is why I said I would withdraw."

Cotton considers that in big-money prize tournaments only the first 10 or 20 should receive prizes instead of 60 or more as is the case at present. They would then be worth winning.

PROPOSAL FOR HEAVIER BALL LIKELY TO BE POPULAR

London, June 12. A heavier football was proposed by the Football Association when the International F. A. Board held its annual meeting at Llandudno to-day.

The proposal seeks to alter the weight of the ball from the prescribed limits of 13 to 15 ounces to 14 to 16 ounces.

Manufacturers of balls will be pleased by the move to increase the weight. An official of a prominent firm of makers said: "Light balls are in disfavor. They go out of shape quickly and are difficult to manipulate in a high wind. Clubs are always asking us for heavier balls. I am sure that they will give more satisfaction all round. At the moment many minor clubs are playing with a heavier ball."

MAX BAER SAW GHOST AS HE WON

(By Trevor Wignall)

Three was a scene at Harringay last month the like of which has never before been witnessed in a British ring.

It came in the ninth round of the heavyweight fight between Max Baer and Ben Foord.

The South African, beaten into a state of semi-sensibility, was down on the canvas, for his fifth count. What consciousness was in him automatically prompted him to make an effort to rise.

He was helplessly in the act of striving to do this when one of his seconds, waving a towel, attempted to clamber into the ring to give the usual signal of surrender—a humane effort, for it was clear to all present that further punishment might have had serious results.

Near to his own corner stood Baer, the wide smile washed from his face, his gloves down to his sides, his expression extremely serious—for about the first time during the contest—and his eyes wearing a look of pained apprehension.

With a supreme effort Foord managed to erect himself. But only for an instant; he had not properly reached his full height when stamina left him for good.

Staggering drunkenly, he contrived to roll a few yards, and then pitched over in the manner of a swimmer diving into a pool.

With an extraordinary gurgling that few could have heard owing to the noise, Baer bounded into action. He was over with Foord in quick time than it takes to tell. Swiftly he raised the fallen fighter's head until it was pillowed on his arm, and with almost the same motion he bent down so that he appeared to be kissing and murmuring to the man he had knocked out.

Only Baer, his brother Buddy, his manager Ancil Hoffman, and perhaps myself knew what was behind this astonishing spectacle. Max Baer, the Playboy of Pugilism—never has he been more than he did last night—was seeing a ghost. The ghost of Frankie Campbell, the heavy-weight who died after a California fight with Baer, nearly seven years ago.

The death of Campbell nearly stopped the career of Baer. He was so affected by the happening and by the subsequent court proceedings that for months he swore he would never again pull on a glove.

Max Baer is not one of the killers of the ring. I happen to know that when he has a man on the verge of crushing defeat he loathes delivering further blows.

That explains why, after the second round against Foord, when the South African had been down for two counts, he developed a casual mood that proved exasperating to some of the spectators.

He realised that his snappy punches, made more cruel by a flick of the wrist that only the very few are able to cultivate, were rocking Foord to his heels. He paid no attention to go in and finish it, although it must be added that when he had Foord in a helpless condition he threw in all the punches in his repertoire.

'Varsity Player Hits Record 212

Brighter cricket! G. R. Langdale, Nottingham University, hit 212 (not out) in 120 minutes—a record—against Nottingham Forest last month at Trent Bridge. Four 6's, thirty-five 4's.

Previous Nottingham club cricket best was 205 not out, made two seasons ago by Payton, now playing for Cambridge University. Langdale had three games with Derbyshire last season. He is also a first-rate bowler.

Amazing Long Jumping Reading Man Leaps To Fame

(By Fred Dartnell)

London, May 28. To me nothing is more remarkable in connection with athletics than the cheery way in which the Oxford athletes year after year take their cruel in the annual meeting at Iffley Road with the A.A.A. team. Yesterday they were beaten by 83 points to 43 points, and they only won three and drew another of the 14 events on the card.

Four years ago the Dark Blues finished fifty-fifty in a match of 12 events, but to go back no further than 1933 the A.A.A. have actually gained 68 firsts to 20. One-sided it may be, but the Oxford meeting always provides some story or other out of the ordinary.

Yesterday it was the long jumpers who were in the limelight. The sudden heat and glorious sunshine may have had something to do with it, but it was simply amazing that between them W. E. N. Breach, the Reading man, and K. S. Duncan, the old Oxonian, should inside an hour have contributed seven jumps of over 23ft.

Both men beat C. B. Fry's ground record and one-time world record of 23ft. 6½in., made over forty years ago, while Breach, who won with 23ft. 11in., actually cleared 24ft. 2½in., equal to Harold Abrahams' British record. This jump, however, was disallowed like that of 24ft. made by Duncan, because the competitors had gone a little beyond the taking-off board.

Breach and Duncan will renew rivalry at the White City on Saturday, when they represent their respective clubs in the "Kinnaird" Trophy tournament.

Pennington, with dual wins in the sprints over C. A. Ward, caused a small crowd to cheer times that equalled the Oxford track record. He did 21.8sec. for the furlong and for the first time in his career got inside evens for the 100yds. by doing 9.8sec. Jack London, the coloured Poly-sprinter, did this for the A.A.A. nine years ago.

FINLAY'S DOUBLE

Another track record, that in the 120yds. hurdles of 14.8sec., made by C. F. Stanwood for Oxford, was equalled by Don Finlay, who was absent from last year's corresponding meet. He also won the 220yds. low hurdles in 24.5sec., and was not pressed in either case.

We saw a fine half-mile by B. F. McCabe (Irish, 56.2sec.), very good time for a first time out, but McNair, the Oxford first string, finished a distressed last. On his running at Reading and yesterday McNair is obviously stale and needs a rest from the hard work he has been doing ever since the inter-varsity match.

J. C. Barnes ran a beautiful quarter for the visitors in 49.7sec., only a tenth of a second short of the track record made by Bevil Rudd in 1920 and W. Roberts two years ago. Wolf was second, beaten by 8 yards, and is a little worried, I hear, by his old time trouble.

Howland just missed equaling his weight record, 46ft. 9½in., by the odd half-inch; but R. E. M. Blackway put up fresh javelin figures with 178ft. 10in. Record was also broken in the high jump by J. L. Newman, who cleared 5ft. 3in.

AMERICA'S CUP RACE PROSPECTS ENDEAVOUR IS DANGEROUS

By Henry Super United Press Staff Correspondent

New York.

A potential defender of the America's Cup, Harold S. Vanderbilt's Ranger was launched a few weeks ago and yachtsmen anticipate that this will be the boat which will be called upon to make one of the sternest defences of the historic yachting trophy in the 85 years it has been in the possession of the United States.

The outlook for the races to be run off Newport, R.I., in July, according to yachting experts, is the most serious in years because T. O. M. Sopwith, British challenger, is determined to win the trophy back for England.

In 1934 Sopwith, with his speedy Endeavour, gave America a scare in losing to Vanderbilt's Rainbow. Endeavour's failure to win was due to the fact that Sopwith was a beginner at the high-powered game of America's Cup racing, and his mistake gave Vanderbilt a chance to snatch victory from what seemed inevitable defeat.

SOPWITH MORE EXPERIENCED

This year, Sopwith's challenge is a much more thorough and methodical business. He is doing everything to win. Charles E. Nicholson, who designed Sopwith's first challenger, has built a new boat—Endeavour II—which is believed even faster than her predecessor.

CREW TO BE PROFESSIONAL

Sopwith also is more experienced at the game and he is unlikely to repeat the mistakes that made it possible for Vanderbilt to win in 1934. With him as relief helmsman this year will be Sir Ralph Gore, one of England's best racing helmsmen. Before the mast, too, Sopwith will probably be in better shape than before, as he will carry a professional

F.A.'s £19,491 Deficit THREE BIG GRANTS

A deficiency of £19,491 was shown on the general account of the Football Association presented at the 34th annual general meeting of the Association in London on June 7.

An official of the F.A. said that the large deficiency was due chiefly to the fact that during the year £5,000 had been given to the King George Memorial Fund. £5,000 to the Football League Mutual Insurance Federation, and £4,000 to the British Sports and Games Association. The deficiency last year was £8,000.

On the investment revenue account the figure is lower than last year by £2,464, but a profit of £1,401 resulted from international matches.

England v. Ireland at Stoke brought in £2,761; England v. Hungary at Highbury, £3,858.

The F.A. received £1,181 in percentages of "gates" from replays in the Challenge Cup; £6,672 from the Cup semi-finals, and £15,511 (net) from the final. The finalists each took £5,039, and the semi-finalists £1,364 each.

The Amateur Cup Final realised £1,712, the finalists taking £570 each.

FOOTBALL LEAGUE MAKE £16 PROFIT

The Football League made a profit of £16 odd last year.

Among proposals by the League Management Committee are that talent money for wins in F.A. Cup matches be increased to £4, £6 and £8 in the fourth, fifth and sixth rounds respectively, and suggests the "bonus" be raised from £4 to £10 in the semi-finals and from £8 to £12 in the final.

F.A. XI'S "PERFECT" TOUR

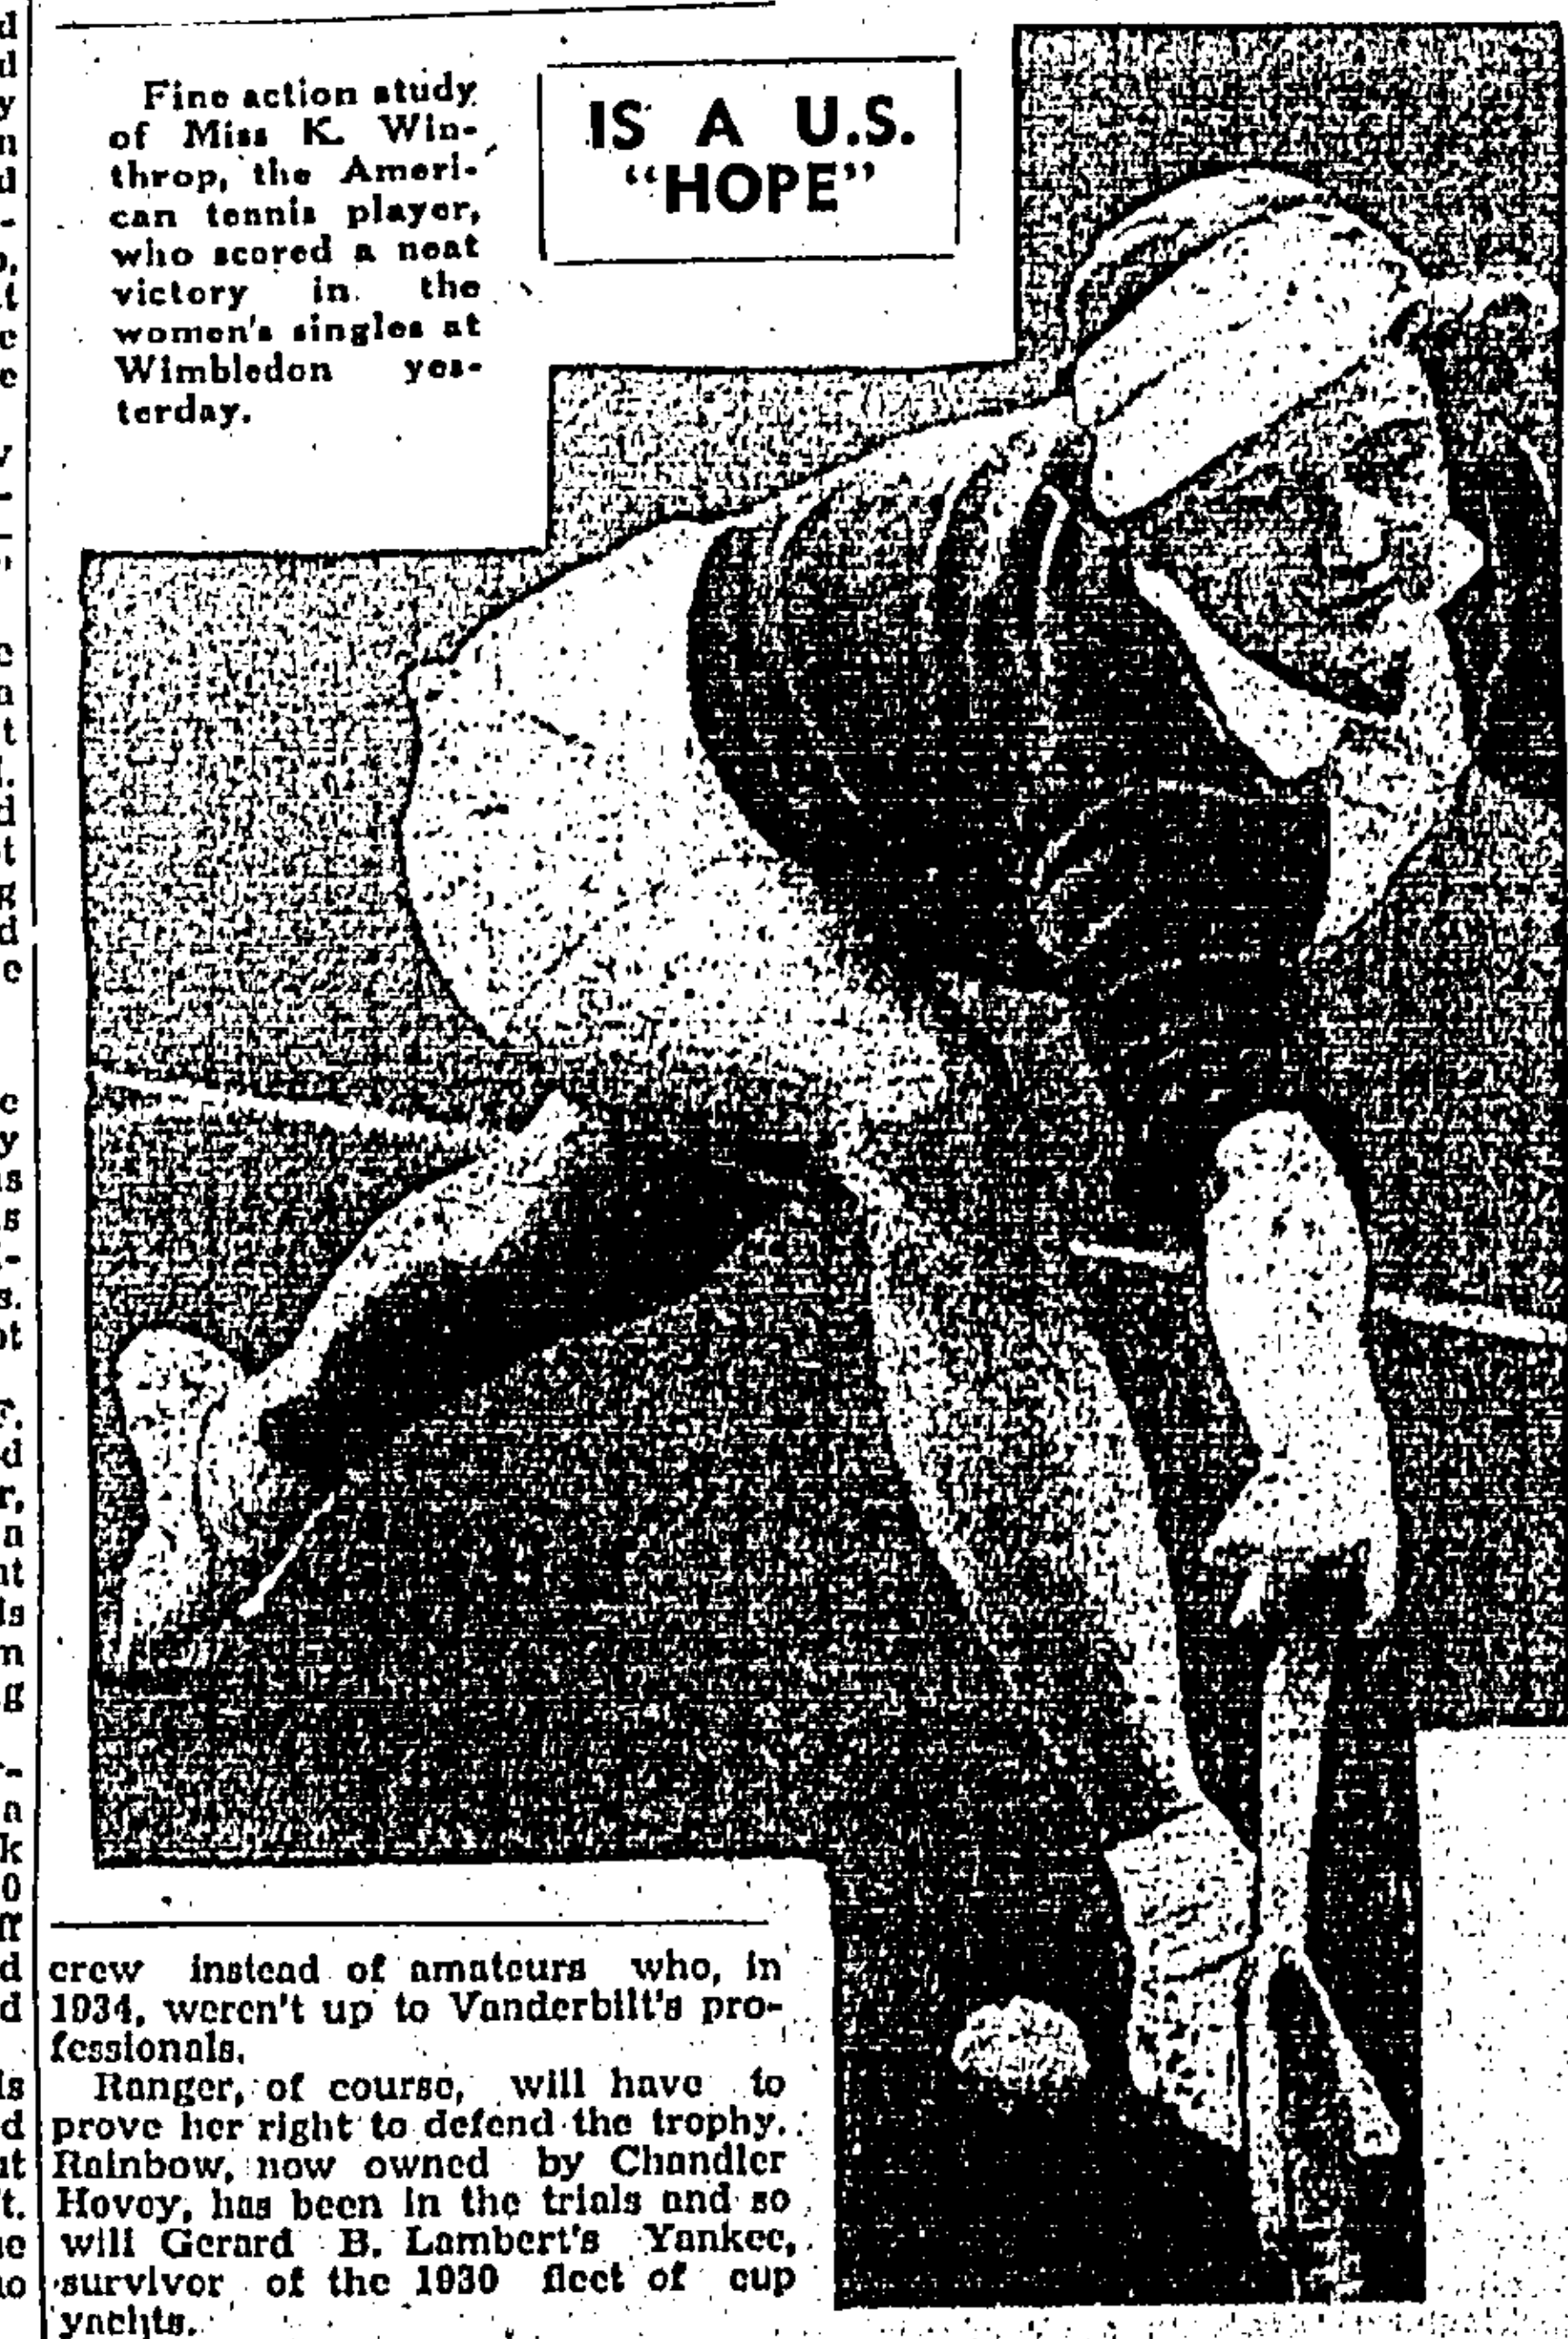

MR. S. F. ROUS ON SCANDINAVIAN SUCCESS

Mr. S. F. Rous, Secretary of the F.A., returning to London after the F.A. team's tour in Scandinavia, said that the tour had been perfect from every point of view. The players blended on the field and the whole party fraternised perfectly throughout the trip.

"Everywhere the hospitality was magnificent," said Mr. Rous. "The heavy defeats were accepted by our opponents in the best possible spirit, and not one action by players on or off the field did anything but redound great credit to them all."

Mr. Rous added that Norway was the best of the three teams England beat, but that Finland came nearest to scoring.

The four Arsenal players, Male, Hapgood, Copping, and Kirchen, remained in Sweden to join their club, which is also touring.

SEVERE CRITICISM OF BREACH OF CONTRACT

"Greatest Swindle in the Annals of Sports"

Berlin, June 5. The report from New York that the American world heavyweight title holder, Jim Braddock, refused to fulfill his contract to meet the German ex-world champion, Max Schmeling, in a bout for the title in New York on June 3, has been received with the greatest indignation here. The Zukunft, which is one of the leading German sporting papers, calls the incident the greatest swindle in the annals of sport.

The paper points out that Braddock's argument, that the bout with Schmeling would be a relatively unremunerative affair, is absurd, since German promoters had offered a purse of $350,000 for the fight at the Berlin Olympic Stadium, and declares that it would obviously be impossible to make more money by a single bout elsewhere.

"There can be but a single reason for Braddock's refusal, therefore, namely, that Braddock is afraid to meet Schmeling."

Other German papers likewise severely criticize Braddock's attitude and express the hope that the American boxing authorities will punish the titleholder for his unsportsmanlike behaviour.

Hammond Scatters The Scribes

BALL SAILS INTO PRESS BOX

Misses an Editor and Smashes Window

(By Frank Thorogood)

Lord's: South beat North by 6 wickets.

London, May 28. Making his second century of the year in two hours and repeating his brilliant form of Monday, Walter Hammond was the leading figure here in the closing stages of the Test. His most spectacular hit was a drive by which he sent the ball through a window of the Press Box at the expense of Hollies. One of my fellow scribes had a narrow escape and this was the editor of Wisden's Almanack. When the ball landed on the ledge in front of the window at which he was sitting it suddenly turned aside to enter the for end enclosure, and in this way he still lives and reigns to preach the gospel of Brighter Cricket.

Travelling at great speed the ball went on to smash a pane of the entrance door, so that it must have carried at least 100 yards in its flight.

It was a big hit, but others have excelled it by sending the ball over the pavilion, and these include Albert Trott (the Anglo-Australian who used to play for Middlesex), W. G. Grace, C. I. Thornton and W. H. Fowler. When Trott made his straight drive in 1899 off Noble he was playing for M.C.C. against the Australians.

THE WORTH OF FARNES
When the North resumed with 15 for no wicket Farnes again confounded the earlier batsmen. Hut-son's off-stump was knocked sideways, and soon after Hardstaff had made his only stroke—a nice hook to the boundary—he fell to a grand gully catch by Robins.

Leyland was another victim of the Essex amateur (caught off his glove), and the only real challenge was the Wyatt and Paynter partnership, which added 83 for the fourth wicket.

THE ENERGY OF GOVER
Maxwell lent to the latter part of the innings an aggressive flavour and he was taking his life in both hands when Gover knocked down his middle stump. Gover has bowled with unceasing energy in this match, although for speed beauty of action Farnes will be chiefly remembered and the Surreyite dismissed the last two men with consecutive balls.

When the South entered upon their final task we had a splendid illustration of the art of wicket-keeping at the expense of Gimblett. Darling over to the off side Maxwell made a great catch and he followed it up with another clever catch on the leg side. For these two efforts alone the Notts amateur has amply justified his choice for the two anniversary games.

Barnett played with Hammond until 40 had been added for the second wicket, but the top scorers lost Ames and Todd for a mere song and from that point he carried the South on his shoulders. In addition to his Press Box six Hammond hit 11 fours.

PLUCKY PLAY

GEM HOAHING IS DEFEATED AT WIMBLEDON IN STRAIGHT SETS

London, June 22. Miss Gem Hoahing, Chinese girl tennis player, was in action in the Wimbledon tournaments to-day, and after a plucky show, was beaten by Miss O'Connell, 8-6, 6-4.

The weather was hot and sunny. Miss Hoahing lacked sufficient experience to beat her more crafty opponent. Her service was erratic and she served several double faults at critical points, but occasionally she pulled off an ace.

Miss O'Connell's short drop-shots puzzled the Chinese girl and she was not tall enough to deal with the overhead volleys from the half-court where Miss O'Connell repeatedly lurched her.

In the second set Miss Hoahing was one-five down but pulled up to four-five. The effort was too much for her, however, and Miss O'Connell chased her from side-to-side unmercifully.

Miss Helen Jacobs showed no trace of her recent shoulder injury in her match against Miss Harvey, the Wightman Cup player, whom she beat 6-2, 6-1.

Another Wightman Cup player, Miss Mary Hardwick, put up a great fight against the American champion, Miss Alice Marble, but lost, the American winning 9-11, 6-4, 6-3. Miss Marble led 4-0 and 5-2 in the first set but Miss Hardwick rallied and led 7-6 and 8-7.

Frau Sperling, M. Jedrejowski, Miss Kay Stammers, and the American Miss Winthrop and Miss Andrus, all had comfortable wins.

The George Vanderbilt Racing Cup

ITALIAN HOLDER TO DEFEND

By Joseph J. McGuinness
United Press Staff Correspondent

New York, June 23.

Tazio Nuvolari of Italy, winner of the George Vanderbilt Cup last October, will defend his title in the 300 mile race at the Roosevelt Speedway here, July 3, against some of the leading automobile drivers in the world. Seventy-five entries are expected by the Speedway officials but only thirty-six cars will face the starter. The actual participants will be decided on the fastest qualifying times, as well as the ability of their cars to stand up under the gruelling strain of road racing.

Numerous improvements have been completed at the Speedway, including the lengthening of the straightaways and the banking of turns. Experts believe that these improvements will materially aid the American participants, since drivers here are in the habit of taking turns at high speeds and accelerating as they come off the turns so as to hit the straightaways at the greatest speed possible.

Invitations have been extended to Pat Fairfield, English speed demon, and to Bjornstad, the Norwegian champion. As yet officials have not received official confirmation from these men.

Enzo Fiermonte, former prize fighter, and George Rand, amateur sportsman and New York socialite, have announced their intentions of entering a 400 horsepower Maserati, which they ordered direct from Italy. The two men will alternate at the wheel. Fiermonte, who was born in Italy, did considerable road racing when younger but gave up automobiles for professional boxing.

The American entries will probably include: Lou Meyers, who was unfortunately injured when his car crashed during the trials before last year's race; Bill Cummings; Wilbur Shaw and several others.

It is believed that a number of Germans will enter although the Speedway officials refuse to divulge their names at the present time. There will be no French drivers entered.

Experts predict that it will be possible to maintain an average speed of 100 miles per hour on the new track and that a top speed of 170 M.P.M. can be gained on the straightaways.

Besides the beautiful trophy, the winner of the race will receive $20,000, plus lap and accessory prizes.

Cochet And Perry Might Be Matched In Paris

FRENCH "PRO" EAGER TO MEET BRITAIN'S EX-TENNIS CHAMPION

London, June 11. Henri Cochet, former Wimbledon champion and Davis Cup ace, wants a crack at Fred Perry now that they are both professionals. But he will have to wait.

When he was invited to play in the professional shows in this country, Cochet eagerly discussed the matter. He thought that it was to be a knockout tournament, and that there would thus be a chance for him to meet Fred.

When he was told that Perry would only be meeting Vincs in the singles, Cochet, deeply disappointed, said that he was not interested. His wires are being pulled to fix up a Perry-Cochet match, probably in Paris.

Fred Perry has driven the Lawn Tennis Association to purify in spite of themselves.

While he was winning the Davis Cup and the Wimbledon championships officials had a way of looking at things with a blind eye; now that Perry has come back a professional with a formidable record, they are regarding amateurism with an all-seeing eye.

Players who have been interpreting the amateur rules loosely are being cautioned. The voucher racket is being broken up.

TWO STARS WARNED
Two well-known players had been invited to play exhibition matches in Belfast with all expenses paid. The L.T.A. got to hear about it, and the players were warned that if they went to Belfast on the expenses paid ticket they would be suspended.

It is strange that the L.T.A. have not taken this action before. They must have known that abuses of the amateur rule have been rampant, and the worst offenders have been the tournament committees on which councillors of the L.T.A. are active members.

Anita Lizana Must Have Chili's Consent To Marry Scotsman

Senorita Anita Lizana, five-foot Chilean tennis star, is waiting for her Government's permission before announcing her engagement to Scotsman Donald T. Ellis, twenty-four-year-old son of a Dundee coal merchant.

The dark little senorita dropped a set, lost her usual smile, before struggling through to the final of the Middlesex championships at Chiswick. The worry of waiting for the official consent was the cause.

First she refused to deny or confirm her engagement. Later she said, "I must get my Government's permission before I take such a step. It is true that I spent the weekend in Dundee recently with the parents of Mr. Ellis."

"I am longing to go home to Chili, and the fact that I may marry a Scotsman will not interfere with my love for my country. I hope to visit there often even if I make a home in Britain."

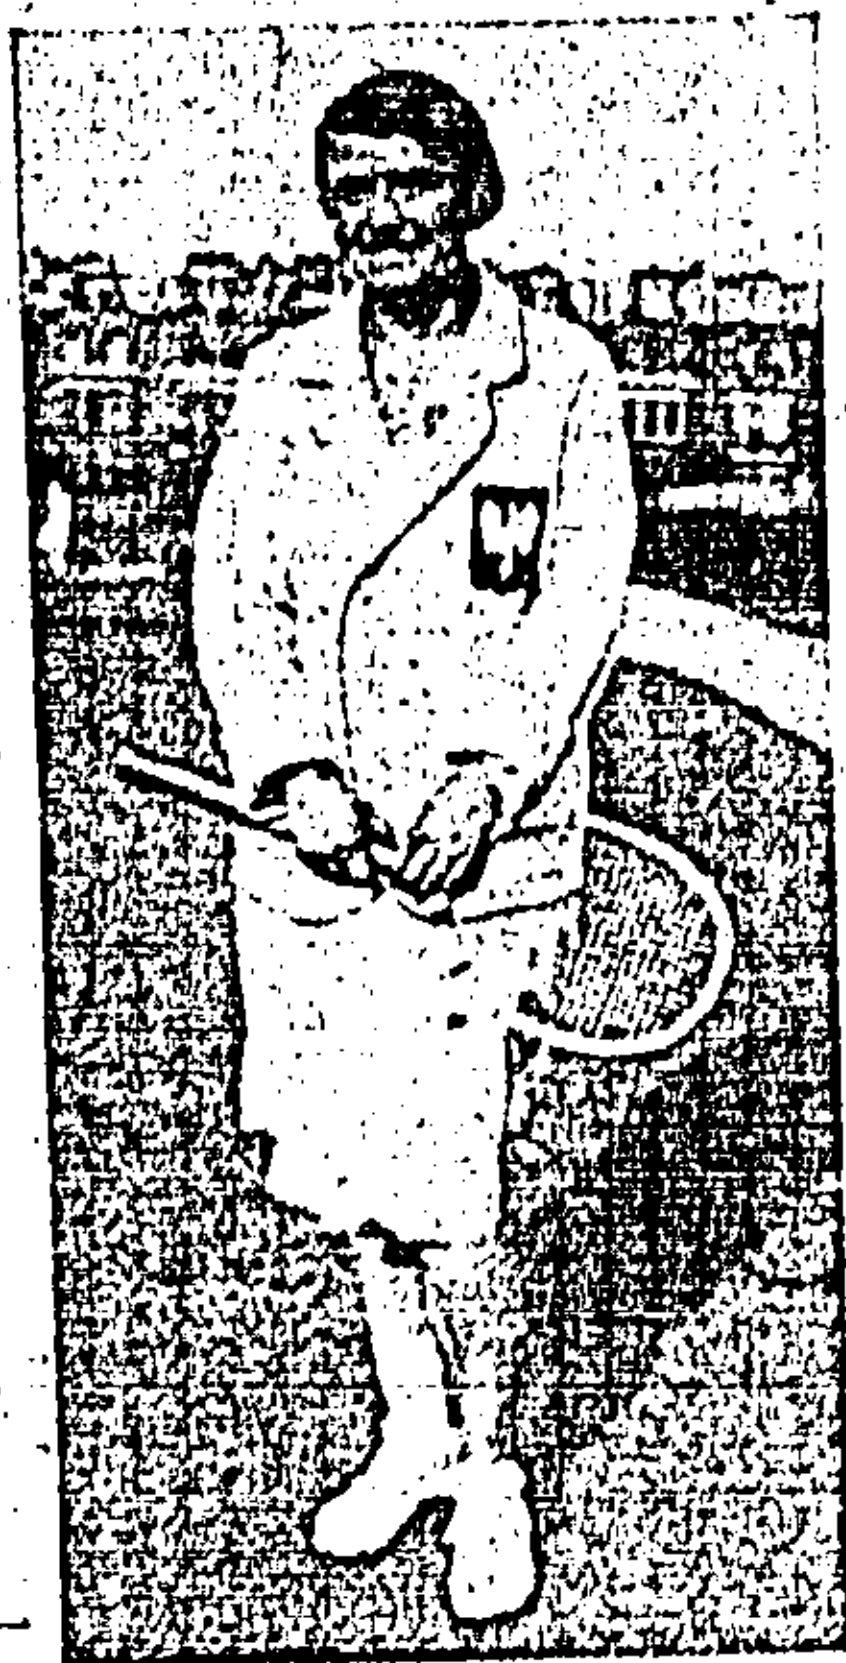

Mr. Ellis said he had given Senorita Lizana a ring, but they had not yet made any plans.

Romance began last year when the senorita won the Scottish championship.

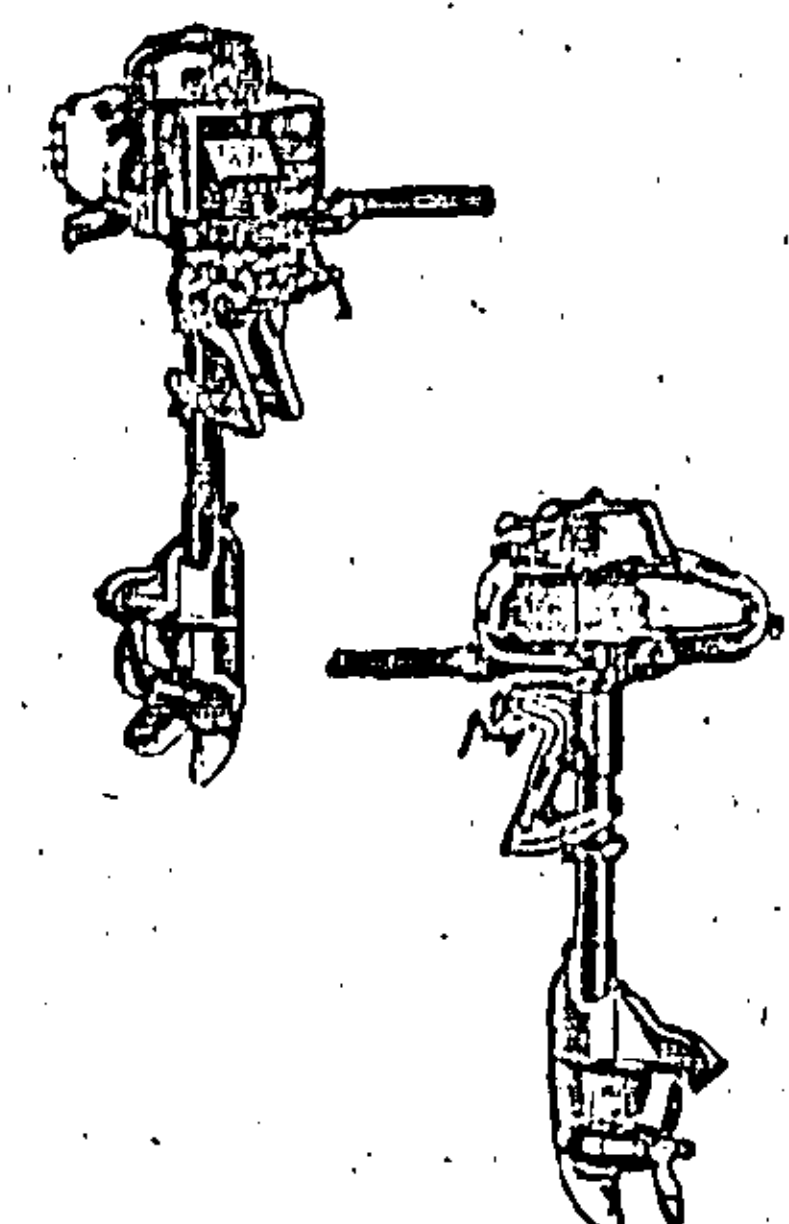

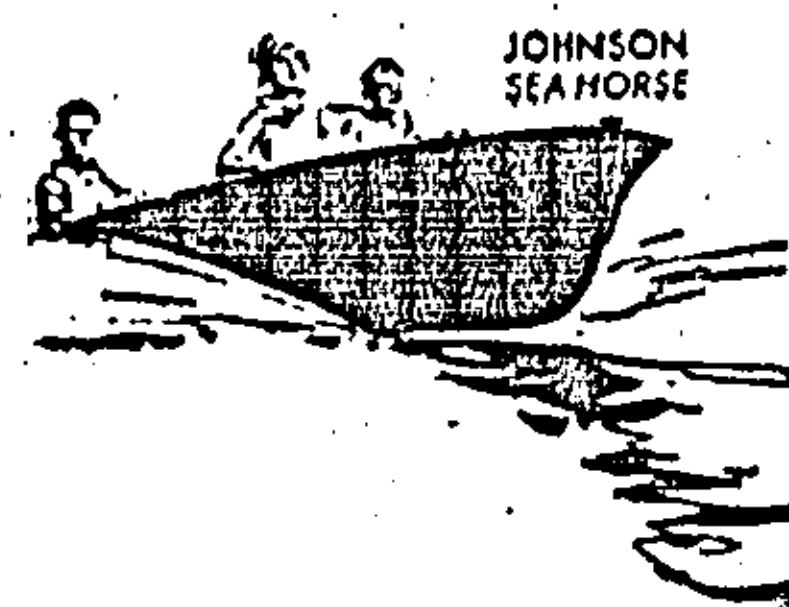

Mr. Ellis is a keen player, a past winner of the Scottish boys' championship.

Do you odolise?

There are still some who do not, and you may be amongst them. Try the Odol way—just a few splashes of Odol, the famous liquid antiseptic dentifrice, in a half tumblerful of water will thoroughly cleanse and purify the whole mouth, penetrating all cracks and crevices in and between the teeth, permeating the gums and lining membrane, and exerting its antiseptic and refreshing powers, not only during the few moments while being used, but for hours after. It is this lasting effect that gives to "Odolisers" the absolute assurance that their mouths are permanently protected from the bacteria and processes of fermentation.

Second Big Dock To Be Towed Here

On Way From Odessa
To Vladivostok

Another large Soviet floating dock is to visit Hongkong within three or four months, a member of the crew of the Soviet ice-breaker Typhoon discloses to the Telegraph.

Like the 5,000 ton dock now in Hongkong harbour, the second dock will be towed by two tugs from Odessa to Vladivostok, a distance of 10,000 miles.

The dock at present in port will leave in continuation of its voyage on Saturday, and will arrive at its destination some time next month. Leaving Odessa on April 19, the dock, towed by the tugs Typhoon and Toros, has had an uneventful journey. Since leaving Aden the tugs have been bunkered by the Soviet steamer Serge Kirov, one of the four ships now flying the Soviet hammer and sickle ensign in Hongkong harbour. Built at Nikolai Island in the Black Sea, the dock has been towed by the two tugs at an average of 6 1/4 knots. The more powerful tug, Toros, was placed in between the dock and the leading tug, Typhoon.

Two nine inch steel ropes were used on the first tug and one seven inch rope on the leader.

SPECIAL CABINS

On the floating dock itself 20 men are living in specially constructed cabins. Communications between the ships are maintained by means of short-wave radio-telephone sets. At the same time the ships are in constant radio communication with Odessa and Vladivostok from any point of the journey.

Cubs Forge Ahead

Three Shut-Out
Engagements

New York, June 22. Chicago climbed higher in the National League lead to-day, winning from New York. Lee pitched a no-run game for the Cubs, allowing only seven scattered hits. Cubs scored five.

St. Louis, meanwhile, failed to improve its position, taking a beating from Brooklyn, two to one.

Cincinnati whipped Philadelphia, six to nothing, Grissom pitching and holding the Phillies to six hits, while Weintraub hit a homer.

Pittsburgh won from Boston, Di Maggio's homer being the only run the Braves counted. Although Pirates hit 17, and Todd whipped out a home run, they only scored four times.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

New York defeated St. Louis eight to five, though the Browns made all five of their hits count for runs. West whacking out a circuit drive. Yankees scored eight on ten, Dickey hitting a homer.

Chicago shut out Philadelphia, Stratton allowing only three hits, and the White Sox scored twice.

Washington pounded Cleveland, seven to one, on 17 hits against the Indians' two on nine.

Detroit and Boston could not play in the rain.—Reuter.

Investigate Himalayan Disaster

German Party Flying
To Scene Soon

Berlin, June 22. The three heads of the German Himalayan Foundation, which promotes the climbing expeditions Germany sends to the famous Asian range, will fly from Munich to India on June 25, catching a British aeroplane at Brindisi. They arrive at Karachi on June 27 and from there will proceed by the quickest way to the scene of the disaster on the slopes of Nanga Parbat, by way of Srinagar.

The German expedition which was climbing Nanga Parbat was buried in an avalanche.

The fliers include Dr. Berchtold, chairman of the Foundation, and the well-known mountaineer, Baur.—Reuter.

The Basque Refugees

British Attitude
Explained

London, June 22. The Prime Minister answered a House of Commons question on the evacuation of Basque refugees. He explained the difficulties arising from the absence, since the end of last week, of conditions on which British naval protection had previously been given to refugee ships. In the altered circumstances, the Government was considering the possibility of supervising the character of evacuations. In addition, they were communicating with the French Government with a view to arranging a system of joint control at ports of arrival in France.

Meantime, instructions were being sent to the naval authorities on the north coast of Spain to continue the protection of refugees, British and others, proceeding to France.

Mr. Neville Chamberlain referred to the suggestion sponsored in the House of Commons yesterday by Mr. Lloyd George, that Basque women and children should be evacuated through France to Barcelona and Valencia. The Government had consulted the French Government and received a favourable reply from them on this proposal and if refugees themselves wished to go in this way, the British Navy would give protection to such a scheme.—British Wireless.

BRITISH FINANCE LATEST EXCHEQUER FIGURES

London, June 22. The Exchequer's total ordinary revenue amounts to £127,250,724, compared with £115,077,327 at the corresponding date of last year. Large increases in yield this year are in respect of Estate Duties at £20,380,000, against £1,705,000, and Customs, which at £248,331,000, compares with £244,773,000. Total ordinary expenditure is £108,053,492 compared with £180,008,154 at the corresponding date of 1936.—British Wireless.

CRAFTSMEN

Countryman's Log

of Old England

THE village craftsman is flourishing. At least, one is not sure that he or she is making a lot of money at the game as that the work is being turned out. Personally, I think they are doing better than they were.

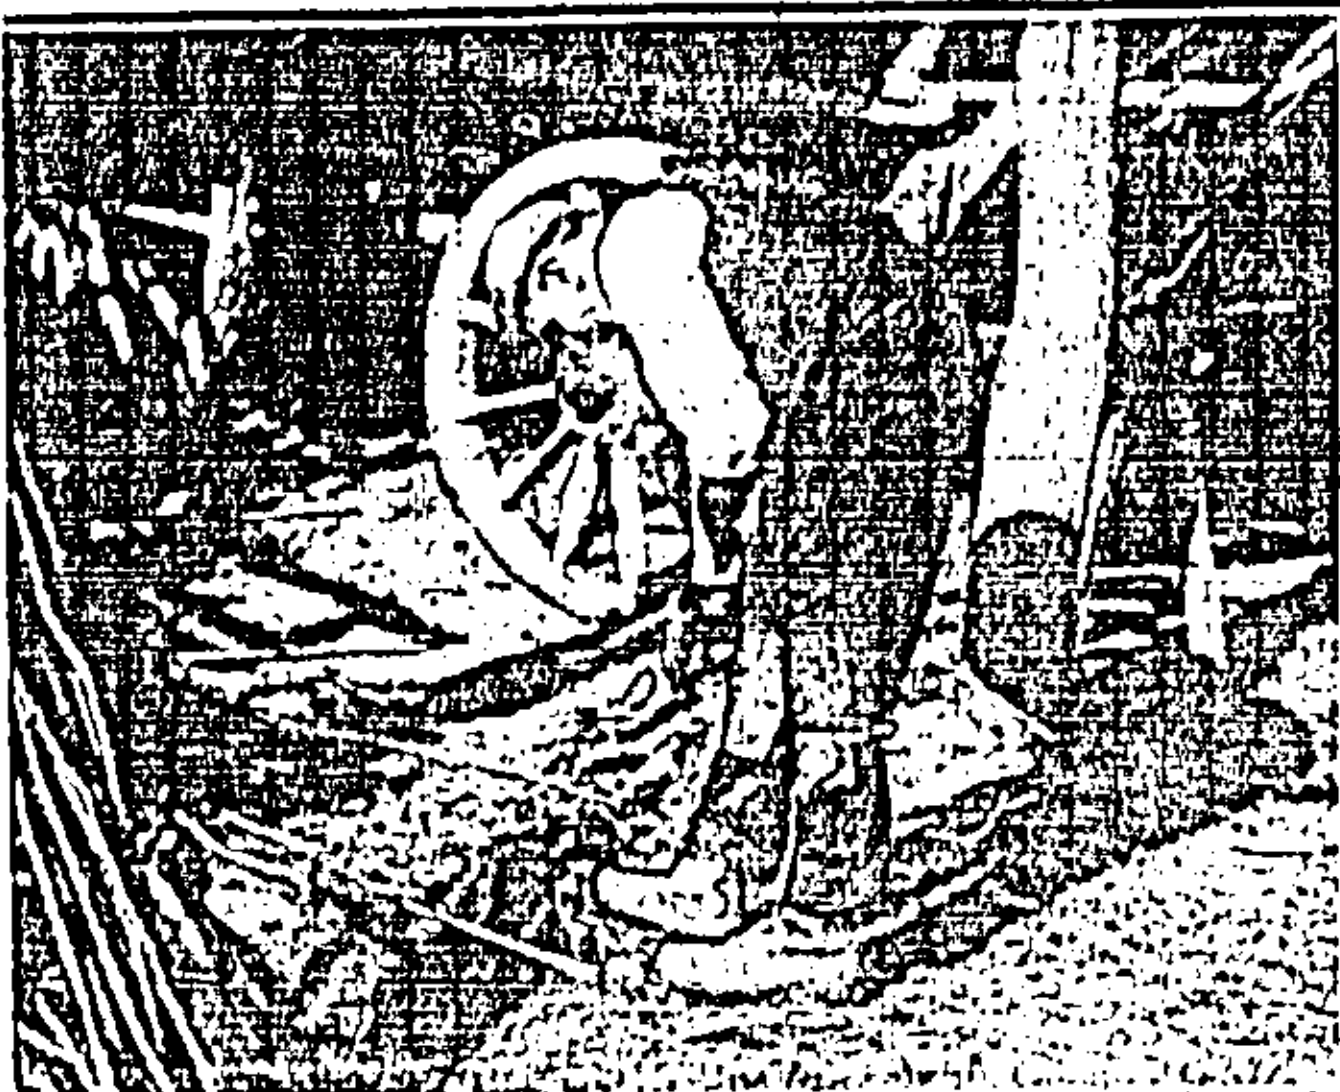

Discerning people are seeking them out for cloth, furniture, door knockers and fire irons, hand-made pottery and the like. The pity of it is that many more people would prefer to see the craftsman's products in their home rather than the machine's, if it were not for the fact.

Perhaps the most striking instance which has come to light lately of the tenacious hold that the tradition of rural craftsmanship still has, was the news that a woman weaver in Essex is weaving the Coronation Robe. Three yards a week is said to be her output, so that the job has had to be put in hand well before the Coronation.

Round the district where this woman works has grown up a colony of weavers. There are churches in their neighbourhood where the hand-made banners and vestments hang, shot through and through with most glorious colours. At the festivals these are carried, shimmering, in the processions.

Seek out one of these craftsmen in his own village and all one has to ask is to be shown the house where "the weaver" lives. How satisfying it must be to any man to be known to your neighbours by the name of your craft. It used to be so, the potter, the tanner, the weaver, the wheelwright, the carpenter, the only one of his kind in the place. It must have made a man take pride in his work to be known so.

by John Sussex

"Doing better to-day than ever"

depths of winter, there is another man working. This man is a woodworker. Living in a dairyland district, he first tried his hand at milking-stools.

Just imagine a common milking-stool made out of sycamore from the hedges nearby with a set of three levers to every one of them turned by a woodworker artist, for everyday use in a typical Welsh cowshed. It would glorify the dingy place.

He made brooms for sweeping rough yards that no manufacturer has been able to better. At times he fetches out the old patterns, handed down from father to son, of wooden bowls and ladles for the farmhouse kitchen.

Some of the skimmers he has made for the dairymaids' butter-making are as shapely as porcelain.

This man lacks a sense of business. Speak with him and he can never put a price to anything. He takes what the honourable visitor thinks is fit and proper. He is obliged to sell the bulk of his output to close-fisted market-day farmers.

Some more woodworkers I have come across lately take the plainest of cupboards, and so decorate them with fantastic patterns and rich colours that the rooms they stand in transport one to the Orient.

Have you ever come across a piece of furniture, so exquisite to look at, yet with such a robust look of usefulness about it, and carved and mounted with such rare judgment and finish, that your hand just wanders over it in envy of the possessor?

One of these craftsmen has turned out a chest like that, a chest for blankets and house linen. It is of such a size that the ordinary house could not find a place for it. Some people might consign it to a museum. That would be a pity, though it would puzzle an expert to decide just by looking at it whether it had been made away back in the Middle Ages or only the other week. And when you talk to the fellow who made it, he is just the village turner, standing in an overall.

How placid these men and women are, how certain of their work, how indifferent to the fuss and fume of the factory and the Industrial area. No man grows rich from the work of his own hands. These craftsmen can never hope to make a mint of money from the lovely things they keep on making, maybe have no other reason than just that they must.

There are men who work in stone round the edges of the moorlands in Yorkshire. They get the same sort of satisfaction from life and will leave behind them great riches that folk in the ages to come will stand back and admire.

There are women in Somerset making more transient things like willow baskets. Their skill is traditional, it came to them with the patterns put in front of them by fathers and mothers. There are trug makers in Sussex who hand out their wares for the passing day to sell, whilst they go on making the baskets for the berry harvest, the farm egg collector.

Lots of you must have come across these craftsmen in the villages. One tumbles across them in most out-of-the-way places. They cling to their job, many of them, by the skin of their teeth as it were. They go on hand-making the things that they were brought up to make.

Others round them make more money handling merchandises, even hiring out their labour. Some even call them fools for clinging to crafts that a machine age can do better. And by better is usually meant cheaper.

So many of the things turned out by our English heritage of craftsmen have an ethereal quality of loveliness about them, even when the thread is broken in the spinning, or where the tool has left its mark.

Finish is not everything, nor, before we have done, will cheapness be either. The day that William Morris purpled his horizons for, with colourful words and brushes, is in the keeping of these humble village craftsmen and craftsmen still.

Factual Figuring

To the per cent that 13 is of 260 — add the number of minutes in three-quarters of an hour — subtract the number of square inches in one-quarter of a square foot — multiply by the per cent gained by purchasing an article for $1000 and selling it for $1050 — and divide by the number of letters in the name of a time-recording device, the sketch of which appears on this page daily. What is the answer?

Letter Juggling

Try forming two different 7-letter words from the seven letters given below. Use all 7 letters in each word.

A E G I N R T

How Long Will It Take?

If each cut takes 3 minutes, how long will it take a man to cut a 10-foot bar of steel into 10 equal pieces? (Answers Appear On This Page)

Would You Marry Him Again

1. Do you go through your husband's pockets?
2. Do you read his letters?
3. Are you suspicious when he tells you that he was detained at his office, shop, or warehouse?
4. Do you admire his friends and wish he were like them?
5. Are you irritated by a personal habit such as snoring, coughing, interrupting, or stammering?
6. Do you have to ask him for money?
7. Does he make fun of you in public?
8. Does he neglect to admire your dress?
9. Does he criticise your methods of housekeeping?
10. Is he mean over trifling expenses?
11. Does he refuse to take you to a show, a cinema, or away for a week-end without the children?
12. Does he fail to interest himself in the children's education?
13. Does he blame you for all the family's shortcomings?
14. Is he a bad father and unwilling to enjoy the children's company?
15. Is he reluctant to give a hand when there is sickness in the house?
16. Do you belong to different golf, tennis, or social clubs?
17. Do you criticise him with your friends?
18. Do you resent his meeting other women?

HERE'S a new game to find out whether you are happily or unhappily married. For every "yes" that you answer to these questions count a score of 5, except question 29. A "yes" to that counts 50. If your score is 100 or over you'd never marry him again. If under 100, you would.

19. Do you sigh with relief when he goes to his work each day?
20. Are you incapable of meeting an economic crisis without complaint?
21. Do you think he drinks, smokes, and grumbles too much?
22. Do you hanker after the friends and hobbies you had before you married him?
23. Do you think you are hard done by?
24. Do you quarrel over things that don't really matter?
25. Is he discontented at home?
26. Are you ashamed of his personal appearance?
27. Are you expected to wait on him hand and foot?
28. Do you dread your old age in his company?
29. And now the last and truest test of your love for him: If it came to a test would you refuse to use his tooth brush?

Things men don't believe

OF course, I should have known better, and said: "Darling, I adore oysters—but, alas, they re-act on me like a Channel crossing." Then he would have gone all protective, and let me have some melon. Instead, I said honestly: "I simply loathe oysters." At which he clasped my hand, looked at me woefully, and said: "My sweetest, you're just trying to save me money. Of course you like oysters," and immediately ordered them. I forced down two, the rest were wasted; he got peevish, and I felt sick.

It's the same with caviare and champagne. I just don't like either of them. But can I get a man to believe it? I certainly can't. They always think you don't mean what you say.

Have you ever met a man who didn't believe himself to be an authority on women's clothes? Or who didn't believe that women dress to attract men, and not to please themselves?

Is there any argument so profitless as trying to convince a man that no matter how long or how often he explains to you the principles of radio, electricity, world economics, or the insides of the car, you will never really understand?

On the subject of love they are even more hidebound. They will never believe that you act the way you do because you happen to feel like it; they insist that it's because you're in love with them. And they will never, never believe that you will never, never learn to love them.

In fact, they will never believe that a woman is capable of knowing her own mind, or of expressing it if she did.

Good heavens! It has suddenly occurred to me they may be right!

And You'll Jump Out of Bed Feeling You Could Push a Bus Over

The liver should pour out two pints of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the worst looks punk.

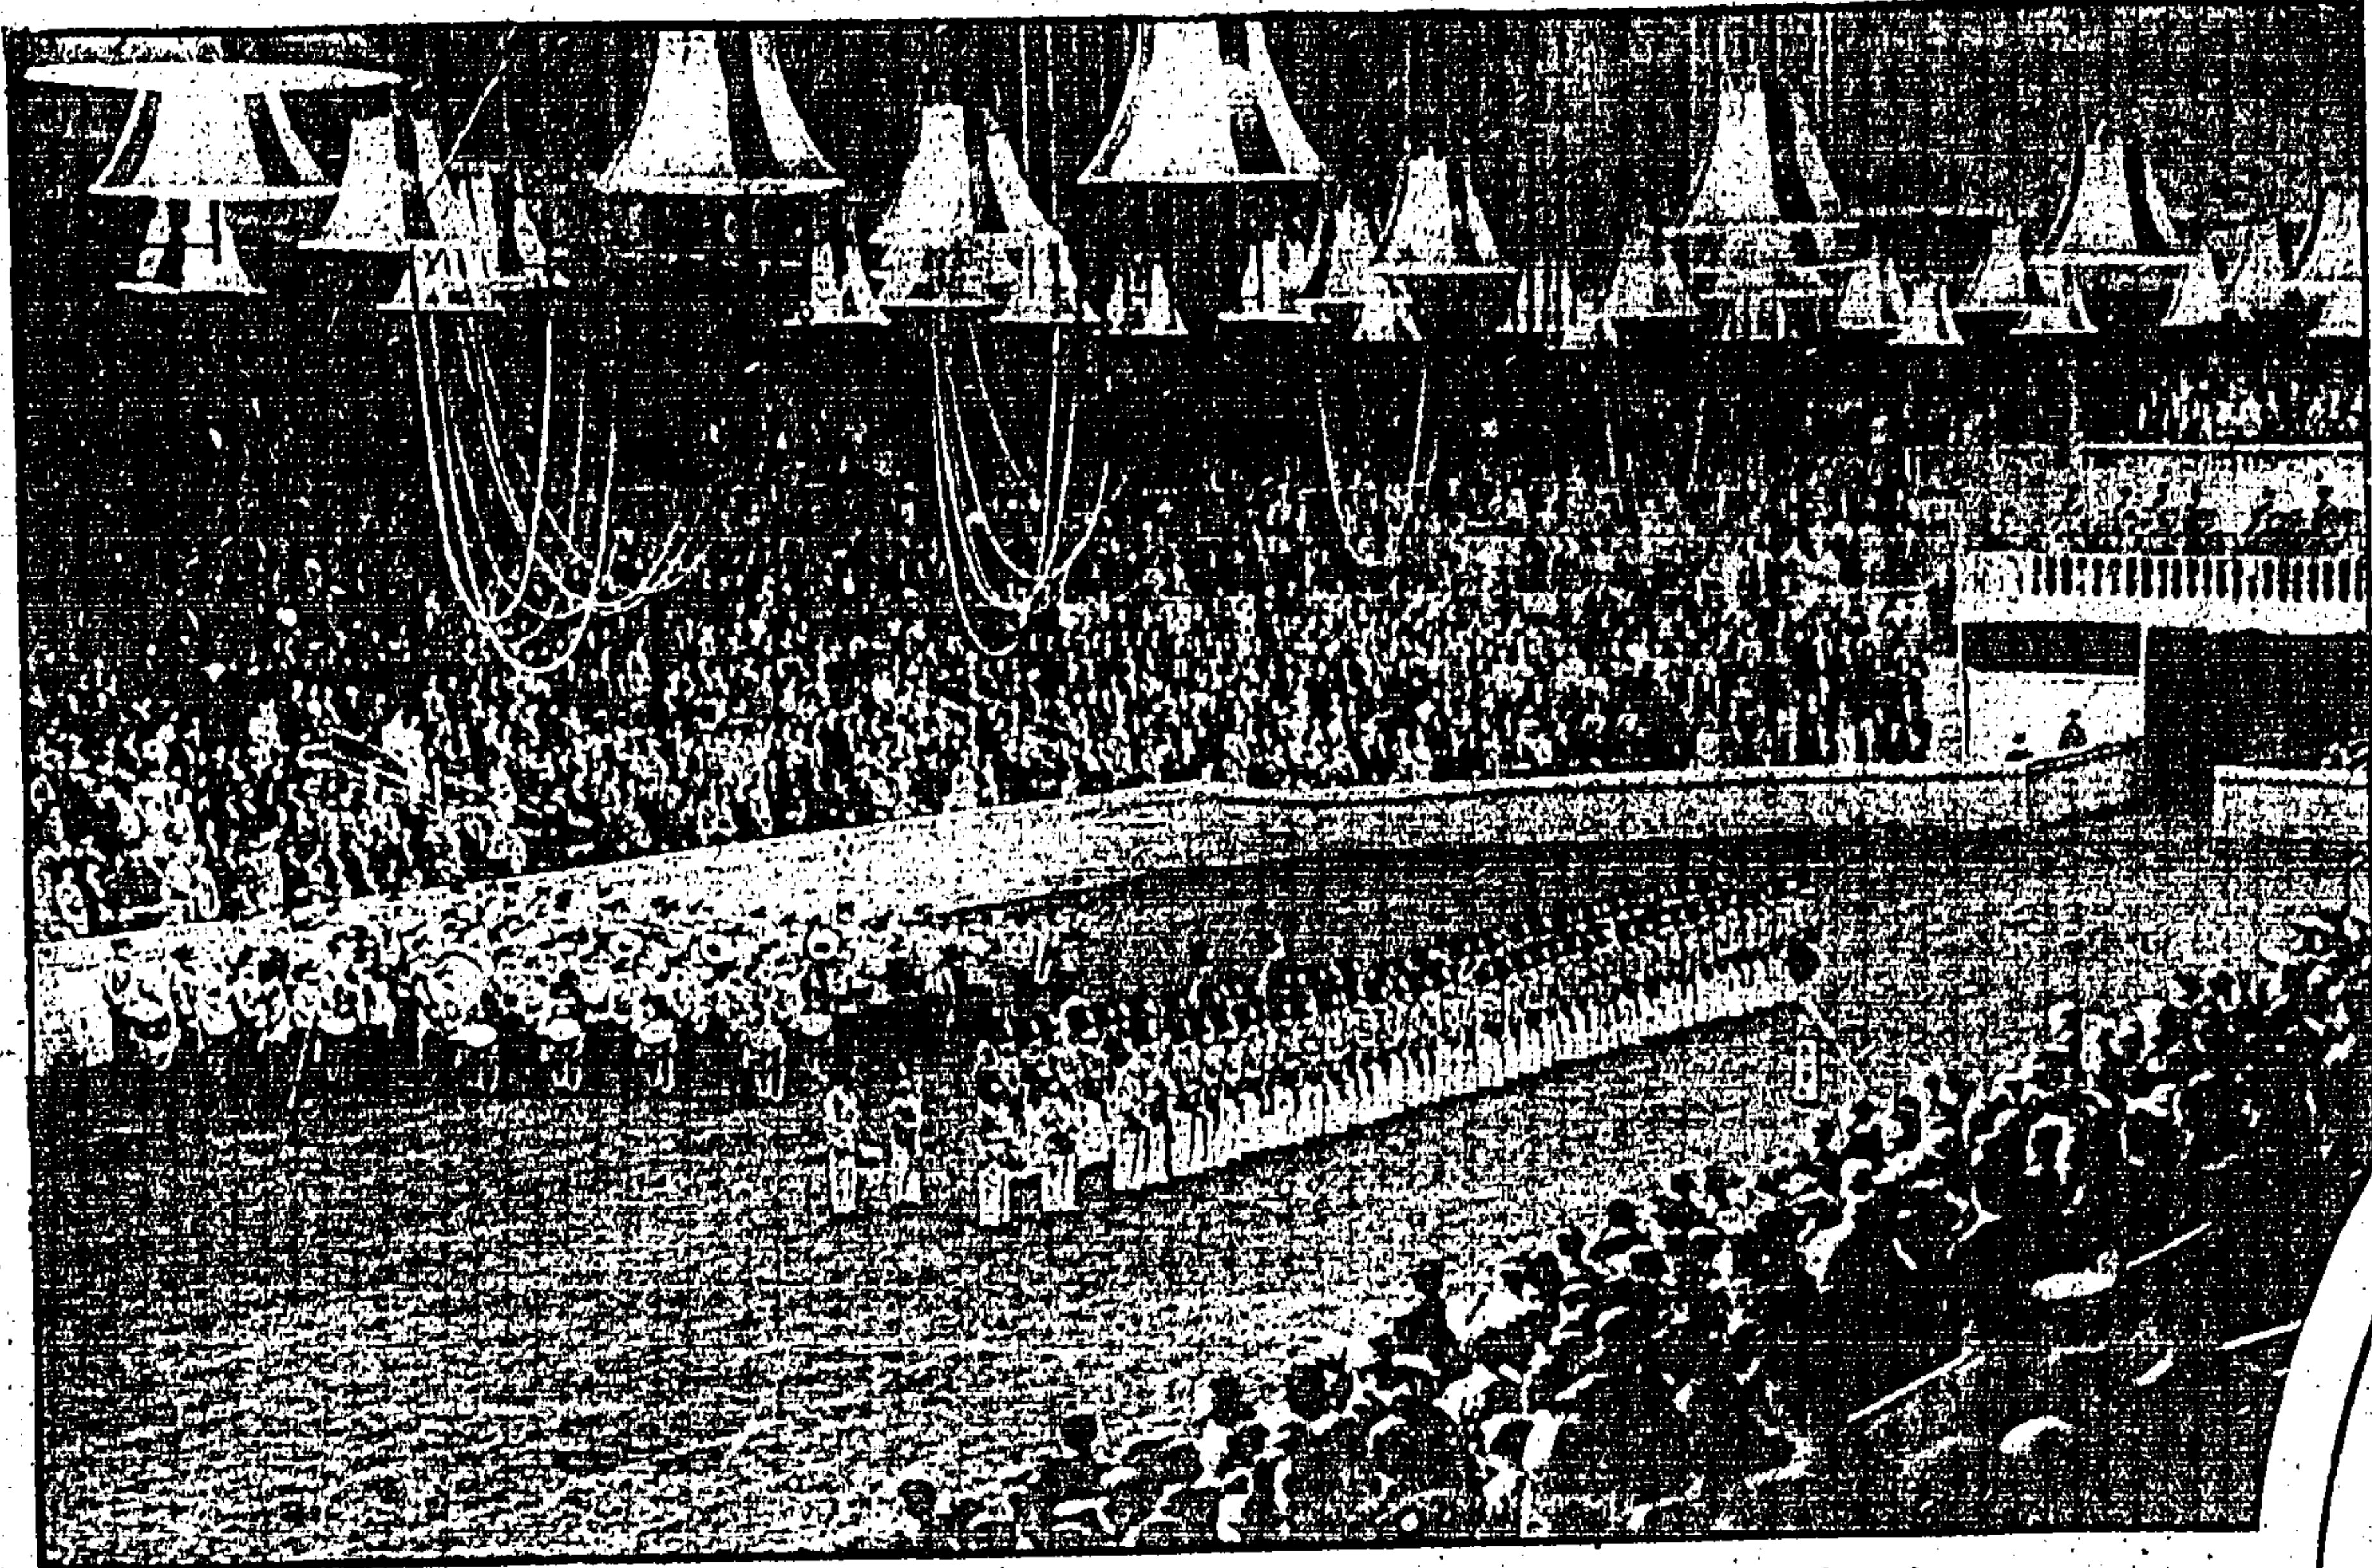

Bills, fatty drinks, palatable laxatives and harsh purgatives are makeshifts. A more bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes the famous, sure acting Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pints of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and down." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's on the red package.

TAKING THINGS IN THEIR

STRIDE G. H. Dyson and J. L. Thornton, found the weather too warm for business and wore only shorts for athletic training at the White City. Peter Kane, the fly-weight knock-out specialist from Melbourne, was out sight-seeing in London (right). His work (he's a blacksmith) keeps him in training, so he was taking things easily before to-night's fight with Ernst Weiss, of Austria, at Harringay Arena.

What does a roller do when the ball lands plumb in the middle of a miniature lake? Here is the way T. A. Bourn solved the problem in the British Amateur Golf Championship at Sandwich. Taking off his shoes and socks he paddled in and smacked the ball clear. He dried his feet (top) and then went on to beat O. V. Dunn.

OUT TO BEAT THE BAND

While the band of the Grenadier Guards, led by the drum-major, was leaving Buckingham Palace after the Changing of the Guard ceremony, flamingoes at the London Zoo (left) were doing their best to 'outstep' the Army. The birds were on their morning parade around the enclosure—but what would the sergeant-major say about this sort of "drill"?

Radio Sales Increase

Big Improvement In Transmission

Wireless listeners are rapidly increasing in Hongkong and the trade in receiving sets is flourishing.

Last year, according to figures just released by the P.M.G. Department, 6,800 receiving licences were taken out, representing an increase of over 1,000 on the previous year.

Improvements in the Empire programme transmitted from Daventry and recent Royal broadcasts are believed to have largely contributed to the increase.

Fifty-seven dealers' licences were issued during 1936.

In the course of the year, the Radio Department received six S.O.S. calls from vessels in distress.

GERMAN PROPOSAL REJECTED

Britain Refuses To Join Demonstration Situation Now Uncertain

London, June 22. Mr. Anthony Eden, Foreign Secretary announced in the House of Commons to-day that Britain had no intention of joining in any naval demonstrations off Valencia in connection with the Leipzig incident.

He was of the opinion that the principal cause of the unsatisfactory situation in Spain was the presence of non-Spanish nationals among the combatants. The Government had placed its services at the disposal of the Non-Intervention Committee in order to expedite the withdrawal of foreign combatants.

It is understood that negotiations between Britain, France, Germany and Italy regarding the Leipzig incident have been broken off. A Foreign Office communiqué states that at to-day's meeting of the Powers it was unfortunately found impossible to reach an agreement on the measures which should be adopted. On the one hand it was considered that while proposals should be examined frankly for increasing the security of ships of the four Powers which are on patrol duty, an enquiry into the circumstances of "incidents" should precede any steps to be directed against the Spanish party involved. On the other hand the facts are regarded as being clearly established, and the incident considered to require immediate active steps in order to maintain the solidarity of the Powers and to forestall the recurrence of any such incidents.

PROPOSAL REJECTED

The proposal, on which no agreement could be reached, was that an immediate naval demonstration, showing the flags of the four Powers, should be held off the coast of Valencia.

It is understood that Britain and France wished for an enquiry, while Germany and Italy desired immediate proof of the solidarity of the four Powers.

Failure to reach an agreement creates a new situation the exact nature of which will depend on whatever unilateral action Germany decides to take. It is hoped that this will not involve the denunciation of the Four-Power Agreement.

It is pointed out that although in this instance consultations have failed, the machinery established by the June 12 agreement will still hold good in regard to future incidents.—Reuter.

CUSTOMS CRUISER MURDER

CABIN BOY ON CAPITAL CHARGE

Chung Chi-cheung, aged 22, former cabin boy of the Chinese Maritime Customs cruiser Cheung Keng, was formally charged before Mr. K. Keen at the Central Magistracy this morning with the murder of the late Captain Douglas Lorne Campbell, on January 11 last.

Chief Detective - Inspector J. Murphy, who prosecuted, said the Assistant Attorney-General, Mr. E. H. Williams, thought the whole case would have to be gone through again, as the evidence taken in the recent extradition proceedings against the defendant had only been accused of murder at the extradition proceedings, and not charged with it.

His Worship remanded defendant formally for one week. Defendant's extradition was sought by the Kwangtung authorities for the murder of Capt. Campbell and the attempted murder of Chief Officer Chai Chang-ling, but the proceedings failed as defendant proved he was born in the Colony, and was therefore not a national of China.

No Overseas Debt

Hongkong Pays Off Obligations

Hongkong last year became one of the few countries in the world to have no Overseas Public Debt. With the redemption of the Inscribed Stock issue of 1893 and 1909, amounting to $1,465,733, the whole of the Colony's overseas debt was paid off.

The total public debt of the Colony, amounting on December 31 last to $17,718,000 is confined to the Colony. At the present rate of revenue this debt amounts to seven months' revenue.

The $14,000,000 Dollar Loan issue has been reduced by redemption to $12,880,000 in the past two years. A further $11,000,000 of this loan still remains to be floated. It is possible that Government may float this loan before the end of the year.

U.S. DOMINATION AT WIMBLEDON

Many British Stars Fall Before Skill of Invaders

London, June 22. American successes dominated the results at Wimbledon to-day, and more than one prominent English player was beaten.

Susan Noel, Nancy Dickin (former schoolgirl champion), Miss Osborne, and Mary Hardwicke were among the British girls to suffer defeat, and in each case at the hands of overseas players.

Apparently recovering from a muscular ailment, Miss Helen Jacobs played subdued tennis against Miss E. H. Harvey, British Wightman Cupper, yet won comfortably by 6-2, 6-1.

Miss M. Hardwicke (England) 6-11, 6-4, 6-3. *Senorita Lizana (Chile) beat Miss Osborns (England) 6-2, 6-2.

MEN'S DOUBLES First Round *G. P. Hughes and C. R. D. Tuckey (England) beat M. Bernard and J. Borotra (France) 6-4, 6-3, 16-14.

*Donald Budge and Gene Mako (U.S.) beat D. Fren (Germany) and J. C. Warboys (England) 6-2, 8-0, 6-1. B. M. Grant and Wayne Sabin (U.S.) beat C. M. Jones and R. A. Shays (England) 7-5, 6-4, 6-4.

*Karl Schroeder (Sweden) beat D. Coombe and Giesen (New Zealand) 6-1, 6-4, 6-2. F. Parker (U.S.) and G. Stefani (Italy) beat W. Smith and S. C. Clark (England) 6-2, 6-2, 4-6, 4-0, 7-5.

* Indicates "seeded" players.

FINANCIAL STABILITY

Effect Of Reforms In Kwangtung

Canton, June 23. There has been perfect stability in local financial affairs since the promulgation of the rule governing Kwangtung currency reform two days ago, declared a spokesman of the Central Bank of China interviewed to-day.

The Bank yesterday took in about $300,000 of Kwangtung subsidiary notes. The spokesman attributed the sudden rise of Kwangtung currency partially to the high rate of exchange recently accorded Canton notes and also to the activity of speculators.

It is understood locally that Mr. T. V. Soong, who left for Hongkong yesterday evening, will return here in a day or two. He has already had discussions with Dr. Kan Chia-hou, senior adviser to the First Route Army, regarding the finances of Kwangtung province.

It is now reported that Mr. Soong may not visit Hainan Island.—Reuter.

TRINIDAD SITUATION CRITICAL

Port of Spain, Trinidad, June 22. The strike situation in Trinidad remains tense.

Strikers are parading the town and forcing shops to close. One man was shot by the police, and previously four had been killed and 28 wounded.

H.M.S. Ajax is expected to arrive here at any moment.—Reuter.

KUNG DISCUSSES LOAN FOR FLOOD PREVENTION

New York, June 22.

At the Waldorf Astoria Hotel to-day, Dr. H. H. Kung, Minister of Finance, and Dr. C. T. Wang, Chinese Ambassador, conferred with officials of the China Famine Relief Committee on the possibility of American bankers making a loan to China in order to prevent droughts and floods.

Members of the Famine Relief Committee present at the talks were Mr. James Speers (President), the Rev. Henry Smith Leiper (Director), the Rev. Philip Swartz (Secretary), Dr. Fletcher Brockman and Mr. Sidney Gamble.

Dr. Kung drew attention to the fact that the famine in North China was not ended, and urged help. The Rev. H. S. Leiper said he was meeting bankers on July 6 to discuss the loan question.

It is understood that Dr. Kung will confer with prominent bankers and seek Sino-American co-operation before seeing President Roosevelt and Mr. Henry Morgenthau, Secretary of the Treasury.

Mayor La Guardia, at the City Hall, discussed relief and governmental problems with Dr. Kung and Dr. Wang.

Dr. Kung is returning to New York from New Haven later, and proceeding to the Capitol on June 27, remaining there until July 2. On July 3, he will visit Oberlin College, New York, and on July 5 will greet his daughter Rosamonde, who is proceeding home from Europe.

Dr. Kung will proceed to Europe on July 7 for six weeks' rest at Nuremberg.—United Press.
